

Legislators React to Special General Assembly Session

Virginia Beach's representatives in the Virginia General Assembly are generally pleased with the new State Constitution just drawn by the longer-than-expected special session just ended in Richmond.

The session was expected to take about 30 days to complete its assigned task, but the legislators spent 59 instead. Virginia Beach's representatives feel the time was well-spent, and that the state will have a Constitution that the residents of Virginia can vote for next year, then live with in the coming years.

The 1970 legislature must now pass again on the new Constitution without changing one word. Then the voters get the six-part package in a referendum in November 1970. Upon passage the new Constitution takes effect.

General comments on the Constitution from Virginia Beach legislators are generally optimistic.

Del. Kenneth Whitehurst, Jr. said, "I think it is a very good improvement, especially where financial provisions are concerned. This modernized document will give Virginia a chance to step forward, and no radical changes were made."

Del. R. Middleton said, "It will be a terrific asset to the state which I believe the people of the state can accept."

State Sen. Edward T. (Ned) Caton III, said, "I believe that the result will be a good working Constitution for many years to come."

Middleton

Caton added that he thought a number of progressive steps have been set forward and that the people will accept them. The state will have a document that has "molded together the various degrees of thought" from around the state.

Vote on the Constitution has separated the more controversial measures from the body of the document, so that in case of defeat of any one item, the rest can still be enacted.

All three agreed that this was a good move. The controversial issues included removal of the prohibition of lotteries in Virginia; setting new borrowing limits of the state on general obligation bonds; setting limits on revenue-producing bonds; tuition grants to retarded and handicapped children in private schools; and powers to the Assembly to draw boundary lines of Richmond.

Whitehurst said he is slightly worried about the financial sections but that with proper education the voters would understand these sections better. He added that while some $600 million would be able to be borrowed, "the nature of the Assembly to this time points to fiscal responsibility."

Middleton agreed that there was some apprehension, but said he felt the controversial issues, all of them, would be approved by the voters.

Caton said he was glad the package was set up this way (See 'Legislators,' p. 2)

'Candidate Row' Opens on Blvd.

Campaign headquarters for state and local candidates are springing up on Virginia Beach Blvd., and all are between Lynn-Haven Road and London Bridge so far.

The latest headquarters to open is that of Richard D. Guy, seeking the Democratic nomination to the House of Delegates representing Virginia Beach. His headquarters will open officially this evening at 7:30, with a gathering of friends and campaign workers.

On the same side of the road a little further west are side by side headquarters. One is for William Battle, who is seeking the Democratic nomination for Governor in the July primary. The other is for Rhae Adams and B. R. Middleton, two more Democratic candidates for nomination to the House of Delegates, running as a team.

Almost across the road from these two will be the headquarters of the fourth candidate seeking one of the two available seats in the House of Delegates, Bruce Murphy. This building was previously a real estate office, then a wholesale

Answers Are Split On Surfing

Proving once again that surfing regulations and feelings toward surfing at Virginia Beach are quite a problem, last week's SUN SURVEY actually proves very little.

Of those who answered last week's question, "Should all surfing activities be banned along the Virginia Beach ocean front except at Steel Pier and at Sandbridge in areas designated in previous years", 55 per cent said "Yes", and 45 per cent said "No".

Many who answered in the affirmative added comments which indicated they would approve of doing away with surfing entirely in the city. Many who answered in the negative added comments that stated they would like to see many additional areas open and hours at all beach areas expanded.

Several who replied admitted living on the oceanfront. One such reply also brought a letter. (See "Letters to the Editor," p. 4.) This writer was not totally against surfing activities, however.

The problem then is still a large one and not settled by recent recommendations. The SUN SURVEY finds an almost split opinion on the matter.

While the public opinion poll does not profess to represent the thinking of all residents of Virginia Beach, it does represent the views of a cross-section of those who took time to clip it and return it to us.

Your attention is called to this week's SUN SURVEY question also, which appears below in the box at the lower left corner of this page.

Each week a new question will appear and the results will be published the following week. The questions will be timely, and the more answers we receive the more responsible the opinion.

QUESTION: Should the city of Virginia Beach continue to acquire land by condemnation in its city hall complex at Princess Anne, no matter what the cost is as set by the courts? Consider the need for the land and that recent awards have been high.

Council Selects Board

City Council Monday appointed six members to the Minimum Housing Board of Appeals. The board was established some months ago when the first minimum housing law for Virginia Beach was passed, but the appointments to that board have been delayed many times.

City officials charged with enforcement of the new law have said they are now ready to check on compliance and that the appeals board was a necessity.

John E. Gibbs was appointed for as long as he is chief building inspector. Other members are: F. Donald Reid, contractor; Lloyd Murden, retired merchant and postmaster of Princess Anne County; Stuart Buxbaum, a contractor representing the Tidewater Association of Homebuilders; Jerry Verdon, realtor; and Donaval Sanderlin, taxicab operator. Sanderlin and Verdon will serve for one year. The other appointments are for two years.

Council Monday also deferred (See 'Council,' p. 2)

Action taken by City Council in closed session Tuesday could have far-reaching implications. The special session, hastily called when it was learned from City Attorney Harry Marshall that the city had only a short time left in which to make a decision on a condemnation suit, decided to move for dismissal of the suit.

A week ago City Manager Roger Scott announced that he would recommend to City Council that the city move to dismiss the suit against Mrs. Betty Jackson after a $45,000 award was made to her in condemnation proceedings by commissioners for her property that lies within the proposed expanded city hall complex at Princess Anne.

Scott said at that time that he thought the award was too high. He informed City Council of this Monday in regular session and recommended that the city take a sharp look at the other ten parcels now under negotiation within the proposed complex where price is concerned. He further recommended that if lower prices for the land and houses could not be negotiated he thought a new master plan study should be undertaken by the city planning department with an eye toward future planning on land there that is presently owned by the city.

The recommendations were not acted upon by City Council Monday, and the matter was taken under advisement for two weeks so that Council could study the matter further, at the request of Vice Mayor Robert Cromwell.

Then the City Attorney informed Scott that he had learned the city only had ten days in which to decide on appeal or dismissal. Thus the hurry-up meeting Tuesday.

As a result of that meeting, Marshall was to draw the necessary papers, along with the city's attorney in the case, James Garrett, of Chesapeake, that would initiate dismissal action.

The suit was begun by the city when Mrs. Jackson would not accept the city's offer of $20,000 for her house and property. She was represented by A. Joseph Canada, Jr. in the court proceedings in which the award was finally made recently.

Canada told City Council Monday that the city offer was only slightly more than the city's lowest appraisal. Mrs.

Jackson reportedly bought the house and lot in 1962 for $17,500. Canada also pointed out the precedent for high prices for land and houses in the area.

He said that property owned by Councilman, J. Curlls Payne was bought at a price 50 per cent higher than the city appraisal. Payne, who was not connected with the city at that time, is chairman of the building committee which originally recommended the condemnation dismissal to Scott. Payne also commented that he believed the house on his property was worth more.

Recently another award of $50,000 was made to Lam, Huggins and Mann, for a house and property in the same complex area. Scott said it is the feeling that the award is also too high, although improvements on the land are worth more than those of Mrs. Jackson, and that the city has filed an appeal in that case.

In dismissal of the suit, the city must pay all expenses incurred by both sides in the case. Canada said this could run as high as $15,000, and that the city still would not have the property it needs.

He also said other lawsuits could arise concerning recent zoning actions in the area by City Council.

In a matter related to the suit, attorney Bruce Murphy, presently a candidate for the House of Delegates subject to the July Democratic primary, wrote City Manager Scott last week questioning the use of an out-of-city lawyer on the case and an appraiser also from outside the city. Norfolk appraiser Rodman Lamorreille was the city's expert in the case.

Scott told City Council in informal proceedings that he had explained to Murphy as best he could the reasons for choosing the experts. While he did not list the reasons he mentioned that both men are recognized experts in their fields.

Murphy contended in his letter that Virginia Beach attorneys and appraisers could have done just as well. He also addressed the regular meeting of Council Monday, restating his position and saying that he felt hometown men would possibly have received more consideration by the commissioners.

Scott told Council at the informal meeting that he had told Murphy his interests would seem to be more politically motivated than civic-minded.

More Service Stations Apply

Among the items to be presented to the Planning Commission on May 13 are applications to prepare for five more gas stations.

Hassel E. Perrel and Zola W. Perrel will apply for a use permit for the dispensing of gas and oil at an existing car wash on property located on the west side of Rose Marie Avenue, north of Virginia Beach Blvd. This property is in the Aragona Village area.

James E. Adams and James O. Davis are applying for a use permit for the dispensing of gasoline supply at an existing car wash located on the north-west corner of Baltic Avenue and Virginia Beach Blvd. in the borough area.

Minuteman Automatic Car Wash is applying for a use permit to operate a car wash with gasoline supply on property located on the north side of Virginia Beach Blvd. east of Plaza Trail in the Princess Anne Plaza area.

An application for change of zoning and a use permit is being made by F. Donald Reid for the operation of a car wash with dispensing of gas and oil. This is for property located on the west side of Independence Blvd. north of Tulip Drive in the Bradford Acres area.

A change of zoning and use permit application is being made by Frank B. Banks for construction of a gasoline supply station on property located on the east side of Baker Road, north of Newtown Road, in the Lake Edward-Wesleyan College area.

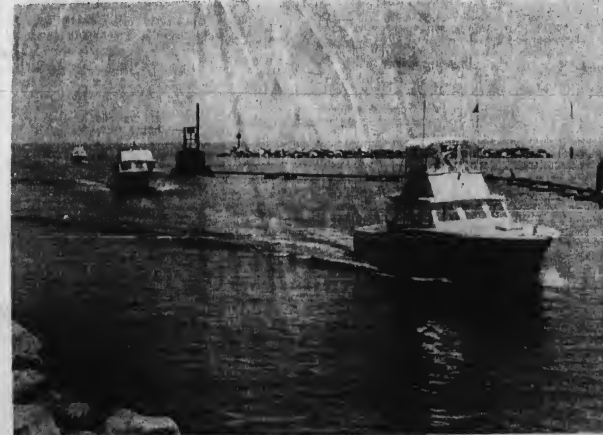

Three applications are being made for the construction of a total of 134 townhouses and 44 apartment units.

DeProfundis, Inc. is applying for a change of zoning from Residence Suburban District 3 to Multiple Family Residence District and for a use permit to construct 56 townhouses. The property involved is located on the southeast corner of Birdneck Road and the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway in the Seateak Elementary School area.

A use permit is being applied for by Colonial, Ltd. to construct 78 townhouses. This construction will be on property located on the south side of Wildwood Drive, west of First Colonial Road. This area is in the vicinity of General Hospital of Virginia Beach.

Ramp Opens, Inlet Reopens

Rudee Inlet is open and clear again. The large dredge of the Virginia Beach Erosion Commission, working two shifts for about two weeks, cut out the last of the offending sandbar last Friday night, just in time for the weekend boat traffic.

The charter boats were there Saturday morning to pick up passengers for fishing expeditions off the Cape. The depth outside the jetties is 14 feet and 10 feet inside, according to a report by Elsworth Morse, superintendent of the commission. He made his report to City Manager Roger Scott Monday morning and said the channel is in the best condition it ever has been.

As the Inlet opened, the city's boat ramp off General Booth Blvd. at Owl's Creek also opened and enjoyed considerable use over the weekend.

Meanwhile the opening of Rudee Inlet again has not ended the controversy surrounding keeping it open. Last week the Rudee Inlet Authority decided to discuss with E.H. Church, chairman of the Erosion Commission, the possibility of having the Army Corps of Engineers take over the maintenance of the channel.

L. Dean Curtis said he would like to see what the Army would do about the suggestion. Authority Chairman Frank Kellam urged consultations with Church.

An army study is now being made concerning the economic feasibility of keeping the channel clear. An act of Congress would be necessary for the army to take over the job.

Church said he would be pleased for the army to take over the job. He added that if that happens the commission's equipment can be moved back to the Owl's Creek area, to pump new sand to the beach, for which it receives federal aid.

The City Department of Public Works also has a dredging problem. The secondary channel into Long Creek is excessively shoaled at the entrance of Lesser Bridge over Lynn-Haven Inlet. Some larger craft, including charter boats, have not been able to use the channel at high tide, but the other channel can still be used.

Continuation Is Granted

A continuation was granted Wednesday in court proceedings against two Virginia Beach couples facing a number of charges in a continuing morals investigation being conducted by police in the resort city.

Police officials said they have charged Aldo Lovisi with two counts of sodomy, one count of participating in an obscene display and two counts of cruel and injurious treatment of children; and Lovisi's wife, Margaret, with two counts of cruel and injurious treatment of children and one count of participating in an obscene display. The second couple, identified by police as Jan and Patricia Galyan, of Barry Street, have reportedly been accused of participating in an obscene display. Authorities said the arrests followed the discovery of an unusually large quantity of obscene material, including movies, still photographs and books, in the Lovisi home on Alantown Drive.

Each of the suspects remain free on bond pending their next court appearance in Virginia Beach Juvenile Court, which is scheduled for May 22.

During Wednesday's court proceedings, two of Mrs. Lovisi's minor children by a previous marriage were placed under temporary custody of the City Welfare Department.

Meanwhile police officials in the cities of Virginia Beach and Norfolk, as well as officials of the F.B.I., the U.S. Attorney's office, and the Federal Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms Division, are continuing their investigation of the case.

Workmen have begun sprucing up Seaside Amusement Park for its opening on May 16. One of the repairs necessary for this last year of operation, however, is the addition of a new "SE" on the sign. That was destroyed in a winter storm.

The Steering Committee for "City Hall Day" hold up a model "key to the city." They are, left to right, David Norman, Mrs. Laura Lamb, Harold Whitehurst, Mrs. Nell Grant and Sam W. Scott, who is holding one of the commemorative key chains to be given out "City Hall Day." On June 1 all citizens of Virginia Beach will hold an honorary "key to the city" in the form of an invitation to the dedication ceremonies and open house to be held at Princess Anne Court House.

June 1 Set as City Hall Day

June 1 has been designated as "City Hall Day" for Virginia Beach.

Ceremonies for the cornerstone laying of the new Administration Building as well as dedication of the new municipal buildings have been scheduled for that day. Included in the day's events will be an open house of the City Hall Complex.

Beginning at 1:45 p.m. the U.S. School of Music will present a 15 minute band concert. At 2 p.m. the dedication and cornerstone ceremonies will be held. Open house will be held from 2:30 p.m. until 6 p.m.

Gov. Mills E. Godwin and Congressman Thomas N. Downing have been invited to the event, as well as other state, municipal and military officials.

The new Administration Building which is in authentic Williamsburg style architecture, conforms with the setting and historic significance of Princess Anne. The Princess Anne Court House complex has won national recognition as a tourist attraction in the 1969 Mobil Travel Guide.

A special memento of the day will be distributed on a first-come-first-served basis. It is a key chain with a Cape Henry lighthouse medallion attached to it.

Wait 10 Weeks on Refund

Ten weeks from the date a Federal income tax return calling for a refund is mailed, the taxpayer either has his check or a letter explaining why it is held up, James P. Boyle, District Director of Internal Revenue for Virginia, said today.

For this reason, a taxpayer who has not heard about his refund should wait 10 weeks before writing IRS. By waiting this length of time, most taxpayers will find their inquiry unnecessary, Boyle said.

If it becomes necessary to write, the taxpayer should in-dicade where and when he filed his return and give his name, address and social security number, Boyle said.

Millions of tax returns are handled every filing season at the IRS Service Center in Philadelphia which serves approximately 23 million tax-payers in Virginia and four other states and the District of Columbia. The volume of processing operations there makes it practically impossible for IRS to locate a particular return and to answer any question about it until processing is complete.

He praised the police for work in stamping out the problem but said policemen can only do so much.

He suggested full support of legislators and all public officials and educational programs designed to teach young children the dangers of drugs.

action on a proposal by City Manager Roger Scott to lower sewer rates from $10.50 a quarter to $6 in its areas of operation in the city. The areas included are Virginia Beach Borough, Larkspur, Point-O-Woods, Lakeville Estates and Lake Shores.

As in the case of private utility companies, including Princess Anne Utilities and Aragona Utilities (now seeking rate hikes), the city's system will be connected to the lines of Hampton Roads Sanitation District in the near future. An additional fee of about $4.57 will be tacked on homes for the HRSD service at that time, and the city's ordinance would move to keep its rates about the same. The matter was deferred only because several Councilmen said they had not had a chance to study the matter in full.

In addition final passage was given to the city's $44 million budget and new tax structures which go into effect on July 1. The utility tax increase, however, goes into effect on June 1.

Approval was also given to borrow $1 million from First & Merchants National Bank on a six-month note at interest of 4.22 per cent, to be repaid from the sale of water and sewer bonds already approved.

The only zoning matter was for a change for multiple-family residences by Lincoln Enterprises on Shore Drive and Diamond Springs Road. The applicant was allowed to withdraw when it was learned that a tentative contract has been signed to build a participating department store there.

City Council also voted to lease the old Dept. of Public Works building at 18th and Arctic Avenue to the Virginia Beach Ministerial Association for at least two years for $1 a year for a servicemen's hospitality house. The city recreation department will use the building in the off-season.

An appropriation of $1,780 was made as Virginia Beach's share of a mass transit study to be undertaken by the Southeastern Virginia Regional Planning Commission.

In informal session Council also agreed tentatively to share in the cost of drainage systems at Witcomb Road and Virginia Beach Blvd. where Zayre Dept. Store will be built. It was agreed that the drainage facilities are needed to serve the entire area. The city's share is expected to be about $40,000 and Zayre is expected to pay about the same amount to the city in a single year in taxes and licenses. The store will open this fall.

There were three students in each delegation, serving on the political, social or economic committee. Virginia Wesleyan represented Finland and Hungary. Rosenthal was on the delegation from Finland.

Rosenthal is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Rosenthal of Virginia Beach. He is a 1967 graduate of Princess Anne High School.

Suspects Arrested In Hampton

Close cooperation between the police departments of the cities of Virginia Beach and Hampton led to the arrest Tuesday night of four suspects accused of burglarizing the Orval Caddy home on Five Forks Road last weekend.

The suspects were identified by police as William A. Eason, Robert L. Lavender, Robert J. Smith, all of Newport News, and Smith's brother, Carroll L. Smith of Hampton.

According to investigators six shotguns valued at $850, a coin and currency collection worth $1,200, and savings bonds worth $125 were taken from the home during the burglary.

Officials said a Hampton police officer Tuesday evening stopped a vehicle fitting the description of a car being sought in connection with the case. The officers investigation reportedly led to the discovery of four shotguns concealed in the vehicle, which was occupied at the time by the four suspects.

Virginia Beach police, after being alerted by Peninsula police, travelled to Hampton with Caddy who reportedly identified the weapons as being stolen from his Five Forks Road home.

The suspects in addition to being charged with burglary in Virginia Beach, may face charges of possessing stolen goods in the city of Hampton. Authorities said they are still seeking two shotguns, the coin and currency collection and bonds taken from the dwelling.

The general public may be able to assist police in the location of these items, as well as the apprehension of anyone else who may be connected with the case.

Some of the items listed in the missing money collection include two Philippine peso coins bearing a bust of Gen. to that the people will have the right to accept or reject. He too said he feels the controversial issues will be accepted if proper attention is given to telling the story to the people. He said he was "well-satisfied" with the package and was proud of the session.

Whitehurst said he also had some apprehensions about the lottery prohibition provision being struck from the Constitution. While he said he favored the new language and looked to it as the forerunner of parliamentarism in Virginia Beach, he said he felt some rural voters may not feel kindly toward that section.

Middleton, however, said he felt this section would pass but was hesitant to suggest it and when racing would come to Virginia.

Caton agreed in part with Middleton, but said that "local option has indicated progressivism statewide" and that possibly racing would come to Virginia as the result of the new provision if the matter is pursued by interested parties statewide.

None of the three could see any real opposition to the new tuition grant proposal, but Caton said he was worried that would happen if it did not pass. He said in that event the state would return to the old broad massive resistance provision already called unconstitutional by the courts.

Middleton added that he was not necessarily happy with the compromise formula for setting borrowing limits and that he would rather have seen it set at 25 per cent of the general fund revenues instead of 25 per cent of 1.15 times the state income and sales taxes.

Caton said the most important immediate result to Virginia Beach in the new Constitution would be a reapportionment in 1971, based on the 1970 federal census. He said he felt sure the city would get at least its own senator instead of remaining in a floater district and possibly one or two more delegates.

All three said they were pleased generally with language that has been clarified in the new Constitution which gives the city a "court of last resort" in the General Assembly in case a municipally-owned utility, serving the city makes undue demands, financial or otherwise. Some Norfolk legislators were trying to remove all restrictions to controls of its utilities serving residents outside its limits, such as Virginia Beach.

Caton also said the Assembly has now left it to the localities concerning deferrals or relief to taxpayers on agricultural land. While he said this section had given him much concern, he added that he was happy the new document leaves this entirely up to the localities, instead of the state.

The three also agreed that the most far-reaching effects of the new Constitution will be realized from steps taken to remove pay-as-you-go and in the fields of education. All three said they were sorry the proposal to give 16-year-olds the vote had not been subjected to a referendum, but Whitehurst and Middleton said they were not necessarily in favor of giving them the vote. Caton was one of the champions of the young would-be voters.

The new Constitution is considered to be a fine amalgamation of ideas by Virginia Beach legislators without opening the door too widely. Now its up to the voters.

Ceremonies Mark First Landing

Ceremonies marking the 362nd anniversary of the first landing of the English settlers on Virginia's shores in 1607 were held last Sunday, at the memorial cross near the Cape Henry lighthouse, First District Congressman Thomas N. Downing was the main speaker.

The Cape Henry Pilgrimage has been held annually on the Sunday nearest April 26, the date of the landing, since 1935 when a large stone cross was erected on the site by the Daughters of American Colonists. The Order of Cape Henry 1607 hosts the ceremony.

Religious ceremonies at the site Sunday were patterned after the Anglican service of 1607 and presided over by the Rt. Rev. George P. Gunn, bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Southern Virginia.

Participating in the services were the choir of the Gallie Episcopal Church, the honor guard from Fort Story and the Naval Band of the School of Music, Little Creek. Wreaths were laid at the cross by representatives of the Order of Cape Henry 1607 and the Daughters of the American Colonists.

Downing was introduced by Federal Judge Richard Kellam of Virginia Beach. Virginia Beach mayor, Frank A. Dusch, also attended.

At a luncheon held at Fort Story's Officers Club before the ceremony, the guest speaker was Capt. A. P. Dart of the Royal Air Force.

Cape Henry Day services were conducted at Fort Story as swimmers and sunbathers seemed quite unconcerned.

Retirees' Classes Set

Two classes of Armed services retirees are returning to civilian life in increasing numbers. In one class are those who receive disability retirement pay for service incurred injuries or diseases. The second group are those who have been retired with pay because of longevity of service.

Both of these groups may be overlooking the fact that Veterans Administration may have certain benefits that would behoove them to investigate.

The disabled retiree may find that Veterans Administration compensation will pay a greater amount of monthly benefits than his retirement pay. The same entitlement may also provide additional benefits in the way of better educational or vocational training or even VA help for special housing or automobiles.

Even the 20 year or more retiree may find it well worth his time to file a claim for minor disabilities occurred during his service, which at the present time are of little consequence but which may later give him protection.

All retirees and all discharges should stop at their local Office of the Virginia Division of Veterans' Claims, P. O. Box 6155, Princess Anne Station, Virginia Beach, Va. Telephone 427-1970.

For further information contact Maurice J. Hunger, Veterans' Claims Agent, Division of Veterans' Claims, P. O. Box 6155, Princess Anne Station, Virginia Beach, Va. Telephone 427-1970.

Last Play Of Season Announced

John Patrick's comedy, "The Curious Savage", will be the final presentation of the Virginia Beach Little Theatre season.

Under the direction of Larry Williams the cast features Billie Atwill, Anne Penington, Dorothy Jones, Sylvia Johnson, Ruth Sherman, Pamela Horton, Charles Terry, David Jones, Larry Norman, Robert Giles, Jr. and Foy Shaw.

The play opens May 16 at the Courtyard Playhouse and will play Friday and Saturday nights for three consecutive weekends.

Mayor Dusch proclaims today as Law Day USA. With him are representatives of the Virginia Beach Bar Association Andre Evans, Phillip G. Denman and John K. Moore. Mock trials are being held today at First Colonial High School and Kellam High School as part of Law Day activities.

Thorpe Sentenced

Rufus Thorpe, Jr., 20, of Fuller Lane, has received a three year prison sentence on conviction of the attempted malicious wounding of two Virginia Beach police officers. Thorpe was found guilty of attacking officer J. G. Malesky and detective Robert R. Monette, who lost his life last December during a police diving team training exercise, when the officers were investigating a traffic accident last October. The attack occurred when Thorpe rushed into his home and grabbed a butcher knife then turned on the officers during their investigation. During the course of the trial Thorpe changed his plea to being guilty of the charges. Thorpe was sentenced to five years on each charge, with the sentences to run concurrently, and two years of each sentence were suspended on condition of Thorpe's good behavior.

Gets Suspended Term

Herman Frederick Wolfgang Becker, who recently served a 30 day sentence in the City Jail on a conviction of possessing gambling paraphernalia, has received a suspended 60 day jail sentence and a $500 fine on a second conviction of a similar charge. Officials said the first arrest of 58-year-old Becker followed a July 1967 raid on his former Virginia Beach Blvd. residence, while the second charge resulted from an October 1967 raid at newly established residence.

Escapee Gets 5 Years

Robert W. Newell of Chesapeake has been sentenced to five years in prison on conviction of charges of escaping from custody, attempted abduction and attempted grand larceny of an auto. The charges followed Newell's escape from a detention room on Jan. 23 while awaiting appearance in Virginia Beach Circuit Court, then attempting to force a woman to drive him to safety in her car from the parking lot of Miller's Department Store on Military Highway. Newell, 20, of Bainbridge Blvd., has already been sentenced to 66 years in prison following his conviction of rape, burglary and robbery charges in the cities of Virginia Beach and Chesapeake.

Aurillo Sentenced

David L. Aurillo has been fined $1,000 and given a three months jail sentence following his conviction of storebreaking. Aurillo was found guilty of illegally entering the Virginia Beach Blvd. offices of Meekins Pontiac last Oct. 4. Investigators said a janitor discovered Aurillo in the building. Defense attorney John Moore has made a motion to have the verdict set aside on grounds of being contrary to law and evidence. A hearing is scheduled in Circuit Court on June 26 on the motion.

Legal Action Pends

Legal action is pending in Virginia Beach Circuit Court in a civil suit seeking damages totaling $250,000 as the result of an April 19 two-car collision at Hinsdale Avenue and Independance Blvd. The suit lists Oliver N. Hill of Portsmouth, Ohio, as defendant. Hill is identified as the driver of an auto which collided with a car driven by Mrs. Constance J. Pappas, of Cambria Street. Mrs. Pappas, who had her son and two daughters with her at the time of the accident, is seeking $35,000 for injuries she received; $100,000 for injuries sustained by her two-month-old son, plus $10,000 for his medical expenses; $50,000 for injuries received by her infant daughter Sue; and $50,000 for injuries to her two-year-old daughter Andrea, plus $5,000 for the child's expenses.

Cleared of Manslaughter

Robert B. Preston has been cleared of manslaughter charges arising from a Feb. 7 accident in which two people were fatally injured. Preston, 51, of Nags Head, N.C., was charged in connection with the deaths of Ronald A. Paul, 57, and Grace Lupton, 58, both of Oriental, N.C. The deaths resulted from a collision between Preston's car and Paul's auto, in which Mrs. Lupton was a passenger, at the intersection of Kempsville Road and Centerville Turnpike. Preston, however, was found guilty of reckless driving in connection with the accident and was fined $250.

'Dreams' Are Topic For A.R.E.

A conference on "Dreams" will be held at the Association for Research and Enlightenment, 67th Street and Atlantic Avenue, throughout the week of May 4 to 10.

Afternoon and evening lectures will be open to the public. The afternoon lectures, Monday through Friday, with the exception of Tuesday, will survey the Edgar Cayce readings in their various aspects. Mrs. Shirley Winston will be the lecturer.

H. B. Puryear, Ph.D., director of education for the A. R. E., will lecture on "Dreams, Windows to the Unconscious" on Monday, May 5th at 8 p.m. Louis Boykin, of the faculty at Norfolk State College, will talk on "The Psychological and Psychic Dream" on Tuesday, May 6 at 8 p.m. On Thursday, May 8, Hugh Lynn Cayce will talk on "Psychic Awareness through the Study of Dreams," also at 8 p.m. Robert Van de Castle, Ph. D. will talk on Friday, May 9th at 8 p.m. on "Your Personal Dream Laboratory." Dr. Van de Castle is director of the Sleep and Dream Laboratory in the Department of Psychiatry, the University of Virginia; he is also professor of psychology there.

On Friday, May 2, at 8 p.m. Paul Keene, founder and proprietor of the well known "Walnut Acres" organic farm and market in Pennsylvania, will lecture on "Mystical Organic Gardening Pay."

A long line of motorists followed this house across the Rudee Inlet Bridge last week. The house, moved by Heath, DeForas and Heath, was on its way from Pacific Ave. to Dam Neck Road. The tight squeeze across the bridge didn't bother the two fellows who rode on top. They just enjoyed the scenery and helped clear a wire or two enroute.

Public Officials View Film

A number of public officials were invited to view a showing of "A Film Report on Glue Sniffing" last Friday in the Virginia Beach Juvenile Court chambers.

Those invited to attend the showing included members of the Virginia Beach police department; welfare and health departments; the city sargent's office; judges from the Virginia Beach Municipal and Circuit Courts; the Juvenile Court of Norfolk; principals and assistant principals of the city's junior and senior high schools; staff members from the Tidewater Detention Home in Chesapeake; and several members of the clergy.

The film was prepared by the Hobby Industry Association of New York. While it dealt primarily with the clinical dangers which might result from active participation in glue sniffing, the film pointed out the social problems often linked with glue sniffing. Several who have viewed the film say the movie gives a very "graphic" portrayal of body effects which can result from glue sniffing.

Registrar Needs Help

Unless the Registrar's office receives temporary help in compiling up-to-date voter lists, the new books will not be ready for all city precincts by July 15, when the Democratic primary will be held.

Mrs. Anna Cotton, general registrar, has said that the job is "physically impossible" for her and her assistant, Mrs. Maxine Merritt. They began correcting the voter rolls about four months ago in preparation for a new system to be used during elections. According to Mrs. Cotton lists have been checked out for 11 of the larger precincts.

John B. James, electoral board chairman, has requested City Council to approve hiring two extra workers for two months. City Council is expected to take action on the request at the May 12 meeting.

Chief Deputy Clerk who arranged the film's showing, indicates this was the initial step in a planned program of orienting health, education and legal officials with problems arising from an apparent increase in glue sniffing.

Col. Millette to Remain

With more than 26 years of Marine Corps service behind him, Lt. Col. Eugene Millette retired from active duty during a ceremony March 31 in the office of Lt. Gen. Richard G. Weede, Commanding General of Fleet Marine Force, Atlantic, here.

Lt. Col. Millette and his wife, the former Patricia Yarborough Parrish of Greenville, N. C., plan to remain in Tidewater and reside at Cardinal Road in Virginia Beach.

Before reporting to Fleet Marine Force, Atlantic (FMF) in late 1967, Lt. Col. Millette served with the Defense Intelligence Agency in Washington, D. C., and earned the Joint Service Commendation Medal for his outstanding performance of duty there.

He has also served at the White House as the Marine Corps Assistant to the military aide to the President. At the FMF's headquarters, Col. Millette has served as the Staff Secretary and as Assistant G-1 (Personnel and Administration) Officer.

During World War II the Colonel participated in the campaigns for Iwo Jima and Okinawa. In the Korean war Lt. Col.

Penalty Undecided

Still undetermined is what action will be taken against W. B. Meredith II, Inc. in the execution of a penalty against the company for their delay in completing the new city Administration Building.

Architects John S. Waller and Allan E. Sadler are responsible for enforcing the penalty. They are to make a final inspection of the building this week, but they have not indicated exactly what action will be taken against Meredith. Negotiations between Waller and Meredith have narrowed the penalty days down to seven—which would cost the contractor $1,400 if the penalty clause were involved.

Because of the small sum of money involved Waller has said that the penalty is now a matter of principal.

May 30 Is Holiday

Post offices will observe regular holiday schedules on Memorial Day, Friday, May 30.

There will be no regular window or delivery services. Mail will be collected from deposit points on holiday schedules and main post office lobbies will be open in most major cities for access to lockboxes, deposit of mail and use of stamp dispensing equipment.

Special delivery services also will be available.

Nearly 3,000 Expected

More than 2,800 high school musicians will be in the city June 16-19 to participate in the Eighth Annual Virginia Beach Music Festival. Accompanying the young musicians will be another 400 band directors, chaperones and parents.

According to the festival acceptance committee there will be 26 competing bands from 12 states. The bands will participate in competitive activities which include marching and general performance.

The festival is sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce. General chairman for the event is Charles H. Forbes Jr.

Home Grown Talent

The question has been raised by a political candidate concerning the hiring of appraisers and attorneys from outside Virginia Beach in a condemnation case that was to be tried by a Virginia Beach judge in a Virginia Beach court.

City Manager Roger Scott told City Council that he had told the candidate, Bruce Murphy, that his interests may be more political than in the city itself. That would appear on the surface to be a rather unfortunate statement made by Scott. The City Manager then went on to say that he had given Murphy the reasons why the outsiders had been hired in the controversial case that is still pending. (See front page) Those reasons were not listed at the meeting.

Murphy suggested that Virginia Beach has capable lawyers and appraisers that could have accomplished the same job as the outsiders did, perhaps even with more favorable results by the commissioners in a home town court. He also questioned why the City Attorney or his staff were not used in such cases, where no experts in particular fields are called for.

Casting no aspersions on the ability of those who handled the case, it does seem that Virginia Beach men could have handled the jobs, and we feel the entire matter needs more airing. Mr. Scott and politics notwithstanding.

Whether the suggestion is politically motivated or not is of little concern. The best interests of Virginia Beach are of major concern. We believe in keeping City money here and using our own city's talent to best advantage.

Attorney Murphy, not candidate Murphy's, questions are well-founded. The answers do not suffice.

As the Traffic Grows

Every so often a comment emanates from City Council, either in informal or regular session, about the volume of traffic on Virginia Beach Boulevard. Most of those comments revolve around the fact that some planning should be accomplished to meet future needs.

Then a couple of months ago word leaked out that the volume was now up to the same point that it was when planning began for the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway. That is certainly destined to get worse with new homes, apartments and commercial establishments being built at a rapid clip and even with more and more traffic building up each month on the toll road.

Money is certainly the problem. A new road or much expansion of the old one is a must in the near future, before we face a traffic situation never known in this city before. The time has come to stop commenting on the matter and to do something about it.

By the grapevine we hear that several studies have been made of the problem, that explorations have been made into getting some money and that a plan has been set forth to eliminate median strips and make one-lane, one-way feeder lanes, allowing for more lanes.

But nothing has been said officially to allay the fears, justified fears, of the driving public. Granted the road is no longer a killer, but it certainly is a fender-bender. The future can only be worse. The public is entitled to know if and when something is going to be done and how its going to be paid for.

Tell It Like It Is

City Council is faced with a dilemma. It cannot stifle growth of the city by keeping the building industry from developing new homes and apartments. It cannot approve these developments where new schools will be necessary, thus causing a new tax burden.

There is no easy solution. But there is little doubt as to the eventual course to be taken. The developments must be approved and the city must grow. The necessary services will have to be provided, at whatever cost necessary. Some adjustments can hopefully be made so that the homeowner will not have to bear the full brunt of the financial increases. If not, then that is the price we must pay for progress, like it or not. But, no matter what, we cannot stand still, or always enjoy tax rate reductions to appease.

New schools are already on the drawing boards anyway and new sites are in the negotiating stages. We must not delude ourselves into thinking we are now ready to meet the future. The school board has just hired a full-time planning director. That should be some indication of things to come.

Few are really ready to talk about it yet, especially in light of the budget, the new assessments and next year's City Council election, but a bond issue next year for schools is almost sure to be held, and it must be passed.

We must not allow our city officials to hide their heads and wait until the problem is even more critical before talking about it. It must all be told now and as the bond issue nears. An educated public, aware of the problems and needs, is more agreeable to dipping into its pocket.

letters to the editor

Surfing Comments

Editor, VIRGINIA BEACH SUN: I wish to make two comments on surfing in north Virginia Beach.

1. Many property owners in north Virginia Beach prefer to swim in the mornings or late afternoon when the sun is not too hot. Swimming and surfing cannot take place at the same time in any given area. 2. I have observed that many surfers in north Virginia Beach are novices at the sport. They lose their boards frequently and are a menace to children playing at the water's edge.

I recommend that the surfing hours be strictly adhered to in north Virginia Beach so that surfers and swimmers and bathers can all have a happy summer and a SAFE one. -North Virginia Beach resident

Editor's note: This letter was received in answer to last week's SUN SURVEY question concerning surfing in Virginia Beach. (See story front page.) The writer also recommended that surfing not be banned entirely except in designated areas at Steel Pier and at Sandbridge, but said that the surfing rule before 10 a.m. and after 6 p.m. in north Virginia Beach should be kept. The city surfing committee has recommended allowing surfing from 42nd Street to Fort Story until 11 a.m. and after 6 p.m.

Special Report

Finding the Formula

Now it's official. Lt. Gov. Fred Pollard has a ticket for the July Primary. Running with him are State Sen. Carrington Thompson of Chatham for the second spot on the ballot and Del. Guy Farley of Fairfax, seeking the job of Attorney General.

It was pointed out in making the ticket official that the three have a total of 40 years experience in governing and that the ticket offers a unified team that can best serve Virginia.

All this is very impressive, but William Battle and Henry Howell maintain they will go it alone. So will all the other candidates for lieutenant governor and attorney general.

Many see the ticket as the one thing that may save the Democratic party in Virginia. They feel that if all three are nominated the party can unify easier for a bitter campaign against strong GOP opposition in the fall. But others do not agree. They feel a ticket will further factionalize the party and cause more unrest that can only serve the best interests of Republicans.

The Pollard-Thompson-Farley ticket is basing much on experience and an orderly transfer of government from one administration to another, since all have played key roles in the progressive administration of Gov. Mills E. Godwin, Jr.

Obviously the others are basing their campaigns on the old "It's time for a change" routine. In itself that doesn't make this campaign a bit different from any other.

The big difference this time is that the Democrats must finally face the independent-minded voters of the state and put their best feet and candidates forward. They are aware they cannot win hands down anymore and that a real two-party fight is just around the corner.

And so the result of all this could be a real donnybrook or a tepid campaign full of "issues" and lacking personalities. This may not prove much, but the course looks right.

Their leanings are perhaps well-known, but it's just not something to campaign on this year. While the GOP has enjoyed little success so far in Virginia Beach, all four are aware of what could happen here too if the statewide race gives Linwood Holton the edge.

And nobody is about to sell the GOP nominee short. He's flitting around the state like a pro, collecting old IOU's from party faithfuls who have never had a golden boy to look to before. He's making some good speeches and gaining much ground.

The Democrats everywhere are aware of what this could mean if the intra-party fight gets too hot. Too many, whether or not they favored the candidacy of Mr. Humphrey last fall, remember what the party split in the summer did to the party in the fall. The closeness of that presidential race is still too fresh in the minds of many Democrats in Virginia.

Right now in Virginia Beach it's a better than even bet the House candidates will not necessarily avoid the statewide race, but will play it down as far as possible in order to maintain a delicate balance with the voters and to prepare for a long hard autumn.

Even ticket talk is dead in Virginia Beach now. Richard Guy and Bruce Murphy will conduct separate campaigns as independents, no matter how they are tagged by their ticket-minded opponents. B. R. Middleton and especially Rhae Adams.

Anyone looking for some campaign literature in Virginia Beach need not go too far. All four of the House of Delegates entrants have campaign headquarters within jogging distance of each other. Adams and Middleton are together, right next to Battle headquarters. Guy is just down the road and Murphy is across the street.

No doubt the area of concentrated campaign headquarters will soon be a hotbed of concentrated activity.

SUN SPOTS

By H. Joseph Lowenthal, Jr.

My Dear Spouse, Whether or not I have learned to appreciate you a little more in the last few days since you've been gone flitting around for the school board you'll never know. I'm just not about to tell the truth about that. It would either go to your head or have you at mine when you get home.

But it has been an interesting few days since you've been gone on your paid vacation.

An Open Letter To 'Her'

The girls and I are getting along fine. The clothes you laid out for five days were gone in two, though. Accidents of one kind or another, you know. And I think the fat lip the baby has will go down by the time you get home. Don't worry about that at all. It really doesn't look too bad.

Hope the new car is running okay. Wish I were so lucky, I should get mine back from the shop this afternoon with a little luck and if the parts come in,

The maid is doing a fine job, except for the day she didn't get here until two hours late and I had three morning appointments. But that's another story. I'll tell you about that when you get here.

Incidentally when will that be? You forgot to leave me your paycheck and a few of our creditors aren't too happy about the lack of payment. Speaking of that, want to hear something funny? It's going to cost us an additional 15 per cent on the State income tax, because you forgot to sign the return before you left and I have to file it late.

I haven't written your mother like you asked me to do. I just can't think of anything to say beyond, "Dear Mom."

The frozen dinners are really great, all things considered, if you put enough seasoning on them. Really, I only felt bad one morning. So did the girls, but only the older one threw up. We were all fine by the next evening.

Something else very funny happened. The baby sitter called me this afternoon and demanded I be home by 6, or I'd get a cold meal. I almost said, "Yes, dear," before I realized you were out of town. Isn't that hilarious?

Say, does the washing machine always make that funny whining sound?

One of my old girlfriends called the other night and talked about an hour long distance. You'll never guess which one or what she wanted. That's another one I'll save till you get here.

Our older daughter's hair sure is hard to manage, isn't it? What do you do for all those tangles? She just screams when I try to get them out.

I had a shoe thrown at me the other morning. All I did was go over to our friend's house to feed the cat while he's away and call, "Here kitty, kitty, kitty." So what if it was only 6 a.m.?

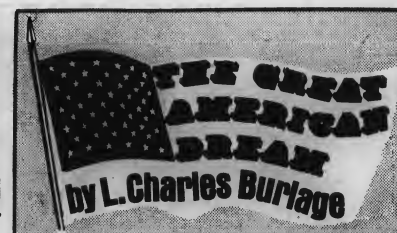

Our next door neighbors are away. Some family emergency. So now I'm checking their mail and taking care of things for them. Irony, isn't it? They were supposed to help me out. But don't worry, I'm managing just fine. Just a little tired. The baby hasn't been sleeping too well.

The doctor says our older daughter does not have the measles. Isn't that good news? He's not sure what the rash is, though. The younger one is fine. No ill effects at all from falling down the steps, or didn't I tell you about that? Well, it can wait.

Hope you get there all right the other day. I really meant to tell you about that pull to the right the steering wheel has, but I forgot. I was too exhausted from jumping up and down on the bed trying to get you up at 5 a.m.

Know you're getting lots of rest and relaxation. Don't worry about anything. We're all getting along fine in spite of a few setbacks I'll discuss with you when you get home.

The kids and I look forward to seeing you in a few days. Love, Me

In the preceding articles it was stated that the debt of the City of Virginia Beach is increasing 160% faster than is the income.

The population of our city was 57,000 people on Jan. 1, 1959; this figure had increased to 126,000 people by June 30, 1964; and to 165,000 by June 30, 1968; and it is anticipated that by 1975 the city will have a population in excess of 300,000 people. Most of the growth of the city has been in residences and it is for this reason that the city has been called a bedroom community. This growth is wonderful, but unfortunately this type of growth does not bring with it sufficient revenue to pay for the services required.

The average family, based on school board assumptions, contains three school-age children. The average income of this family is $8,000 per year. Assuming such a hypothetical family owns a 1967 automobile and lives in a $20,000 home with a monthly mortgage payment of $150.00 per month, the income and expense of this family, from a City governmental point of view amounts to an annual loss of $178.62 per family.

The City government collects the following income from this "average" family:

Real Estate Tax (60% @ $2.15)	$258.00
Personal Property tax (on automobile)	22.80
Automobile license	10.00
Utility tax (15%) (assume utilities of $22.00 per month)	39.60
Sales Tax (2%) (assuming that the family spends all its remaining earnings in Virginia Beach)	101.28

Total Revenue to the City $431.68

The next question is what does the City spend on this family by way of services? The answer is $122.06 based on an estimated population of 165,000 people and a budget of $20,139,968 after the subtraction of federal and state revenues of $15,784,353.00. The value of services paid by the local city government for this family of 5 is $80.30. This includes such services as operation of the schools, police protection, garbage removal, debt services, street maintenance, etc. The net cost per child for education is $164.88 per year.

The family cash flow or money available to spend is as follows:

Gross Income	$8,000.00
FICA Taxes	-343.20
Federal Income Tax	-680.40
State Income Tax	-112.20

Net Pay $6,864.20

Less Mortgage Payment 1,800.00

Net Pay for computation of sales tax $5,064.20

The above computation reveals that the City loses $178.62 annually on every family resident therein. The worst financial news the City could get would be the announcement that a developer was planning to build a 10,000 home housing project within the city. This would multiply out to an annual loss to the City of $1,786,200. The type of growth Virginia Beach has Kellam principal Jefferson Davis and Sharon Grimstead examine table and plaque honoring Mrs. Strickler's memory. Library club members look on.

Library Club Honors Memory

The Kellam High School Library Club Tuesday morning presented the school library with a new book display table with a plaque honoring the memory of Mrs. Nancy S. Strickler, Kellam librarian from 1963 to 1969, who died earlier this year.

Sharon Grimstead, represented the library club, made the presentation to the school's principal, Jefferson Davis. The short ceremony was attended by members of the club, school library workers and close friends of Mrs. Strickler. Also in attendance was her husband, M.P. Strickler, an assistant superintendent of schools.

Head librarian Mrs. JoAnn MacDougall said that since Mrs. Strickler's death the club had wanted to present a lasting gift in her name and that the presentation was made at this time in conjunction with a club sale of candles and sachet bars for Mother's Day. The proceeds of the sale will be added to the approximately $400 already donated by teachers at Kellam and others to a scholarship fund also set up in Mrs. Strickler's memory.

Mrs. MacDougall said it is hoped the scholarship will be given each year in the future. This year the entire amount will be given to a deserving student of Kellam during commencement exercises in June.

BADGES & BANTER

By Les Lehigh

Officer W. W. Taylor, attached to the Virginia Beach Police Traffic Bureau, had his picture published in the May issue of International Surfing Magazine. However, Taylor has mixed emotions over what the national notoriety will do for him. The picture was published in conjunction with a feature story on the East Coast Surfing Championships held in Virginia Beach last summer. Although Taylor was on duty directing traffic on Atlantic Avenue to assist surfing enthusiasts entering and leaving the surfing area, the picture's caption referred to him as "a blue meanie from Virginia Beach".

Today kicks off the annual fund raising drive for the various fire departments of the city. While the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN plans on doing a special feature on the drive in next week's issue, may we take this opportunity to remind everyone to support the "Volunteers" who stand by 24 hours a day to protect their lives and property.

Four men of the police department will embark on a special training program next Monday, Sgt. E. L. Jackson, Det. W. M. Bailey, along with officers W. H. Smith and F. R. Scarborough will attend the Central Police Training School in Richmond for three weeks.

Men of the Plaza Volunteer Fire Co. & Rescue Squad will stage their annual carnival next week at the Princess Anne Plaza Shopping Center. The carnival will feature special rides, games and attractions for all ages. Saturday will offer a special program including displays of fire fighting equipment. Proceeds from the carnival will be used to purchase new equipment for the fire company and rescue squad.

Last Thursday night was another big one for members of the Princess Anne F.O.P. Lodge #8. A gala pizza party was staged for members and their guests in the new lodge quarters, and all indications are the affair was a high success with a good time being had by all.

Milton Holland, Chief, Virginia Beach Fire Prevention Bureau, will journey to Richmond next week to attend the Virginia Safety Association annual meeting. Holland indicates the meeting may offer some future developments in the recently organized Virginia Fire Prevention Association.

Reliable sources tell us Elaine Baum, a member of the police communications room staff, is displaying unusual self control and fortitude in her new endeavor to "break the smoking habit". Indications are her fellow dispatchers are assisting her in the effort by casually leaving their packs of cigarettes where she will find them and willingly offering her a smoke every chance they get.

Chesapeake Beach Volunteer Fire Department Chief Fred Quist is travelling to Richmond today to take delivery on a new ambulance for the department. Quist says the ambulance has been outfitted with "one of the best oxygen systems in the state" and is expected to be placed into service by next Tuesday.

Officer J.G. Malesky, attached to the 3rd Police Precinct, says he had to resort to "old west days tactics" while performing an unusual duty this past week. It seems Malesky, during a routine patrol of Virginia Beach Blvd. suddenly witnessed a young pony "casually galloping along the highway". Facing up to the situation, Malesky says he "corralled the critter to the roadside" and called for assistance from other "wranglers."

Green Run Announces Builder

Oscar B. Ferebee, Jr. president of Green Run Corp. of Virginia Beach and George M. Sullivan, Jr., vice president, have announced that The Klingbeil Company of Columbus, Ohio, has begun operations as the Master Builder of the 1,100 acre Green Run Community here at the intersection of Holland and Lynnhaven Roads.

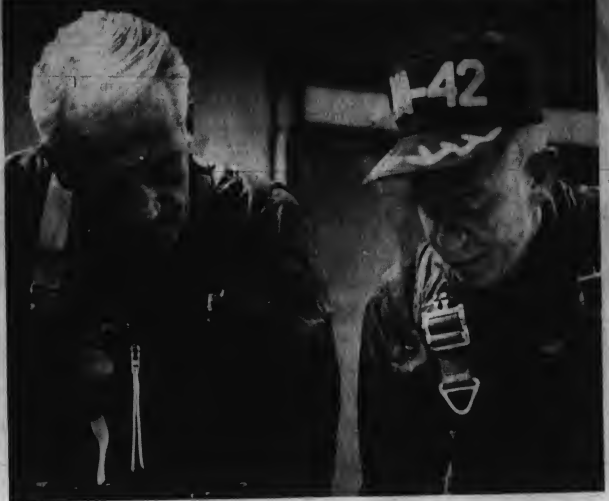

A member of The Council of Housing Producers, a group comprising the fourteen largest builder-developers in North America, The Klingbeil Company has planned with Green Run Corp. to open The Gardens of Green Run, the first of four villages on September 15 of this year.

The first village will have some 1,500 residences, including garden and townhouse apartments, townhouses for sale, and single family homes of a wide variety of designs and price ranges.

Plans are presently underway to introduce and acquaint the public with the ideal location of Green Run and the many advantages of the nationally recognized planning of Green Run, through a variety of planned community events commencing in early summer.

The Klingbeil Company presently has planned multi-family rental, condominium and townhouse-for-sale communities in nineteen cities in nine states from Florida to California.

Sen. Goldwater Visits Oceana

Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz) flew in from Washington, D.C. last week to visit Attack Squadron FORTY TWO at the Naval Air Station Oceana to receive an indoctrination and familiarization flight in the Grumman A6A "Intruder" all weather attack bomber.

Sen. Goldwater, a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, was flown here in a Grumman TC-4C "Gulfstream", the A6A Weapons System Trainer aircraft. During the flight from Washington the Senator received an indoctrination in the A6A Weapons System and DIANE, the Digital Integrated Attack Navigation Equipment, from Cmdr. Frank Cramblet, Commanding Officer of Attack Squadron FORTY TWO and Lt. Cmdr. Charley Hawkins, an instructor bombardier navigator, also of Attack Squadron FORTY TWO.

Upon arrival at Oceana, Sen. Goldwater was greeted by Vice Adm. R. L. Townsend, Commander Naval Air Force Atlantic Fleet, Capt. Billy Phillips, Commander Readiness Attack Carrier Air Wing FOUR, and Cmdr. T. H. Mathews, Executive Officer of Attack Squadron FORTY TWO. The Senator was accompanied by Capt. L. A. Sneed of the Office of the Chief of Naval Operations. He then suited up in flight gear and received a briefing on the flight in the A6A. During the flight, the pilot, Cmdr. Cramblet, demonstrated the capabilities of the aircraft, including a practice bombing mission. The flight terminated at Andrews Air Force Base, Washington, D.C.

Attack Squadron FORTY TWO trains aircrews and maintenance personnel in the operation and support of the Grumman A6A "Intruder". The "Intruder" has been a mainstay of the Navy carrier forces operating in Southeast Asia. The A6A is capable of accurately delivering over two tons of ordnance on targets obscured by darkness and bad weather.

Va. Bankshares Notes Increases

Herbert C. Moseley, chairman of the board of Virginia Commonwealth Bankshares, today announced that the registered bank holding company's consolidated net operating income for the first quarter of 1969 amounted to $1,124,985... a 34% increase over the same period in 1968.

Moseley told the stockholders at the annual meeting in Richmond that the figure represents net operating income of .71¢ per common share, 20% above the .59¢ figure for the first quarter of 1968. The latter figure, however, is not adjusted for the 10% surtax which was enacted in mid-year 1968, retroactive to January 1. Adjusting the 1968 first quarter figures for the surtax makes the .71¢ first quarter figure this year 25% greater than 1968's per common share figure.

Principals Will Meet

The Elementary School Principals' (DESP-VEA) Conference will be held here at the Americana Motel and the Civic Center on May 2 and 3.

Featured speakers for the conference are Dr. William Pharis of Auburn University, Dr. George B. Redfern, Association Secretary for the American Association of School Administrators and Laurel Pennock, E. E. Brickell, Superintendent of Virginia Beach schools, will also speak.

Capt. W.A. Schroeder, Jr., commanding officer at Naval Air Station Oceana, congratulates Air Operations Department employees Joyce A. Bennett, clerk-typist, and Richard F. Dyer, photographer, on receiving quality step increases for sustained high quality performance in their civil service positions.

In his speech to the South-eastern Virginia Tuberculosis and Health Association Dr. Bruce V. English told of the extreme dangers of air pollution.

In his speech Dr. English said that carbon dioxide may be affecting the weather patterns, conceivably bringing about another ice age.

experienced explains why the city's debt is increasing 160% faster than its income.

If Virginia Beach is to survive as an independent municipal entity, it is quite obvious that it has to increase its municipal revenue. How can this best be done? Is it possible to put Virginia Beach on a sound financial footing? The truth is that Virginia Beach is potentially the wealthiest community in Virginia. The answer lies in the development and encouragement of the proper business climate and the natural business opportunities which exist in the city.

She's Always Traveled a Lot

By Yatta Jones

Miss Sally Armstrong, life science teacher at Bayside High School, enjoys traveling. It's a good thing, too, because her life has been centered around travel of one sort or another.

She was born in Belfast, Ireland. When she was about two and a half years old the family moved to Aruba, an island in the West Indies. The moving was necessitated by her father's position with Standard Oil Company.

While they lived in Aruba they would go back to Ireland every two years excepting the war years. Even though Aruba was attacked by Germany from the sea, she thinks it was one of the best places to be during World War II. For one thing the oil refinery there required that the island be well protected for strategic purposes.

During the war no one was allowed to leave the island. They did not feel cut off from the rest of the world in any way, however. People from surrounding islands would come to Aruba to work the same as always. This mixture of people French, Dutch, British, Danish and American—gave Aruba an international flavor. Sally says, "It was a great place to be brought up...there was no sickness, no prejudice...everyone got along fine."

The beach at Aruba is described by her as "one of the prettiest beaches in the world with white sand and crystal clear water. On a trip to Aruba three years ago Sally was disappointed at what she found: Aruba had become a tourist spot. "The roads were paved...there were new hotels everywhere...I didn't even recognize many places."

Sally feels that the interest she has developed in marine life grew naturally out of living at Aruba. The island is only about 20 miles long and most of the activities there were centered around the water—swimming, sailing, skin diving. Sally still enjoys these sports, but she has to restrict her skin diving because of a twice-burst eardrum.

Sally graduated from Limestone College in South Carolina. From there she went to the University of North Carolina. She received a National Science Foundation Grant to attend UNC and obtained a Master's Degree in Science Education, mainly in the field of botany, from that university. She is still going to school—again on a National Science Foundation Grant. At the present she is taking a course at ODC in marine ecology to keep her prepared for the work she is doing at Bayside.

Sally has taught at Bayside High School for nine years. She developed an interest in the work being done at Bayside in marine biology. Last year she taught in the special city-wide summer session offered at Bayside in this field. She will teach again this year.

She describes the course as "a survey course of marine life from plankton to chordates." The course includes field trips as well as lectures.

It is a strenuous schedule for everyone involved. An ordinary day last year began at 8:30 a.m. and ended at 3 p.m. Students and teachers alike then went back to the library at night.

Sally went with two different groups of students to Okraoke at the end of the summer on an extensive specimen collecting field trip. The groups, of about 25 each, stayed for a week. Accommodations for the groups were a little less than luxurious—they slept in sleeping bags, cooked their own food and bathed in a cold water shower. She also went with another group to Key West during Christmas.

Besides collecting specimens for their own use, the students collected specimens to sell to other schools. It paid for the trips and allowed the other schools to purchase needed specimens at a cheaper price than they would ordinarily pay.

The marine biology course is not continued during the regular school year, but the students organized a club, the Atlantic Ecology Club, that keeps interest up. The students keep the lab all year round.

Parents are almost as enthusiastic about the work as the students are. Many of the students plan to major in marine biology or oceanology when they graduate from Bayside.

Sally feels that the course is successful and the trips are well worth the effort and time involved. She says that the trips stimulate the students' interest and help them absorb facts better by seeing the specimen in their own environment.

In addition she thinks that the experience of travel is good for them. The students learn to cope with new and different situations. As an example Sally said that they catch some of the food they eat on the trips. Included in their diet have been conchs and octopus—"two things I'm sure they wouldn't eat at home."

When asked if there were ever any disciplinary problems on the trips, Sally replied, "None whatsoever...I'm a disciplinarian...when I holler they jump...you work kids hard and you don't have to worry about them...I'm not lenient, I just set down the rules...if anyone causes trouble it's usually because they haven't been disciplined at home."

During the winter months Sally lives right off the beach, but because of the high rent in the summer months she moves in with her mother. Her mother must be an understanding person because she never knows what she might have to live with. One summer Sally took home a gerbil and an iguana. She also looks after raccoons, possums, snakes or whatever else happens to be in the school lab. This is in addition to her dog, a German shepherd.

Her other interests include sewing and painting. She worked for three years on the Boardwalk Art Show Poster Committee. However she might be a little too busy this year to help out.

HANDS Semifinalist

Beach Council Does It Again

For the second time in the three years that Virginia Beach has participated in the Home And Neighborhood Development program sponsored by Sears, Roebuck, the Council of Garden Clubs, Inc. has been named a semifinalist in the Southeastern region.

There are 106 garden club councils competing in the Southeastern region, divided into three categories according to population. There are 35 cities in the category with Virginia Beach including Norfolk, Portsmouth, Newport News, Richmond, Roanoke, Danville, Petersburg and Charlottesville in Virginia alone. Only seven semifinalists are named in each category.

Winners will be announced at the annual HANDS workshop which will be held May 21-23 in Augusta, Ga. This year and will be attended by Mrs. Arthur H. Gallagher, local HANDS chairman. There will be a $500 first prize, $300 second prize and $200 third prize awarded in each category, plus a trophy for first prize winners.

Semifinalists were selected on the basis of summaries each chairman submitted on new and continuing beautification projects within their city. The name of the city was not mentioned in the summary; each summary was given a key number for identification to insure impartiality.

Semifinalists were then notified and had to send in scrapbooks by May 2. The scrapbooks contain before and after pictures of projects, news clippings and documentation of information contained in the summary.

The HANDS program, a nationwide project of Sears, Roebuck to beautify the United States, is in its 11th year. This is the third year the Virginia Beach Council of Garden Clubs, Inc. has participated. The Council was a semifinalist in 1967 also.

Judging will be based on the importance of the projects in its relative significance and total impact on the community, the involvement of other organizations such as civic clubs, scouts, etc.; publicity of projects and support of local news media; participation, the extent of garden clubs participating and the number of people involved; the degree of permanence of the projects; documentation; content and clarity of summary; scrapbook.

According to Mrs. Gallagher, Virginia Beach clubs spent more than $7000 on projects this year not including labor. Besides the clubs which participated in individual projects, the Council has a continuing project of landscaping the grounds of the General Hospital of Virginia Beach and the planting of a crape myrtle trail along Oceana Blvd. to Princess Anne Courthouse. Other phases of city beautification include anti-litter poster contests in the public schools and the selection of the most attractive service stations in the area.

The theme for this year has been "Virginia Beach is a GEM of a city. Join HANDS and Make Everything Glitter." Local first place winners, announced in April, were Arrowhead Garden Club for its new project of a neighborhood park behind Arrowhead Elementary School, and Thoroughgood Garden Club for its continuing project of a neighborhood park at Hermitage Elementary School and beautification of Bayside Post Office.

Business Beautification Is New Cavalier Project

The Cavalier Junior Woman's Club has adopted a program designed to motivate improved appearance standards of local businesses.

Long active in community projects, the club will conduct its program as part of the Business for Beauty competition being sponsored nationally by the General Federation of Woman's Clubs and Cities Service Oil Company.

The primary purpose of the program will be to convince both small and large businesses that simple landscaping and other steps can do much to give their firms a new look. To assist businesses in their work the club will make available a special Business for Beauty Idea Book containing many practical tips on landscaping and other ways of improving the appearance of a property.

All local businesses entering the program will be recognized with certificates of commendation. One local firm will be singled out for additional recognition and go into state competition. Winners from all states will then enter regional and national competition.

The GFWC-CITGO contest will culminate with the naming of six national winners. These businessmen and their wives, accompanied by a representative from the local sponsoring club will receive trips to Washington, D.C. to attend an awards dinner. Cash grants totaling $6,000 will be distributed among the clubs sponsoring the six national winners with a top grant of $2,000.

Mrs. Calvin L. Carter, project chairman, announced this week the entry of the Princess Anne Plaza Merchants Association.

Lynne Pierce To Receive Scholarship

Miss Anne Lynne Pierce, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Pierce of Virginia Beach, is the 1969 recipient of the Louise Reider Scholarship given by the Woman's Club of Chesapeake Beach.

Lynne is a senior at Bayside High School where she is president of the senior class, president of the German Club, chairman of the Tidewater District SCA and a member of the National Honor Society. She also received the DAR Good Citizenship award and was selected as Girl's State delegate this year.

Upon graduation, she plans to attend Longwood College at Farmville, where she hopes to major in history and minor in psychology or German.

Dr. Harmon Bro, ordained minister and former college dean who is now teaching and writing in Virginia Beach, will be May Fellowship Day speaker Friday, May 2 at Bayside Presbyterian Church. The theme for the day is "Beginning Anew." The program will include a talk by Dr. Bro followed by small discussion groups. The program will begin at 10 a.m. and end at 2 p.m. with lunch and a nursery provided.

'My Teacher Said So'

"I've got to have green legotards and a green shirt. My teacher said so," the six-year-old stated flatly.

The occasion is the annual kindergarten spring "happening". I informed Susie that I'd wait until I got a note from her teacher before I bought her anything. Besides, she already has a pair of green stretch pants and a matching shirt.

"They won't do," she argued almost in tears. "I've got to have legotards. My teacher said so."

Well, as these things happen, the note did arrive several days later with a request for green legotards.

"I have to have yellow underpants to wear outside the legotards," now informed the six-year-old. "My teacher said so," she added for emphasis.

"And did your teacher happen to mention where anybody could possibly find green legotards at this time of year?" I could just see little green girls ranging from deep olive to bright emerald all lined up for the production.

"By the way, Susie, just what are you supposed to be anyway?"

"An upside down flower."

By that time I knew better than to ask any further questions.

I was almost afraid to ask the five-year-old what he would have to wear. It didn't make any difference because neither he nor his sister knew. Finally, two weeks after the first note, Bill's teacher sent his "wardrobe requirements." It was with some trepidation that I unfolded it. There is a Santa Claus.

Bill is to be "Jack Be Nimble", and all he needs is a pair of shorts and a white shirt.

I'm still looking forward to seeing the upside down flowers.

From left to right are Mrs. M. K. Geroe, Mrs. J. C. Shepard and Mrs. W. F. Cecil. They were among the 50 ladies attending the Supply Corps' Officers' Wives Club of Tidewater annual Spring Champagne Brunch. The Brunch, which was held at Fort Story Officers' Club, was followed by bridge and bingo.

This Dutch chocolate nut tart is rich and chocolate-y, delicately spiced with cinnamon, cloves and nutmeg.

Dutch Dishes Use Spices

The Dutch, with their scrubbed-up neatness and their passion for very fresh foods, use spices just because they love them.

These are practical, hard-working people living in a north European climate, so they eat heartily. Seafood is very popular, especially that national fish, the herring. Meat is a luxury in the Netherlands because cattle are needed to supply the milk used in cheese and dairy products.

It's not at all surprising that the Dutch are knowing spice-users; for three and a half centuries they acquired much of their wealth in spice trading. Indonesia was known as the Netherlands Indies until less than three decades ago. These far eastern islands, then as now, were rich producers of tropical spices. Nutmeg, mace, cloves, cinnamon, ginger and curry powder are popular. When the Dutch work up a yen for some really bright spicing, they go to one of the many Indonesian restaurants to be found in their country.

Spiced fish cakes and chocolate nut cake are representative

Netherlands dishes. Adaptations of authentic recipes for these come from the test kitchens of the American Spice Trade Association.

CHOCOLADE NOTEN TAART
(Chocolate Nut Cake)
1 pkg. (1 lb. 2 1/2 oz.) devil's food cake mix
3 eggs, separated
2/3 c. cold, unseasoned mashed potatoes
3/4 tsp. ground cinnamon
1/4 tsp. ground cloves
1/4 tsp. ground nutmeg
1 pkg. (2 1/2 oz.) blanched almonds

Combine cake mix with egg yolks, mashed potatoes, cinnamon, cloves, nutmeg and 1 cup water; blend well. Using medium speed of electric mixer beat for 2 minutes or until mixture is smooth. Grind or finely chop almonds (makes about 3/4 cup); stir into batter. Beat egg whites until stiff, but not dry. Gently fold into cake batter. Grease and paper line two 9-inch round cake pans. Spoon batter evenly into pans. Bake in a preheated moderate oven (375 F.) 35 to 40 minutes or until done. Cool in pans 10 minutes. Turn out onto wire racks and continue cooling. Fill and frost with any chocolate or chocolate rum frosting desired. Yield: Two 9-inch cake layers.

VISCHKOEKJES
(Fish Cakes)
1 pkg. (1 lb.) frozen fish fillets, defrosted
6 slices white bread
1/2 c. milk
2 eggs, lightly beaten
2 tbs. butter or margarine, melted
2 tbs. parsley flakes
1 1/2 tps. salt
1/4 tsp. ground black pepper
1/4 tsp. ground nutmeg
Dry bread crumbs
Oil for frying

Arrange fish in a single layer in a large skillet. Cover with boiling water or court bouillon. Bring to boiling; reduce heat and simmer, covered, 5 minutes or until fish flakes. Remove from liquid. Flake fish with a fork. Trim crusts from bread; pour milk over bread to soften. Add fish, eggs, butter, parsley, salt, black pepper and nutmeg; mix well. Shape into 12 patties, using about 1/4 cup mixture for each fish cake. Coat generously with dry bread crumbs. Fry fish cakes in hot oil 1/4-inch deep, about 2 to 3 minutes on each side or until golden brown. Drain and serve. Yield: 6 portions.

Supplement Cotton knit with the texture of terry and the suppleness of jersey is the going thing for spring and summer sportswear. White Stag chooses it for a turtle-neck pullover and shorts for on the beach and after.

Designers Pick Knits

Lean and body-hugging is the way sportswear shapes up for spring and summer.

And, in turn, cotton knits shape up as the fabric most favored for the look.

Knit-picking designers have turned to pure cotton as the naturally ventilated fabric with the soft drapability that allows it to move with the body... a quality just as essential to fashion as to comfort.

According to the National Cotton Council, you'll see more cotton knits this season than ever before. They're turning up in striped tank tops, beach baby shirts, and trim body shirts... in man-tailored culottes and supple polo dresses... in short shorts and long wide-legged pants.

Another reason for the spring swing to cotton knit is the great variety of colors and textures it offers. The old basic colors in knits are giving way to flamboyant and subtle combinations and designers say cotton offers a wider range of color possibilities than any other fabric.

On the bright side, the season's colors run from flame red to Baghdad gold... in shades that rival summer's own brilliance. More subtle are the palest of blues and toast-like neutrals.

Double knits, terry knits, boucles and lises abound in unlimited stripe combinations, solids and floral prints.

HERE COMES OLGA!

Friday night the Cape Henry Shores Garden Club gave a Buffet, card party boutique for the benefit of the Ocean Park Volunteer Fire Department at the Fort Story Officer's Club.

The club is fairly new but quite active, and as I wrote last year the togetherness of these people in things they undertake is very obvious. They worked together. The old expression "the proof is in the pudding" is good to illustrate how they work together. The women had worked, I am sure, very hard when they came up with 80 door prizes. Would you believe 80 door prizes from electric can openers, shrubs, shampoo and set, spices, bowling tickets, hair tonic, Avon products, cakes, ice cream, lube jobs, place mats, everything you could think of even to goldfish and a basketful of wine?

Lt. Cmdr. Tom Betterton and Dick Mautz handled the drawing of numbers for the door prizes and Mrs. Betterton, president of the club, and Mrs. Fred Grube, the vice president, carried the gifts to the people as the numbers were called. After walking back and forth giving out 80 gifts I am sure that both Mrs. Betterton and Mrs. Grube were quite tired unless they had on very comfortable shoes.

It was really quite funny when one of the numbers were called and the gift was hair tonic and a comb. The gentlemen who had the number was bald headed. Everyone of course went into an uproar.

Use Your Noodle

Pasta is popular whether you tend toward spaghetti, macaroni, or good old fashioned noodles; and here is a recipe that turns those "old fashioned noodles" into new fangled goodness!

Cook one eight-ounce package of finely cut egg noodles according to package directions. Drain. Mix noodles with 1/2 cup butter and 1 cup firmly packed brown sugar, until both are melted.

Add one eight-ounce package of diced dates, one tablespoon lemon juice and one beaten egg, and mix well. Bake in greased one-quart casserole at 350 degrees for 30 minutes. Serves six as a delicious side dish!

Tea Honors Members

The Cavalier Junior Women's Club welcomes its membership seven new members: Mrs. J. G. Butler, Mrs. J. H. Payne, Mrs. Michael Burkitt, Jr., Mrs. L. W. McClellan, Mrs. F. S. Melton, Mrs. J. H. Parker, Mrs. Thomas Rose.

Also, transferring her membership from the Fredericksburg Junior Woman's Club is Mrs. Martha Parcell. The new members are guests of honor at an Orientation Tea, Sunday, April 20, at the home of Mrs. Harry Mote.

Parliamentarians Have State Meet

The 12th Annual Convention of The Virginia State Association of the National Association of Parliamentarians will be held at The Hotel Roanoke, Roanoke, May 2-3.

Those from the Tidewater Area on the Board attending are Mrs. Donald D. Funk, parliamentarian; Mrs. Forrest G. Ralford, recording secretary; Mrs. Kenneth C. Gimberty, chairman of bylaws and revision; Mrs. Gideon D. Overman, Jr., chairman of publicity; Mrs. George E. Overby, president of Norfolk Gaveliers Unit, and Mrs. Joseph A. Bilba.

Believe it or not, the ancient Saxons celebrated Dairy Month -- in May, not June, as we do. Their name for May was "Tri-Milch," for it was the season when cows could be milked three times a day. Too bad they didn't have the other makings for that delicious infusion of hot milk with freshly brewed coffee the French call cafe au lait!

Petunias Are Everywhere

(Editor's note: Here is another in the series on home horticulture by Wesley P. Jenkins, Extension horticulturist at Virginia Tech.)

Petunias are everywhere. No flower in recent years has had a more spectacular rise in popularity. It is now one of the most widely planted flowers in the U.S.

The principal reason for the increased interest in petunias is the development of gorgeous new hybrid varieties. Fine showy types are now available in a wide range of colors.

Petunias will flower abundantly during the entire summer. The blooms may be picked with reckless abandon because this will encourage continued flowering. If the plants become too dense in midsummer and a large number of old flowers have slowed down the blooming process, prune the plants back to about four inches high. New growth will start and an abundance of flowers can be expected until frost kills the plants.

Petunias are useful in many places around the home. They provide lavish color as bedding plants where a mass effect is desired. They are excellent as edging plants for the flower bed or border. Petunias are also very useful in front of shrubbery. This is especially true when they are used as a ground cover around small shrubs during the first few years after they are planted.

Petunias are fine plants in this age of container gardening. They are ideal for window boxes or planters. The tubs and urns on your patio or terrace will have extra appeal with petunias. And, they are very useful in hanging baskets.

Petunias are easy to grow and produce an abundance of flowers with a minimum of care. They will grow vigorously in the average garden soil. Work a moderate application of fertilizer into the soil when you spade or rototill your flower bed. Use about three pounds of 5-10-5 per 100 square feet or per 50 feet of row. Scratch it lightly into the soil or mulch with a garden rake.

Be sure to water your flower garden, or petunias in containers regularly. However, use good judgment, because excess water or fertilizer may reduce flowering. Petunias are quite free from insect and disease problems so you need not worry about spraying.

The petunia is more useful as a cut flower for arrangements than most folks appreciate. The flowers will last for several days. They are very attractive in mixed bouquets. The frilly pure white double variety Bridal Bouquet, is as the name implies, very good for use in the wedding bouquet.

Many types and colors of petunias are now available. The small single varieties have flowers two or three inches in diameter. The blooms of the large singles may be five inches in diameter. The new hybrids have solid, mottled, striped or veined colors, in white and shades of pink, red, blue and violet. Some have a striking five star marking.

The new double petunias should be included in every garden. The blooms vary in size from two to four inches in diameter. They are available in many colors including white and shades of pink and violet.

You may think that pruning time is already past, but for early spring flowering plants, it is just arriving. Such plants should be pruned immediately after they bloom so that they can have time to grow and form bloom buds for next spring.

Such plants as forsythia, spirea, quince and azalea fall into this category.

Plants should be pruned so that their natural habit can be maintained. Thus, in pruning forsythia and spirea, one keeps the plant rejuvenated in their naturally graceful forms by pruning out the old canes. When pruning quince, you will want to clip back to a side branch in addition to rejuvenating it by clipping out the older branches. Azaleas are pruned very little, and mostly only when they have been allowed to become overgrown. Thus, it is generally a process of lowering the bush which can be drastically cut in early spring following bloom and then allowed to grow back in low bush form.

To clean coated starch from your steam iron, rub the soleplate with a damp pad of soapy fine steel wool. When it's clean, wipe out steam vents with a cotton swab. Heat and rub over a kitchen towel before ironing.

Create an Outdoor Gameroom

A yard or garden these days has become more than simply an attractive setting for the house it surrounds. More and more families are considering the yard as an extension of the indoor living space, and look for ways to create different kinds of activity areas. A good idea for your spring gardening this year may be to plant an outdoor gameroom.

The kind of play area you design will depend, of course, on the size of your family and its recreational interests. Some suggestions from the American Association of Nurserymen may make your planning easier.

The Nurserymen suggest that you plan the play area for flexibility. Children dogrow and their interests change.

For example, the recessed sand box you make this spring can be remodeled into a reflecting pool some future year when the youngsters have outgrown that sort of entertainment. If you provide some paved area for bicycles, skates and sidewalk games, it can later become a shuffleboard court if your original design takes that revision into account.

The play area for the little folks should be located near to the house with all of the various elements as close together as possible for easy maintenance. A four foot hedge surrounding the play area will be an attractive addition to the yard while it provides limited screening and acts as a sound barrier.

For the older children and the adults in the family some space should be set aside for sports activities, if possible it should be a fairly large area somewhat removed from the rest of the outdoor living room.

Do You Welcome Burglars?

Because burglars, even more than most people, enjoy visiting a comfortable home or apartment, it pays to keep their tastes in mind next time you move.

Not having a key is a terrible bother when one wants to pay a surprise call without disturbing anyone, so burglars prefer places that have had previous occupants.

Especially choice is an apartment house in which many employees, over the years, have had access to the keys. Also popular among burgling boys are homes in well-to-do neighborhoods where maids are sometimes employed and sometimes disgruntled, and sometimes the victim of purse pickers or snatchers who get their keys.

The standard of living among burglars would not be as high as it is today, however, if the gentlemen of stealth had to rely on employees and servants for keys; often, the homeowner himself is more than glad to provide a key. At times, indeed, he finds it a convenience to do so, hence he leaves a key under the welcome mat, or atop a ledge or in the mailbox, or just behind the tree where no one will look.

There's booty in beauty for the crook on the look. Breathes there the woman who keeps her eye firmly glued to her purse every second that she's ever in a beauty salon?

Keys! Keys! Have you ever wondered what happens to the millions and millions of them that are made every year? What happens is that many of them get lost—and found—and used again.

In a good neighborhood, a well furnished home or apartment is an especially inviting target. In a poorer neighborhood, some people may have an especially strong need for funds. And neighborhoods are important to consider, for no concerned, it will take more than a stern attitude on your part to keep them away, but some concrete measures will be helpful.

1. Change the lock immediately when you move to a house or apartment. On a pin-tumbler cylinder lock, the most popular kind of security reasons, a locksmith can easily replace the cylinder with a new one.

2. Add an auxiliary lock with a chain, and persuade the co-defenders of your manse to use the chain when seeing "who's there."

3. Remember the little-used back door when it comes to changing locks and adding an extra one. It's no place for a guest to turn up, but the etiquette of the crook is not exemplary.

4. On first and second story windows—and on those higher up, that are accessible by fire escape or tree—adding a window lock may help prevent a hole in your security program.

5. Try to avoid giving keys to deliverymen and other non-family members. Even the most scrupulously honest person may lose his keys or have them stolen.

6. Don't "protect yourself" by leaving your name and address in your key case. It's better to have a spare set of keys, take your loss if you lose your main set, and simply change the locks.

In a good neighborhood, a well furnished home or apartment is an especially inviting target. In a poorer neighborhood, some people may have an especially strong need for funds. And neighborhoods are important to consider, for no matter where you live, saving a few dollars on locks and keys may run your loss into the neighborhood of several thousand dollars.

Use the security measures you should, on the other hand, and more than one prospective burglar may be led to feel of your place: "It's a nice place to live, but I wouldn't want to visit there."

Gatorade Makes Debut

Gatorade, a unique beverage originally developed to help slake the thirst of professional and amateur athletes, is now available to Tidewater homeowners whose families work up a big thirst using "leisure" time as if they were training for the U. S. Olympic Team.

Stokely-Van Camp, Inc., marketers of the drink, will soon begin distributing Gatorade to stores throughout Tidewater according to spokesmen for the Indianapolis-based company.

The non-carbonated, lemony-lime drink may be just what mother ordered for thirsty week-end sportsmen, do-it-yourselfers and for frenetic youngsters who insist on chugging lugging quart-sized drinks between games and the bugaloos.

Developed at the University of Florida in 1964, Gatorade slakes thirst faster because it is absorbed more rapidly than water. A blend of water, glucose and salts, Gatorade can be consumed by active people freely during periods of physical exertion.

Make Room Larger

Have a room in your house that gives you claustrophobia? United-DeSoto suggests that small scale wallcovering designs in light colors can make a room seem larger.

Large-scale wallcovering patterns can do the trick, too, providing the designs are spaced so that a great deal of open background shows through. Stay away from strong, dark colors and elaborate, heavy designs.

Weather Stops Schedule Again

April showers postponed spring sports of Virginia Beach high schools again Tuesday, as they did last week. Although the rain had stopped, fields were too wet. The baseball games were reset for Wednesday.

Princess Anne was doggedly trying to hang on to its slim lead in the Eastern District in a game with the Norview Pilots. In other games, Kellam was at Cox, and Granby hosted First Colonial.

All of last Tuesday's rain outs were played Wednesday also. At that time Princess Anne mastered Cox easily in a four-hit shutout, 6 to 0, and First Colonial shutout Kellam, 3 to 0, two of the runs coming on Kellam errors. In Thursday baseball, Bayside scored three runs in the seventh inning and John Gait hit one out of the park for a 4-3 decision over Norview.

Then on Friday Bayside took another one, this one from Cox, 4 to 1. Princess Anne continued its winning ways with an easy victory over First Colonial, 6 to 2. Granby battered Kempville with a 12 to 1 two-hit victory. Monday PA barely got by Kempville, 1 to 0.

Baseball action Friday finds Cox at First Colonial, Kellam at Maury, Princess Anne at Lake Taylor and Kempville at Bayside. Saturday Princess Anne plays Wilson of Portsmouth in an inter-district game.

In tennis the week began on Monday for Virginia Beach schools.

Cox defeated Booker T, 7 to 2. In Tuesday matches First Colonial was to meet Kellam; Norview was to face Bayside; and Princess Anne had a match scheduled with Kempville. Those rains out were rescheduled for Wednesday.

Last Wednesday, Tuesday's rain out matches were played. Cox passed First Colonial easily, 8 to 1; Kellam downed Princess Anne by the identical score; and Bayside topped Kempville, 7 to 2. On Thursday Maury shutout First Colonial, 9 to 0.

Friday afternoon, Maury took Bayside, 8 to 1; Booker T, topped Princess Anne, 9 to 0; First Colonial edged Norview, 5 to 3; Kellam was beaten by Lake Taylor, 8 to 1, and Cox shutout Kempville, 7 to 0.

Friday the Eastern District tennis tournament begins at Lakewood Park. The finals will be held there Saturday.

The only track this week is Saturday at Foreman Field where the areas' best meet head-one for the Eastern District track meet. Trials and field events begin at 10 a.m., with the finals starting at 1:30 p.m. The only Virginia Beach school which figures prominently in the meet is First Colonial.

Consistent winner in the sprinting events, Les Whitehorse is expected to place well in his events. In addition,

Traffic Signals Are Aid

Traffic signals help to control traffic, but they do not automatically insure safe pedestrian movement. To prevent serious accidents, drivers and pedestrians must take their own extra safety precautions before venturing into the street.

"Children need to be taught that traffic signals are only an aid to safe crossing," reports Frank W. Cox, Director, Tidewater Automobile Association (AAA). "A green light not only tells pedestrians to walk; it also permits drivers to make right - hand turns into their crosswalk. And sometimes the red and green light do not coincide with 'WALK' and 'DON'T WALK' pedestrian directives. Other intersections may have green arrows or added signals for drivers which further complicate pedestrian movements. It is absolutely necessary that children take two precautions before crossing: first, wait for the proper light; and second, look both ways and around the corner before venturing into the street.

"Even when all the signals indicate safe crossing," he continued, "there is still the danger of a preoccupied or careless driver not observing the light, or a car with faulty brakes not making a complete stop in time.

"Tell your children that a red light always means 'stop'. A green light, however, does not mean 'go' until after they have stopped and have looked carefully around."

A winning poster from AAA's National School Traffic Safety Poster Contest, is being displayed in schools throughout the country as a part of AAA's nation-wide school traffic safety program.

ODC Team to Perform

There will be a promotional demonstration by the Old Dominion College men's gymnastic team tomorrow night at First Colonial High School.

Stephen Harris Jr. of 68th Street, has been appointed a property damage claim representative for the Eastern Office of the State Farm Mutual Automobile Insurance Co.

Exchange Foursome Like Beach

First Colonial High School is host this week to four students from Colonel White High School in Dayton, Ohio as part of an exchange program between the two schools.

The students from Dayton--David Conney, John Margolis, Judy Kiser and Cathy Carrigan--are all seniors. They have been accompanied by a faculty advisor, E. E. Hausfeld. They arrived last Saturday and will be here for the remainder of the week.

David Conney, son of Mr. and Mrs. David E. Conney Sr., is the Senior Class president at Colonel White High School. He is interested in the theatre and music and plans to attend Ohio State University. David says that everyone in Virginia Beach has extended a warm welcome to the group. "I would like to thank everyone...your people, school and city are most deserving of a 'Hats Off'...thanks a lot."

John Margolis, son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Margolis, has been active at his school in the Pep Club, Varsity Club and Student Council. John plans to attend Washington and Lee University, going into either medicine or law. John comments, "I really think the Beach is great. It's a fantastic place to live."

Judy Kiser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Alcorn, is secretary of the school's Senior Class. She plans to major in education for the retarded at Wright State University in Dayton. Judy says she is enjoying the beach and the school, "but most of all, the great kids."

The remaining student, Cathy Carrigan, could not be reached for a comment. However, she was heard saying that there are some cute boys in the Senior Class at First Colonial High School!

The Dayton students spoke to the entire student body of First Colonial High School earlier this week. They have attended classes at First Colonial with hosts and hostesses that are assigned to them each day.

Some of the activities they have planned for this week include a visit to MacArthur Memorial, a beach buggy ride at Sandbridge, a visit to a surfboard factory, an evening at the Cavalier Dinner Playhouse, tours to Williamsburg and Jamestown and tours to the various military installations. Yesterday the group met Mayor Dusch and visited Princess Anne Court House.

Two weeks ago four students from First Colonial--Kathi Mercer, Linda Miller, "Cotton" Marker, and Bucky Lawler--spent a week at Dayton. The exchange program was initiated by Colonel White High School's Student Council.

Scholarship House Begins

The groundbreaking ceremony for the 1969 TAHB Scholarship House was to take place at 10:30 a.m. today in the Kings Grant area of Virginia Beach. Howard M. Welsberg, President of the Tidewater Association of Home Builders, announced that Mayor Frank A. Dusch of Virginia Beach was to be the guest of honor at the ceremony.

As in the past three years, all profits from the sale of the TAHB Scholarship House will be used to help finance the education of needy, local students. Profits from the Scholarship Houses are unusually high because the TAHB builders, subcontractors, and suppliers involved provide their labor and materials free of charge.

This year, the Connor and Foy Construction Corp. will build the Scholarship House. A 2-story, 4-bedroom Colonial, it will feature such luxuries as a state-of-the-art foyer with a curved staircase to the second floor, a large brick fireplace in the living room, and a self-cleaning double oven in the eat-in kitchen. The 1969 Scholarship House will be in the $38,000 to $40,000 price range and will be a showcase example of the builder's art. Charles E. Dalby of Walker Realty will act as sales agent for the house.

Many local dignitaries were expected to attend the groundbreaking on May 1st. Among these are: Roger M. Scott, city manager of Virginia Beach; E. E. Brickell, superintendent of the Virginia Beach Schools; G. Dewey Simmond, Jr., councilman for Lynnhaven Borough; John E. Gibbs, Virginia Beach superintendent of inspections and zoning; Lewis W. Webb, Jr., L. D., president of Old Dominion College; Lambuth M. Clarke, M.A., president of Virginia Wesleyan College; and Lyman B. Brooks, Ph.D., president of Virginia State College. The following officials of the Tidewater Association of Home Builders were also expected to be on hand: Howard M. Welsberg, president; David A. Howard and Bernard Kroll, vice-presidents; William J. Fanney, treasurer; Joseph C. Addington, Jr., secretary; Lawrence A. Sancio, chairman of the Scholarship Foundation Committee; Frank Spadea, chairman of the Scholarship House Committee; TAHB Directors Laszlo Aranyi, Edward P. Brogan, Stuart Buxbaum, Myron J. ## Instructor Earns Award

The Navy League of the United States has awarded the 1968 Adm. Claude V. Ricketts Award to Master Chief Petty Officer Louis A. Maurelli, an instructor at the Guided Missiles School, Dam Neck.

One of only two enlisted men selected Navy-wide for the award, Chief Maurelli and his wife will be guests of the Navy League in Washington, D.C., where the Award will be presented at the Awards Luncheon on May 22, during the National Convention of the Navy League (20-24 May).

The Adm. Claude V. Ricketts Award is awarded to the Navy enlisted man who, by his traditional performance of duty, has demonstrated outstanding leadership and the professional competence required by his rate. Chief Maurelli has twice received letters of commendation from the Commanding Officer at the Guided Missiles School, and is active in civic affairs as well.

A resident of Portsmouth, Chief Maurelli serves as vice president of the Parent-Teachers Association for Holy Angels School, Chairman of the Portsmouth Catholic Adult Education Program, and serves his church as a member of the Nocturnal Adoration Society, and as a Commentator for Mass.

Drive Reaches Midpoint

Citizens of Virginia Beach recently received a letter seeking funds for the work of the Children's Home Society of Virginia.

There is a constant growing need for funds to take care of Virginia infants in need of adoption. The last five years have seen the number of parents seeking adoption for their babies through the Society increased as follows: 457 in 1964, 497 in 1965, 531 in 1966, 527 in 1976 and 567 in 1968.

The number of babies received into care in the same years was 209 in 1964, 222 in 1965, 198 in 1966, 201 in 1967 and 199 in 1968. It takes a lot of money to give a baby food, shelter, clothing, medical care, etc., during the period before it is placed with adoptive parents. This service is called "Preplacement Service," which cost the Society $119,779.23, or 32.3% of the expense budget in 1968.

The number of babies placed for adoption in the same period was: 194 in 1964, 205 in 1965, 195 in 1966, 188 in 1967 and 181 in 1968. $157,824.34, or 42.68% of the 1968 expense budget was used for this "Placement Service."

The number of babies your Society had to turn away because of limited funds, in the same years was: 141 in 1964, 146 in 1965, 255 in 1966, 184 in 1967 and 193 in 1968. What happens to these babies? There are few local or sectarian voluntary agencies which offer adoption service. But, County or City Departments of Public Welfare are the main resources.

The Children's Home Society of Virginia was created in 1900 by public-spirited Virginians. Its work is state-wide in scope and its Board of Directors and Board of Sponsors include representatives from all sections of the Old Dominion. Sponsors representing Virginia Beach are: Mrs. G. ## Renovations Improve Meal Time Dining facilities were reopened this week at the Bachelor Officers' Quarters aboard the Fleet Anti-Air Warfare Training Center, following a nine-week renovation project.

The 311-thousand worth of renovations saw the addition of air conditioning throughout the building, but the changes were most evident in an addition to the dining room and galley. The new facilities will seat 160 guests compared to 56 previously. Meals for 500 persons can be prepared in the enlarged galley.

Since March 10, the more than 200 officers assigned to the Center and its tenant commands have utilized the mess facilities of the Dam Neck General Mess, the Navy Exchange and the NAS Oceana Commissioned Officers' Mess.

The reopening featured free beer and soft drinks and a special menu.

Families of the returning pilots await their arrival at Oceana NAS.

Air Group Is Welcomed Home

Excitement was the order of the day Monday at Oceana Naval Air Station.

Dependents and friends were on hand to welcome home the officers and men of Attack Carrier Air Wing Seventeen (CVW-17), Fighter Squadrons Eleven (VF-11) and Seventy-Four (VF-74).

The air group returned from a nine-month deployment with the Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean Sea aboard the attack aircraft carrier USS Forrestal (CVA-59).

During the deployment, the ship and its air wing team amassed more than 14,000 catapult launches and arrested landings, and more than 5,000 instrument approaches to carrier landings.

Public Invited to Production

"The Sound of Music" would be an ambitious undertaking for almost any group to produce, but that has not discouraged students, teachers and parents at Trantwood Elementary School. "Scenes from Sound of Music" will be presented as the school's annual spring program and the public is invited. Performances will be at 7:30 p.m. Friday, May 9 and Saturday May 10 in the school auditorium.

About 200 people are involved in the production. Members of the fifth, sixth and seventh grade chorus (146 students) are a large part of the total. Students have made or furnished all the scenery and props. There are 11 scenes including everything from a monastery to mountains.

Miss Susie Clark is director and Mrs. Hunter Vick is choreographer and music consultant. Lula Franklin, a seventh grader who has studied piano from preschool days, is accompanist.

The cast includes: Larua Soles, Maria; David Sherrill, Captain Von Trapp; Denise Joyner, Richard Marlow, Linda

Beach Negotiates For Site

A proposal for the City of Virginia Beach to lease part of Seashore State Park for an elementary school site and recreation area is still in the negotiation stage.

The 65 acres is used by the 4-H Club during the summer and is at the north end of Virginia Beach around 89th Street. "It doesn't interfere with the State Park master plan because Shore Drive and Fort Story cut it off from the rest of the park," said Harold Whitehurst, parks and recreation director.

If negotiations with the Board of Conservation and Economic Development are worked out favorably, an elementary school will be built to serve north Virginia Beach. In addition a recreation area would be developed. Del. B. R. Middleton is handling the negotiations for the City.

Ben H. Bolen, state parks commissioner, has said he would recommend to his board that the state lease the land to the city.

'Friends' Seek Money

Funds for library books and materials will be the priority challenge in the 1969 "Friends of Virginia Wesleyan" programs.

Plans were announced following a meeting of the steering committee by Paul Schweitzer, 1969 general chairman of this annual program, designed to seek financial assistance for operating support for Virginia Wesleyan College from individuals and businesses.

Much of Wesleyan's operating budget is met by student fees and an annual appropriation from the Virginia Conference of the United Methodist Church. Virginia Wesleyan is a Methodist-related institution although the college has representatives of ten different religious affiliations, including the three major faiths, in the student body during the current academic session.

Schweitzer announced the selection of four city chairmen for Norfolk, Portsmouth, Virginia Beach and Chesapeake. The Norfolk Chairman is Philip S. Farrand, president of Cavalier Ford. Portsmouth chairman is A. J. Lancaster, Jr., president of Coleman Nursery. Walter N. Carroll, recently designated as the new Director of Secondary Education for the Virginia Beach Public Schools and principal of Cox High School since 1961, will be Virginia Beach chairman. Chesapeake city chairman will be Townsend Oast, president of the Peoples Bank of Chesapeake.

Each chairman will have a local committee to assist him in developing the "Friends" program in his area. The city chairmen will all serve as members of the "Friends" steering committee.

Industry Begins to Recognize Beach Potential

Virginia Beach may well be on the brink of change. Industry, after many years of effort by city officials, is finally beginning to recognize the potential of the city.

The result could be rather startling. If only a few of the large industries currently interested in the city, finally do locate here, according to city officials.

The move toward attracting industry has not been an easy task. Through the Industrial Development Commission, Tidewater Virginia Development Council and the state's industry-hunting facilities, interest in open space in Virginia Beach has been heightened.

The city established an industrial park at Lynnhaven, but until the completion of the expressway, interest in locating there was nil. Now with current purchases and options only one more parcel remains for sale there. The Nautical Boat Works began construction recently, the first building to rise there.

With the successful bidding on the PennCentral Railroad property at Little Creek recently the city has large acreage, some of it on the waterfront, that is extremely important to industry. Within the next few years, Virginia Beach could become an industrial center, sharing with the agricultural and resort industries.

A number of private sites are also under consideration for location of industry, according to L. Dean Curtis, director of the Industrial Development Authority.

He told City Council Monday of many of the industrial inquiries that have been received lately, but added that it is a tricky business, since much secrecy must be maintained until negotiations are actually completed.

Curtis said that clearing has been completed on the 183-acre site at Little Creek, and that the land is excellent. He pointed out that the elevations there are higher than in many other parts of Virginia Beach. Little of the land needs to be filled, according to Curtis.

Two of the waterfront areas there have been rented for $50 a month on a month-to-month basis. Curtis said several companies are interested in leasing an old quonset hut there, one company for five years. The company also wants an option to buy.

He said one plant wants 40 acres of the land, and another wants five acres on Diamond Springs Road. There would appear to be official agreement now that nothing will be done there until "prudent planning" of the entire area is completed.

There is also feeling that the acres south of Shore Drive should be developed first. Curtis and others feel that a planning consultant should be hired to work out an organized plan for the entire tract. At the Industrial Commission meeting Tuesday Curtis and chairman Frank Kellam discussed the matter further and heard a proposal by the engineering firm of Langley & McDonald for engineering services there.

While the city's park at Lynnhaven is expected to be valued at near $1 million by the end of this year and while the Little Creek park continues to enjoy high interest, private land in Virginia Beach is also coming under sharp scrutiny by potential industrial developers.

The commission said Tuesday the major company wants 125 acres of private land and has an option to purchase. Sources say it is a manufacturing plant, possibly dealing in electronics.

Curtis confirmed that negotiations had been underway since February.

There is also a feeling that the waterfront area of the Little Creek park should be specialized, possibly with industry that could serve the navy at nearby Little Creek. Navy plans to dredge the channel there are also important to Virginia Beach, and Curtis said the Navy is cooperating fully. While the proposed 26-foot depth will not allow for the largest of ships, it will be sufficient for most commerce.

Curtis said he felt the next step at Little Creek would be to get a road through, get proper planning and try to find a major large tenant around which to base the entire operation.

New areas of the Lynnhaven Park have also been reclaimed from marshland, and Curtis told Council that plans are not (See "Industry," p. 2)

Council Considers Elections

City Council held another marathon informal session Monday, which brought a parade of individuals to the conference room for discussions with City Manager Roger Scott and Councilmen.

John B. James, city electoral board chairman, asked City Council to defer action on a recommendation the board made some months ago. Last winter, after long lines developed at many of the city's larger precincts, the board decided to split at least six precincts.

James told Council that the new precincts are still needed but that problems concerning locations, new registration books and other mechanics make it nearly impossible to complete the task before the July 15 primary.

He said that finishing the voter list purge and completing the up-to-date voter lists should receive top priority between now and then. The purge has been going on for some time, but Mrs. Anna Cotten, general registrar said it is impossible for her and her one assistant to finish the job by July. Council agreed to hire two assistants to help complete the task by primary time.

Locations of new precinct sites was also discussed. Council asked that James and his board make the recommendations and that it will help implement plans.

In other election matters Scott informed Council that City Attorney Harry Marshall said charter changes would be needed to change elections in the city. There is talk of eliminating the Councilmatic primary. Scott said Marshall would fully inform Council of any changes that need to be made if the desire to eliminate the primaries is carried out. The changes would be made by the 1970 session of the Virginia General Assembly.

A long discussion was held concerning new sewage disposal rates in Virginia Beach Borough and in other areas where the city owns the lines. The city has proposed an ordinance that would allow for a reduction of the flat rate outside the borough from $10.50 to $6 when the lines are tied in with those of Hampton Roads Sanitation District this summer. The HRSD fee of about $4.50 per household per quarter would then keep the rate about the same. The city owns lines in Point-Of-View, Lakeville Estates, Larkspur and parts of Kempsville. But the rate in the old borough would jump as high as 350 per cent under the ordinance, mostly because the rate has been held so low over recent years.

Because of the way the new plan would affect motel and hotels, Councilman John McCombs questioned the new flat rate proposal. He said it would be fairer to base the fee on the metered water used. Other possibilities were suggested by Dept. of Public Utilities Director Worth Petty, and Scott was asked to investigate three different ways of drawing the ordinance so that it can be passed in some form next week, in time to meet the HRSD deadline. The new lines will be used in the borough about May 15. Council also agreed informally to participate in the hiring of a full-time forest warden for the city, at a cost of about $3,000 a year. The state pays part of the salary and all expenses.

Plans for City Hall Day, June 1, were also discussed with Council by Asst. City Manager David Norman. He said a nationally-known speaker is still being sought for the event, but that other plans, including the laying of the cornerstone for the new Administration Building, are proceeding well.

Candidates Occupy Quarters

Richard Guy has opened his campaign headquarters officially. Bruce Murphy is readying his headquarters. The signs were being painted at the beginning of the week. And Rhias Adams and B. R. Middleton have named a legal advisory committee.

That's the latest on the four aspirants for the two seats owned by Virginia Beach in the House of Delegates. All four are running in the July Democratic primary. Last Thursday evening Guy opened his headquarters at 2539

Virginia Beach Blvd. near London Bridge. About 100 people attended the opening.

He said he has not dismissed the idea of a ticket with Murphy but pointed out that he had made no moves in that direction. "I'm leaving the door open to Murphy," he said.

He said the Adams-Middleton ticket is running as "a fledgling machine", apparently referring to their close ties with City Treas. V. A. Etheridge who put the ticket together. Guy revealed in his platform that the major issues on which he will seek nomination will center around aggressive representation in the legislature, taxes, education, the tourist industry, law enforcement, drugs and development of community facilities.

He said he hoped to get the support of independent thinking voters in the city.

Asked specifically if he expected support from the Organization, Guy said, "I hope to get a great deal of support from voters who have voted for the Organization in the past." (See "Candidates," p. 2)

Dedication ceremonies of the city's new boat ramp will be held tomorrow.

Interest In Survey New Ramp Opens

Is Slight

There was apparently little interest in last week's SUN SURVEY question. Fewer replies were received than in recent weeks. Considering the controversy recently over taxes and how city money is spent, the lack of response was somewhat surprising.

Of those who replied to the question, "Should the city of Virginia Beach continue to acquire land by condemnation in its city hall complex at Princess Anne, no matter what the cost is as set by the courts?" 26 per cent said "Yes" and 74 per cent said "No".

At this time several condemnation suits there are pending and the city has now moved to dismiss one celebrated case on the grounds that the award by the court was too high. Other steps will undoubtedly be taken to rearrange the municipal complex.

While the public opinion poll does not profess to represent the thinking of all residents of Virginia Beach, it does represent the thinking of a cross section of those who took time to clip it and return it to us. Your attention is called to this week's SUN SURVEY question also, which appears below in the box at the lower left corner of this page.

Each week a new question will appear and the results will be published the following week. The questions will be timely, and the more answers we receive, the more responsible the opinion.

Woman Injured

A Virginia Beach woman is reported making satisfactory recovery from injuries received in an accident Sunday night which claimed the life of a Portsmouth man.

Officials said Mrs. Geraldine Knox, 27, of Park Avenue, received head and internal injuries in the accident which claimed the life of Samuel A. Harris, 41, of Portsmouth.

According to investigators Harris' auto went out of control as he was driving through Fort Street and overturned several times on Atlantic Avenue near 32nd Street. Both Harris and Mrs. Knox were thrown from the vehicle. Harris died at the scene. Mrs. Knox was placed under intensive medical care at Norfolk General Hospital.

Harris, a retired Army man, was employed at chief cook at the Fort Story Officer's Club. Mrs. Knox is employed as a waitress at the club.

narrow at the ramp area just off General Booth Blvd. It was noted that a number of boats were seen speeding in the channel, setting up dangerous conditions.

Signs prohibiting speeds which will cause a wake are expected to be erected in the next few days and police enforcement is also expected to help curb the problem.

The four-acre site was given to the City by the State during the last regular session of the Virginia General Assembly in 1968, but construction was delayed on the ramp until last winter. The ramp had been expected to be in operation last summer. The ramp, parking area and all related facilities were built at a cost of about $50,000, paid for by the Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries and the State Bureau of Outdoor Recreation.

Representatives of those organizations have been invited (See "Ramp," p. 2)

Speeding Stories Have Different Endings

Lt. Gov. Fred G. Pollard, now a candidate for Governor of Virginia in the July Democratic primary, is not the first official to receive a speeding ticket in Virginia Beach. But the outcome has not been the same.

Pollard was invited to appear in Virginia Beach Municipal Court on May 16 for driving 60 m.p.h. in a 45 m.p.h. speed zone on Shore Drive last week, his first ticket in 15 years.

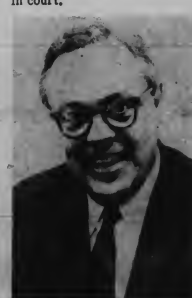

But according to a state law invoked by one of his gubernatorial opponent's campaign manager in Virginia Beach, had Pollard received the ticket about ten days earlier he would have been immune.

Virginia Beach State Sen. Edward T. Caton III, William Battle's campaign manager in the gubernatorial campaign in Virginia Beach, was charged with driving at 80 m.p.h. through radar in Virginia Beach on Feb. 28, 1968. The ticket received no publicity at the time, however, and Caton was successful in efforts to keep the case from court because of a state law barring arrest of a legislator while the legislature is in session.

Pollard's term as president of the state Senate had ended just a few days before the speeding ticket in Virginia Beach.

Since that time Pollard has paid his fine and will not have to appear in court. Under the law the fine may be paid ahead of the scheduled court date, thus precluding an appearance in court.

Pollard

Pollard was on his way to a meeting with campaign workers at the Americana. He was driving his black Cadillac bearing the license plate 1A. He explained that he saw the officer behind him and glanced at his speedometer at the time. Seeing that it was "reading 55", he continued, only to be called to a halt by a flashing red light just west of Pleasure House Road.

The Lt. Gov. said he thought the limit was 55 in that area as it is on many other sections of Shore Drive. The limit varies on the road.

He arrived late for his meeting.

Caton's case, however, never reached Municipal Court. Within a few days after the alleged violation, he wrote to a Municipal Court Judge seeking exemption by virtue of being a member of the Virginia General Assembly, which was then in session.

He cited Section 46 of the Virginia Constitution in asking to be excused. That section reads, in part, "Members of the General Assembly shall, in all cases except treason, felony or breach of peace be privileged from arrest during the sessions of their respective houses... They shall not be subject to arrest during the sessions of the General Assembly, or the 15 days before the beginning or after the ending of any session."

Attorneys with whom the matter has been discussed feel that Caton should not have been excused from the speeding summons altogether, but that the case should have been postponed until after the time specified in the Constitution.

They say the intent of the law in their opinion is to insure that members of the General Assembly will be available at all times during the sessions and that the section simply makes certain that the business of the Assembly will not be stymied because a member must appear in court or be detained in jail or any other place.

They add emphatically that this section of the state Constitution does not give any member of the Virginia General Assembly the right to break the law as he sees fit.

They also point out that Caton's signature on the speeding summons would apparently show that he accepted and admitted to the arrest at the time.

While the language of the section may be circumspect, the attorneys say they believe the only intention is to guarantee no interference with the workings of the legislature, not to guard a member against eventual trial or conviction.

Caton's letter, however, was accepted by the Municipal Court in Virginia Beach, and the case never came to trial.

Pollard said he is not really upset about the incident. He said he hopes to come back to Virginia Beach to congratulate the young officer who ticketed him.

Not resisting the chance to campaign, Pollard said that the officer did the right thing, and that the only way highway safety can be effective in Virginia is through dedicated police officers who treat everyone the same.

Upon hearing that some effort had been made to get him special consideration in the matter by a court clerk in Virginia Beach, Pollard said he had not sought any preferential treatment and was unaware of any attempts in his behalf.

Capt. William A. Schroeder, Jr., Oceana NAS C.O., witnessed Mayor Frank A. Dusch signing the proclamation which officially proclaimed Saturday, May 17 as Armed Forces Day in Virginia Beach.

Building May Set Record

The building industry in Virginia Beach is having a good year so far, and the value of permits issued through April 30 is running slightly ahead of last year at the same time.

Industry

being made to utilize that area. He added that the resort industry is also destined to grow around Rudee Inlet, and the city is still working with a restaurant and marina developer on the city-owned property there. He told Council that the Rudee channel is open and clear and that plans are being made to seek U. S. Army Corp. of Engineers help in maintaining the channel and sand trap. He reported also that the dredge is being modified to get the trap to its desired 18-foot depth. He said the Erosion Commission is doing everything in its power to keep the channel open and that the Rudee area has great potential where the resort industry is concerned.

Thus in a city where only the beaches and the farms once attracted newcomers, the wheels of industry are beginning to turn. It should be a welcome change in a city strapped with growing municipal needs. Industry will certainly help broaden the much-needed tax base.

In 1968 only the month of December was far off the pace. This caused the city to fall only a few thousand dollars off the record pace set in 1965. If things continue to go as they have in 1969, all indications are that they will, this year could set a new record.

So far this year the total value of permits issued through April is $23,636,344, only $8,332 ahead of the $23,628,012 last year. April 1969 ran $168,518 ahead of last year, with a total value of permits in April 1969 at $7,354,611, as compared to $7,186,093 last April.

Commercial development helped boost the April 1969 total considerably. A total of $1,056,055 in commercial permits were issued. The largest commercial buildings were the new boat manufacturing plant in the Lynnhaven Industrial Park and some of the buildings for Haygood Shopping Center on Independence Blvd.

Also in April 174 single-family residence permits were issued, with a total value of $3,588,740. Townhouse and apartment permits were off measurably. Only 110 unit permits were issued at a value of $1,140,366.

A number of new multi-family developments are scheduled to be started soon, and the townhouse and apartment value is expected to remain high for most of the rest of the year.

Skinner Bound Over

Nicholas Lee Skinner, during a preliminary hearing Wednesday before Juvenile Court Judge Mary R. Speight, was bound over to a Circuit Court grand jury on charges of abduction, burglary, attempted murder and rape charges.

Skinner, a 21-year-old Negro of Weaver Drive, has been charged by police with alleged attacks on a 16-year-old white girl while she was baby sitting in a Fair Meadows Estates home in the early morning hours of March 29.

The girl was shot twice then dragged from the home, by an assailant who forced his way into the dwelling, then raped in a nearby wooded region.

During Wednesday's court proceeding no request was made to change Skinner's bond which earlier had been set at a total of $80,000.

City Manager Roger Scott has accepted an invitation to preside as Grand Marshal for the parade. A highlight of the day will be crowning of the Queen of May chosen from three young ladies who are vying for the title. The day's activities begin at 10 a.m.

Police officer W. R. Knowles, Sr., attached to the Traffic Bureau, remains confined to his home while recuperating from back injuries received this week when struck by a tractor-mower during a traffic violation investigation on Oceana Blvd.

SMI Loren Duval, who recently returned to duty with the Virginia Beach Shore Patrol Detachment, is devoting his spare hours to his hobby of taxidermy. Duval is mounting several species of fish being caught by his friends as a favor for his fellow sportsmen.

Reliable sources tell us Justice of the Peace Ray Giddens, who is an avid golfer, joined a few police officers this past week during a round on one of the more difficult courses in the area. While comments regarding the outing describe the keen competition among the group, no word has been received regarding any individual scores.

to attend the formal opening Friday, Virginia Beach State Sen. Edward T. Cason III will be the principal speaker at the ceremonies.

The only other free boat launching facilities in Virginia Beach are at the Narrows inside Seashore State Park and can be reached from Atlantic Avenue by 64th Street. Boaters have complained that the facilities there are open only part of the year.

Council

Clyde Collier, who is seeking to build a causeway across the city-owned Lake Joyce to reach Blackbeard Island, which he owns, to get assurances from the City of Norfolk that the deed would not be invalidated if the lake is used for private development. The conditions of the sale to Virginia Beach of the lake from Norfolk stated that no private use can be sanctioned and that unless it is used for recreational purposes the land will revert to Norfolk. Discussion was also held concerning moving the Chamber of Commerce information trailer onto property on Shore Drive that would be offered to the city.

In other matters, city use of the old Coast Guard life-saving station at 24th Street and the oceanfront was discussed. The Coast Guard now feels that if the land is declared surplus it will revert to previous owners per an old deed. Thus plans now may call for deputizing the city to maintain a life saving station there, if this is acceptable legally.

Monday's regular meeting will also include about 25 zoning measures. Again townhouses and apartments are expected to be at the center of controversy.

Play to Be Presented Sat.

Louise Luxford Elementary School PTA is sponsoring a play, "The Princess That Never Laughed," on May 10. The play is being presented by Bayside

Two shows are being offered—one at 10 a.m. and the other at 2 p.m.—for the public. Admission is $2.50.

The play will be shown at Louise Luxford Elementary School on Haygood Road.

Officials Visit Local Stores

Evans Products Company officials held a business conference in Virginia Beach last week to discuss present and projected plans for the company.

The officials, headed up by Monford A. Orloff, chairman of the board of directors, met with a group of bankers and investors. While in the area they visited the Chesapeake manufacturing complex and Moore's Super Store on South Lynn Shores Drive.

The group, who stayed at The Cavalier, were in the area Wednesday through Friday.

Traffic Engineer Meet

Members of the Southern Institute of Traffic Engineers gathered in Virginia Beach this week for their 1969 annual meeting.

Upwards of 200 traffic engineers from Southern states, and their wives, attended the three day event at The Cavalier. While the meeting was centered around technical discussions on subjects such as "Uniform Traffic Control Devices" and "Regional Transportation Planning", the event featured a number of social activities as well. Those in attendance were taken on a boat tour of Hampton Roads, a tour of the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel, participated in a golf tournament at the Kempsville Meadows Country Club, and given a luau at the Cabana Beach Club.

Asst. City Manager David Norman officially welcomed the delegates to the resort city with a short address during the opening breakfast session.

Speakers for the various technical sessions included traffic engineers, planning engineers and highway officials from a number of Southern states including Virginia, North Carolina and Tennessee.

Candidates

He said he had members of his campaign committee who supported all three Democratic gubernatorial candidates. He said he would be able to work with any one of the three but added, "I feel I'm not in a position to get involved in that contest and I plan to remain neutral."

Murphy says his campaign headquarters will be ready for official opening within a few days. It is just across Virginia Beach Blvd. from the headquarters of Adams and Middleton.

Adams and Middleton have named Thomas C. Broyles, Philip Denman, J. Carroll Fears, Jr., Frederick P. Aucamp and A. Joseph Canada, Jr. as their legal advisory committee.

Both candidates said they feel they will benefit greatly by the assistance of the five lawyers in developing programs on which to campaign.

The Pollard-for-Governor headquarters will also open shortly almost next door to the Battle-for-Governor headquarters along campaign row on Virginia Beach Blvd. The Battle headquarters is next to that of Middleton and Adams.

The first Howell-for-Governor plans in Virginia Beach are included in the naming of a 16-member statewide finance committee headed by George C. Kaufman of Norfolk, three Virginia Beach residents are included on that committee. They are: Monroe Farmer, vice president of General Supply Co., Inc.; Marvin Simon, president of Malibu Investment Corp.; and Leonard Strelitz, president of Haynes Furniture Co. No Howell headquarters plans have been announced in Virginia Beach.

Kellam High School's mock trial, held on "Law Day," May 1. The trial was sponsored by the Virginia Beach Bar Association.

Mock Jury Frees Defendant

As part of "Law Day" activities the students at Kellam High School participated in a mock trial, which was sponsored by the Virginia Beach Bar Association.

The trial was held at Kellam on May 1. It proved to be quite a lengthy session, lasting over two hours. Those taking part in the trial were: Judge Thomas F. Betz as the circuit court judge; Philip G. Denman, moderator; Carl Davy, bailiff; A. J. Canada Jr., Commonwealth's attorney; H. L. Lam, defense attorney; and O. C. Gay Jr., defendant. Police officers Joseph Shortall and Edward Casey took the part of police officers in the mock trial; other witnesses were Bruce Mills, Barbara Herman, W. Edward Higgins, Cecil Jerry Franklin, J. Dale Bimson, Stanley Phillips and Kay Wilkinson. Jurors were Kellam high school students.

The jury found the defendant "not guilty" of murder.

Within a few weeks the police department's new Chris Craft Lancer will be placed into operation patrolling the waters of the beachfront and Rudee Inlet.

New Boat Readied for Service

Outfitting of the Police Department's new patrol boat is well underway and plans call for it to be placed into full time service on Memorial Day.

The new boat is a 23 foot Chris Craft, inboard-outboard, "Lancer", constructed of fiberglass, powered by a 185 h.p. engine. The boat is being equipped with a siren, marine and police radios, floodlights, a depth finder, medical supplies and fire extinguishers.

Exclusive Homesites Offered

Baycliff, a 200-acre tract of land which has been developed as custom homesites, opened last week. The land is bordered by Alanton on the east, First Colonial Road on the West and Broad Bay on the north.

Baycliff is to be an architecturally planned community of exclusive custom-built homes. Although Baycliff Development Corporation, the developers, will not build homes, the community will have strict architectural covenants and restrictions governing home designs.

Prices for the homesites will range from $9,250 to approximately $30,000 for choice waterfront. The minimum size homesite is a half-acre. The minimum sized house that can be built at Baycliff is 2,000 sq. ft.

Baycliff Development Corporation principals are William C. Lineberry, Anthony Sanclito and Lawrence A. Sanclito. Larasan Realty Corp. is the exclusive agent for Baycliff.

Land Gets Hearing

Peter Edward Land has been granted a hearing before the State Supreme Court of Appeals on his convictions for rape and murder. Land, 30, has been sentenced to two life terms for the 1967 rape and murder of Mrs. Carol J. Dorschel. The body of the 28-year-old woman was discovered a week after she was reported missing in a mud filled ditch alongside Virginia Beach Blvd. at London Bridge. Land was granted an appeal hearing on grounds that his trial for the crime was in error, in that evidence of a previous rape conviction was admitted during his trial, as well as testimony of previous acts of bad conduct allegedly committed by Land. Circuit Court Senior Judge Robert S. Wahab, Jr., who presided during Land's trial, previously had overruled a motion for a new trial made by Land's defense attorney. This new trial could be granted if the Court of Appeals rules in favor of the initial trial being in error.

6th Suit Filed

A sixth suit has been filed in connection with a Holland Road school bus-auto accident which claimed the lives of three persons Feb. 3. The suit, in the amount of $75,000, is on behalf of Elton E. Wood, father of Deborah Lee Wood. The 16-year-old girl was fatally injured when she was a passenger in the auto at the time of the accident. The suit names John E. Marr and Winston G. Snider as codefendants. Marr is administrator of the estate of Wanda G. Bess, identified as driver of the auto at the time, while Snider is administrator of the estate of Pfc. Michael Lipthart, identified as owner of the auto. Lipthart and the Bess girl were fatally injured in the accident. Five earlier suits filed in connection with the accident are seeking damages totalling $360,000 from the estate of Miss Bess.

Girl Bound Over

Miss Susan A. Cummins, 18, of Pineridge Lane, has been bound over to a Circuit Court grand jury on charges of possessing narcotics and attempting to deliver a marijuana cigarette into the city jail. Police investigators said the cigarette had been concealed inside a tube of toothpaste the girl allegedly brought to the jail for a prisoner. The girl was arrested on April 12 and has waived a preliminary hearing.

Zoning Appeal Made

A meeting was scheduled last night between the Lake George Corp. and the City Board of Zoning Appeals regarding variance of lots on the former Holly Avenue between 76th and 89th Streets. In question is a request to change requirements of 10,000 square feet on property zoned as Residence Duplex District 1 to a requirement of only 7,500 square feet. The request also seeks to reduce property front footage from 75 feet to 50 feet. The Board last Aug. 5 received a similar request from the Corporation, which was refused by Planning Director Patrick L. Standing. Circuit Court Judge Robert S. Wahab, Jr.,

Language Teachers Get Grants

Two language teachers at First Colonial High School are recipients of a government grant to further their studies this summer. They are Mrs. R. E. Etheridge and Mrs. C. R. Heckert.

Mrs. Etheridge, a French teacher at First Colonial for three years, has received a grant to study French at the E.P.D.A. Institute at Washington and Lee University in Lexington, Va. The grant covers all expenses except transportation. The course will run from June 23 until August 8.

The course will include studies in French literature, applied linguistics, the study of phonetics and teaching methods. A basic requirement of the course is that nothing but French will be spoken on the campus. Included in the course will be outside activities made up of films, lectures, folk-singing and trips to nearby points of interest.

Carnival Scheduled

The Mother's Auxiliary of Boy Scout Troop No. 479 will stage a gala carnival day on May 17 from 10 until 6 p.m.

The carnival will include booths, games of skill, various amusements and prizes for everyone. A bake sale and refreshments will be among the attractions.

The funds raised at the event will be used for the boys of the troop to take a trip to Washington, D.C.

The carnival will be held on the church grounds of Christ Presbyterian Church located at Witchduck Road and Aragona Blvd.

Mrs. Sara Leon is chairman of the Auxiliary.

Mrs. R.E. Etheridge, left, and Mrs. C.R. Heckert, right, look over plans for their summer study programs. They are both language teachers at First Colonial High School.

Group Delays Park

Four Kings Grant residents, who said they represented some 30 others, Tuesday successfully blocked, at least temporarily, further construction of a neighborhood park near the entrance to the subdivision.

They appeared before the Parks and Recreation Commission in protest of the park which they said would cause loss of privacy and wildlife in the area, lower home prices, endanger children, cause littering and provide a hideout for molesters.

The land in question is three acres behind Prince of Peace Lutheran Church on Kings Grant Road. The church had agreed to lease the land to the City for $1 a year with a provision that the lease could be broken at any time if it proved unsatisfactory. The neighborhood park would contain picnic tables, swings, horseshoe pits (already there), and other small pieces of equipment such as used on other leased church playgrounds. There would be lights. Clearing of underbrush at the back of the area began last month. The Parks and Recreation Commission said that no trees would be removed and that the area would be replanted with attractive shrubs.

Commission chairman Maury Rignano pointed out that the area was zoned commercial before the church acquired it. "What kind of privacy would you have had with a shopping center there?" Then he asked if the group would have objected if the church had built the playground instead of the City.

The park will be built on a 30 day trial period if objections to it can be worked out. Harold Whitehurst, parks and recreation director, will take the group on a tour of other church parks in the city.

Tony Mencini, president of the Kings Grant Civic League, said that the league has not discussed the park in an open meeting. "I can only speak for myself, but the only objection I see is the lack of communication. We were never contacted by the parks and Recreation Commission about their plans. We have been working for some time for a recreation area, so I don't see how we can object. However, I don't think the location will attract too many people outside of the church."

Most of the objections to the park live along Kings Grant Road and Canterbury which are separated from the proposed park by a lake.

Earlier Kenneth Cole of the Recreation Department reported that Redwing Park is already overcrowded. He said that last weekend more than 7,000 people used the park and that problems with the septic system had developed. "It was not designed to take this many people," said Cole. He suggested that the City look for another 100 or 200 acre park site.

A Question of Timing

The Lt. Governor of Virginia, Fred G. Pollard, candidate for Governor, received a speeding ticket in Virginia Beach on an area of Shore Drive where the 45 m.p.h. limit was a relatively new regulation. The matter received full and complete coverage by Norfolk newspapers and other news media.

Some city officials disagree with the speed there. Reportedly friends of Pollard sought consideration for him after the incident, but Pollard was not aware of it. Regardless of all of these circumstances, the police officer was within his rights in giving Pollard the ticket, even though Pollard said he assumed the limit was higher, and that he was doing 55 m.p.h. Part of the road bears a 55 m.p.h. limit.

The Lt. Governor has complimented the officer and his enforcement of traffic safety, and he has paid the fine. But it could have been different.

State Sen. Edward T. Caton

Ill of Virginia Beach received a ticket for driving 80 m.p.h. last year, and the matter received no coverage or publicity in the Norfolk press or other news media.

The Virginia General Assembly was in session at the time and Caton invoked a little-used law of Virginia barring arrest of legislators while the legislature is in session. The case never came to court and Caton did not pay the fine.

Had Pollard's ticket come a few days earlier while the legislature was again in session, he too could have invoked the state law, according to Caton's apparent line of thought.

The law that Caton used is a bad one. Legislators also should be punished for breaking the law, as long as the work of the Assembly is not impaired. Any cases while in session should be heard later and decided on merits. That, after all, is only fair. Legislators should not be immune.

Support the Volunteers

The volunteer fire and rescue units throughout Virginia Beach are conducting their annual fund drive this month. Residents should not look upon any contribution as a gift. It is a necessary obligation.

The dedicated volunteers are on the job 24 hours a day serving us. Their only compensation is a "Thank you." Their only way to keep up their fantastic record of excellence in time of emergency is through our donations. The city does not contribute heavily to their support, and does not have paid fire departments, which could raise taxes.

We all hope we will never need the services of the volunteers, but if we do, we can count on them. They are well-trained, well-equipped and well-qualified. The only way they can stay that way is through our help in this fund drive.

It is our duty to give generously to this worthy cause... a cause that could save our lives.

Enforce the Code

City Council has finally appointed a minimum housing board of appeals, composed of fine, civic-minded individuals. It is about time.

The city was without a minimum housing code for so long that it has now been difficult to upgrade some of the housing to meet the not-so-difficult requirements. Too many homeowners, especially where they rented homes to less fortunate people, looked the other way for too long and ignored even common decency.

Since passage of the new ordinance last year, these homeowners have had time to meet the standards. Now hopefully the code will be enforced to its fullest. The board of appeals should then be ready to meet any gripes and to weigh each contested case on its merits.

Enforcement of the new code is not a witch hunt. It is merely the beginning of a crackdown on a problem that should have been taken care of several years ago. Those that would complain the loudest could very well be those who have disregarded unwritten rules of minimum housing in the past, and have probably made a little money on low standards by doing so.

Initially those who enforce and the board of appeals will likely have a few problems as they are tested. They must stand firm. Few structures, relatively speaking, in Virginia Beach are in trouble with the new code. But there are some, and we must be shaken out of compacency to recognize this.

City College by '71

Perhaps its entirely too premature, but we certainly hope that Virginia Beach will be the city chosen for the new community college campus in Region 22, which includes Norfolk, Chesapeake, Portsmouth and Virginia Beach.

Funds for the college will be sought by the state board at next year's session of the Virginia General Assembly. Hopefully the legislature will look with favor on the proposal.

Virginia Beach is the logical choice, and the funding next year could have the two-year college ready for 1,500 deserving students in Virginia Beach in the fall of 1971. The other cities in the region already have some type of college. We do not.

Our city members of the college board will be working diligently toward this end. They have our support.

SPOTS

By H. Joseph Lowenthal, Jr.

"Here's your son," he said, as he handed her a very wet, crumby, food-stained baby.

"I don't see any fat lip," she said. "I've been worried about that ever since I got your letter."

"So maybe I exaggerated a bit," he said. "Anyway, hello, I'm glad to see you back."

"Thanks," she said. "But couldn't you have waited until I got my coat off before handing me this wet, messy child."

"Is that anyway to talk about your son?" he asked. "See how he's grinning while he gets applause on your dress."

wet kiss. "I missed you, Daddy spanked me while you were gone."

"Now that's a fine thing to say," he told her. "Not 'Daddy fed me,' 'Daddy combed my hair,' or 'Daddy took me to the amusement park,' just 'Daddy spanked me.'"

"She remembers only what she wants to remember," his wife said.

"Takes after her mother," he said under his breath.

"Hello, Mother," said the older one. "I threw up while you were gone, but I feel better now."

"Somehow I hoped she's find something better to tell you," he said, "but I guess I underestimated her too. I thought she might tell you about riding the boat on the harbor tour, or getting an 'A' on reading and spelling, but no, she tells you she threw up."

"Well, she doesn't throw up often," she said. "It probably made quite an impression."

"It did. On her clothes, the floor and on me when I had to clean it up," he said.

"Did you miss me, dear?" she asked with a devilish grin.

"Let's see," he said. "Let me think about that for a minute. Things went pretty well, with all the help from the maid and the babysitter. I didn't notice you were gone until Tuesday."

"Then why did you yell at me that if Mother ever came home you'd never let her get away again?" asked the younger daughter.

"Blabbermouth," he said to her.

"Yeah, and why did you keep looking at the ceiling and saying, 'Will she ever get here?'" he said.

"Blabbermouth, number two," he said.

"Did you really say those nice things?" she asked sweetly.

"It must have been in a weaker moment," he said. "But I guess I did."

"Now, how about the truth?" she wanted to know. "Did you miss me?"

"... In a word, yes," he said. "I was never so miserable in my life. And I never had so much work to do. Do me a favor. Don't go away again, even if the school board says so."

"That must be the nicest thing you ever said to me," she said. "I'm touched."

"I must be too for letting you go in the first place with three kids and this house to take care of," he said. "But don't let all that sentimental stuff go to your head."

"Where are you going?" she asked.

"To bed," he said. "You're home how. I'm dead tired, I'll see you in the morning. Goodnight."

The general shortage of revenue being experienced by governments at all levels throughout the United States is illustrated by the financial position of Virginia Beach. This is particularly interesting because Virginia Beach is a city which is composed mostly of middle income residents, and therefore, doesn't have a particularly severe welfare problem.

The largest financial burden of the city is the cost of education. The most recent annual school budget proposed for adoption called for an expenditure of $24,000,000. At the present time the city has a school population of 42,000 students. It is anticipated that in six years this population will increase to approximately 70,000 students.

In 1969 alone, three new junior high schools will be opened. It is also necessary, not only to build new schools, but some of the older existing schools are in bad need of renovation. The most recent bond issue for the school system approved by the voters on Feb. 20, 1968 was for $14,500,000. In 1970 it will probably be necessary to ask the voters to approve another bond issue for about $12,000,000 in order to keep the growth of the school system even with the population.

On June 30, 1964, the population of the city was 126,000 people. By June 30, 1968 the population had grown to an estimated 165,000 people. By June 30, 1975, the planning commission estimates the population will be in excess of 300,000 residents. The net bonded indebtedness of the city on June 30, 1964 was $14,018,098. This figure had grown to $46,321,390 by June 30, 1968. The per capita debt of the city (the amount each resident would owe of the total debt of the city) on June 30, 1964 was $111.25. By June 30, 1968 this debt had increased to $280.74.

The municipal income of the city on June 30, 1964 was $14,547,283. This income figure had increased for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1968 to $29,840,980. In short, the debt of the city is increasing 160% faster than is the income. In four years the debt itself had increased 330%; the population had grown 130.9%; the per capita debt had increased 253% and the income had increased 205%.

Any entity which has its debt increasing 160% faster than its income will eventually be in serious financial trouble unless something is done to reverse the trend. All these bonds plus the interest eventually have to be repaid out of taxes. Unless something is done to increase the revenue, taxes will have to be doubled and then doubled again. When this happens the average resident will start to take a long and a hard look at the leadership and its financial ability in deciding for whom to vote.

It is the prediction of this author that when this happens a businessman's ticket, with emphasis on creating a sound business climate for the growth of our city; and with stress on developing the natural business opportunities that are begging for exploitation; will interest the voters. The alternatives will be to prostrate ourselves financially and turn to Norfolk for financial management. This latter possibility would be most undesirable for most of the voters of Virginia Beach.

Special Report

Pollard's Secret Weapon

Lt. Gov. Fred Pollard unleashed his "secret weapon" on Virginia Beach this week. Or at least that's what GOP gubernatorial candidate A. Linwood Holton called Mrs. Pollard when he appeared on the same program with her in Norfolk a couple of weeks ago.

And well she might be just that. So far Jane Pollard is the only one of the three Democratic candidates' wives to hit the campaign trail in her husband's behalf. In this case, Mrs. Pollard is also striking out in favor of not only her husband but also his entire ticket, which includes State Sen. W. Carrington Thompson for Lt. Governor and Guy Farley for Attorney General.

She is traveling around the state campaigning on her own and joins her husband for some joint appearances. Jane Pollard has those qualities most desirable in a candidate's wife or even a candidate for that matter. She is attractive and smiles a lot. She appears somewhat shy and even reticent. Her hand shakes a bit as she mounts the speaker's platform. And she tells it like it is. She is likable and charming. Her husband's stock goes up when she speaks.

Jane Pollard is not merely speaking to women's groups, although she is concentrating most heavily on them. She'll take on any speaking engagement and make the most of it. After all she's used to it. Her father was an esteemed legislator for many years and her husband has been active in politics ever since their marriage.

Henry Howell has finally named some Virginia Beach men who will serve on his state-finance committee. There are three of them, and they are the first three Virginia Beach residents whose names have turned up in active, public support of Howell.

William Battle's campaign in Virginia Beach is also lagging, but is expected to pick up shortly. Battle has a full campaign staff here, and one of his key men statewide is Virginia Beach Treas., V. A. Etheridge.

The prognosticators, who have been known to be wrong almost as many times as they have been right, are now trying to assess the strength of the candidates statewide before the campaigning moves into high gear. It depends on which one you listen to if we are to find a front runner now.

Generally it breaks down this way. Pollard still can collect on his 20 years of political IOU's, especially from the old line Organization Democrats. He is the most conservative of the three candidates, although his views have moderated over the years. Therefore his strength will come from the real party folks statewide who have voted with the Organization for years, as well as from many of the moderates.

Battle on the other hand, in attempting to live down the Kennedy liberal image he gained in 1960 as the President's campaign manager in Virginia, has also become more conservative, but is most attractive to the rising moderate wing of the party. But no one is sure just how strong these moderates really are, since there has never been a true test of their strength.

There is also Henry Howell to be contended with. Howell will surely have the labor and minority group support, which is proving to be a strong coalition in any race. Perhaps the conservatives and moderates do not need this vote entirely, but some of this bloc is a good thing to have around.

The Republicans have nominated a conservative, and in the final analysis, Virginia will probably not lean too far to the left. At present speculation has it that the only Democrat who can beat Holton is Pollard, because of this feeling toward conservatism.

No one can say for sure if it will come out this way, but it becomes more and more likely every day that a runoff will be held in August to settle the Democrat's nominee question. Now it would appear to be between Pollard and Howell, but only time and a campaign will tell.

Only Howell is slinging the issues and personalities around so far. It now depends on how dirty the campaign gets, if it gets too dirty, Holton is assured of his place in Virginia history.

A Penny a Day Is Little Enough to Contribute

May has been proclaimed by Mayor Frank A. Duschas "Volunteer Firemen's Month" in Virginia Beach.

During this month members of the volunteer fire departments and volunteer rescue squads will be contacting the residents of the city requesting donations. The money received by each of these departments will be used in purchasing new equipment required in protecting the lives and property of the residents of the resort city. This annual fund drive is the primary method these men use to obtain the financial backing needed to continue operation. This year the residents of the city are being requested to make a donation of $3.65, representing a "penny-a-day", for each family living in the city.

Residents ask, of what value to me was the service rendered by the Virginia Beach Volunteer Units last year? During 1968 the fire departments of the city responded to 1,928 fire alarms, which involved the use of 3,965 pieces of fire fighting equipment, plus an untold number of man hours. The efforts of these volunteer firemen resulted in the saving of millions of dollars in property which could have been otherwise lost and the saving of lives which might have been lost due to fire.

Rescue Squad Volunteers during 1968 responded to 5,508 were rendered on this same fee, they would have cost residents of the city another $11,265 to cover the 751 auto accidents responded to.

These facts simply point out the truth of the words of Mayor Duschas when he called upon the residents of the city to support the volunteer fire and rescue units when he said, "A penny a day is little to pay for fire

While the Virginia Beach Borough Fire Department is basically a salaried department they do have the services of some volunteers who will be conducting their own fund raising campaign at a later date.

The same is true of the Virginia Beach Borough Rescue Squad. Although the Squad operates purely on a volunteer basis, they will be conducting their fund raising campaign at a future date.

If the residents of Virginia Beach had had to pay a fee for each of these services and these fees were based on similar city ambulance service provided by another Tidewater city, the cost would have totalled $71,355. ## Wedgewood Comedy Bridges Gap

Wedgewood Theatre in Toano has taken a showcase piece from the early 1940's and made it into a pleasing and creditable production. "Claudia" by Rose Franken is a schmalzy comedy-drama that has survived the generation gap successfully.

By faithful reproduction of dress, setting and whimsy of the pre-war era, the Wedgewood company has been able to make this somewhat contrived show more than presentable today. The cast works hard on a thoroughly predictable script, and that is the difference between success and failure.

Claudia is a young married, perhaps too young to be married. Her husband is a realistic cynic who suffers nicely through her shortcomings because he loves her. She has an unhealthy mother fixation but is sweet and lovable in her effervescence.

Her compassion is boundless, to include the sad couple that tend the house and farm where they live. Her husband has left the big city for the farming life a la "Green Acres". But Claudia is never terribly happy there.

The news that her mother is dying of some unidentified disease brings all of this trauma to the fore with startling results. With all the drama there are many amusing lines and situations that make this a pleasant, unsophisticated story, not many of which we are often subjected to today.

Sherri Reid bubbles all over everywhere to make Claudia believable. Maybe she even overdoes it a bit, or maybe the others are not up high enough. But she handles the many moods of the heroine with great ease.

Ron Reid underplays the husband's role, but is entirely believable in his role of foil for Claudia and keeper of sanity and balance in the household. Carolee Silcox plays her mother with quiet reserve and charm that gives her tremendous audience sympathy.

Lilene Miller, as the housekeeper-cook, is delightful in her fine compassionate characterization. And Bob Hutchinson, playing a man many years his senior, does a fine job with the role of the long-suffering, protective caretaker.

Dana Henry, while he may be too young to play successfully a suave, oily, British lover type, makes a valiant stab at it and has some very funny moments.

Mackie, as usual, turns in a top performance in a minor role of a very excitable opera star.

Frances Bailey has trouble making the socialite sister-in-law role come off, especially in the repentance scene.

Director Leroy McFarland has put together a nice, family type show for Wedgewood, and it's a welcome change of pace, HJL.

Site Picked For New P.O.
A site west of Princess Anne Courthouse has been selected for a new Post Office by the Post Office Department. The property was purchased for $17,500 from Burning V. and Mabel Fink. It covers an area 73,600 square feet in size.

Record Calls Expected

L. F. Patrick, local manager of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of Virginia has said that on Mother's Day, the company anticipates 50 per cent more long distance calls than any other Sunday during the year.

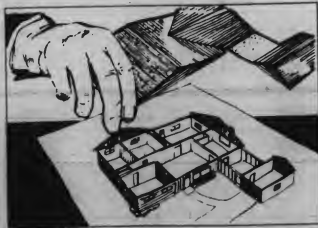

"In fact," said Patrick, "the number of long distance phone calls made by people in observance of Mother's Day are increasing annually. The volume of calls now surpasses those of Christmas Day, historically the heaviest holiday phoning day."

The C&P manager said that the company has geared itself for this heavy flow of long distance calling nevertheless, whatever steps the C&P takes for Mother's Day phone calls, there will be those who will encounter delays. To avoid any inconveniences, the C&P manager said that, "if a call is made on Mother's Day, the earlier the call is made the longer Mother has to feel good about it." He further stated that "persons should take advantage of the low rates that are in effect for 60 hours beginning at 7 p.m. on Friday to 7 a.m. on Monday and by dialing their own long distance calls direct."

Marine Maj. James P. Crowley, was recently awarded the Navy Commendation Medal. The major earned the medal while serving with Marine artillery, the Eleventh Marine Regiment, 1st Marine Division in Vietnam from September 1967 to October 1968. Maj. Crowley is married to the former Beverly C. Borys.

Wives Have Dual Role as Political Campaign Accelerates

Mrs. Middleton

By Yatta Jones and Carolyn McAllen

As Mother's Day approaches, the wives of four House of Delegates candidates in Virginia Beach have quite a bit in common, although their husbands may not.

They share a desire to keep their home life as normal as possible for their children while the men hit the campaign trail. This is not saying that they are housewives, but they all agree that their husbands need a wife to come home to rather than another campaigner.

Ann Middleton, wife of B. R. Middleton, is the campaigner with experience, since her husband is seeking re-election. "The last time all the wives worked like Trojans" she said. "The first time you always do, I told Bev when he went into politics that the best thing I could do was stay home with the children," she explained adding that she thought it was important to have one parent at home if both couldn't be there.

"That doesn't mean I don't campaign for Bev. If they needed somebody at campaign headquarters I'd be there. Besides, there are a lot of telephone calls and envelopes to address that can be done at home."

The Middleton family includes John, 17; Wayne, 13, and Beverly Ann, 8.

Ann met Bev as a favor to Mrs. Edward Chittum, wife of the former principal of Norview where Anne had just come from Richmond to teach.

"The old teachers gave a get acquainted picnic for the new ones. Bev's mother was on the School Board. Mrs. Chittum asked me if I'd date the School Board member's son—I had to break a date with a faculty member.

"Bev and his brother had been told that the picnic lacked men and begged them to date the teachers. We each thought we were doing Mrs. Chittum a favor."

Although her husband was in Richmond some two months of both years of his term, Ann said that he came home every weekend and she often went to Richmond on Wednesday and returned Thursday. She said it was fascinating to sit in the gallery of the House of Delegates and watch the proceedings. "I'd sit through the first and second reading of a bill and invariably I'd have to come home before the vote."

The main problem while her husband's campaign was in Richmond was that all the appliances gave out—the washer, dryer, television, floor polisher and vacuum cleaner.

Ann's outside activities include the Virginia Beach Woman's Democratic Club, Hermitage Garden club and her church.

Clara Guy, wife of Richard Guy, admits that she is very little involved in her husband's campaign. "The excitement caught me at the opening of his campaign headquarters. I asked myself 'What have I been missing?'"

She'd be an ideal person to conduct an "at home" campaign. "I love people. I like to have people in to talk. I could have somebody in for coffee or dessert every day of the week if I just have my mornings free for housework."

Since her husband's campaign keeps him away from home many evenings, she has a big Sunday dinner every week, so he can be with the children. The children are Patricia, 7; David, 2 1/2, and Richie, 6.

The Guys designed their home in Chesapeake Colony. The kitchen is "my room" says Clara. Not only is it large, but it is unusual. The sink is set in a corner with mirrors behind it. In front of the mirrors are large artificial fruits and vegetables which brighten the whole room. "I can keep track of the kids in two rooms with the mirror," said Clara. Now she wants carpeting for the kitchen. "I've seen some and the colors are beautiful."

Clara is from New York and Dick is from Maine. However, they met in Virginia Beach when he came here to work for a mortgage company.

"I met him at a girl friend's house. I'd been here three or four years, but he had just moved here."

The children think the campaign headquarters is the House of Delegates, and efforts to explain otherwise have so far been futile. They've also made a contribution to the campaign—they helped stuff envelopes for the headquarters opening.

Besides carpools and coffees, Mrs. Guy is active in the Colonial Circle of the King's Daughters. She volunteers time to the General Hospital of Virginia Beach and visits a nursing home once a month.

Mrs. Bruce G. Murphy feels that her husband's career as a lawyer has provided the family a background to prepare them for the present campaigning.

The many meetings and short-notice plans are nothing new for her. "In the first place," she says, "a lawyer's hours are not really nine-to-five... they are more like seven-to-ten." She says her husband has to be able to go whenever a client needs him... the telephone is liable to ring at any time, so having to leave on a minute's notice is not unusual.

for Virginia Beach. She shares this love, saying that the community is full of intelligent, active people who are interested in doing what is best for Virginia Beach.

All in all, Mrs. Murphy does not find that being involved in political life is upsetting in the least. She doesn't even consider it unusual. In her opinion it is a normal step for anyone connected with the law, or, as she says, "an extension of the practice of law."

Mrs. Murphy is quite happy that her husband feels an obligation to work for the community. "It has always been very, very stimulating to have an active husband," she says, "I find it rewarding."

At this point Mrs. Rhae W. Adams doesn't feel that her husband's campaigning activities will interfere too much with the household schedule. She says that the years he spent working for the Jaycees—the served as Jaycees' state president—has prepared her for the many meetings, late dinners and other facets of campaigning.

There are three boys in the Adams family, ages 17, 13 and 10. According to Mrs. Adams they are all excited about helping their father with his campaign. The two older boys are developing a more active interest in civic affairs now that they are involved. They like to surf and they've been particularly impressed with suggestions their father has offered on the subject.

Mrs. Adams is helping her husband with his campaign in several ways. She works at the campaign headquarters stuffing envelopes, making coffee or wielding a broom—filling in wherever she is needed. She says she also goes along to hear his speeches. "I tell him if he talks too long or too much," she says, "but he won't pay any attention to me."

Mrs. Adams takes a great deal of interest in the campaign issues themselves. Right now she is clipping everything she reads about the issues that pertain to Virginia Beach and what all of the candidates say concerning these issues. "The more that we read about these things the better off we'd be," she comments.

The Adamses met when she was in the seventh grade. She lived in Portsmouth and his family moved there. "He used to visit a friend who lived close to me and I would play football with them." They dated off (See "Wives" p. 7)

Vanilla Goop And Smashed Eggs

Super market operators and designers must hate women—either that or they are bachelors. I'd hate to think their wives would let them get by with some of the things they do.

For instance, have you ever noticed that bags are always loaded into cars on the right side, which is the wrong side. Front doors, at the majority of homes, are to the left of the driveway which means the driver must either walk around the car and unload from the far side or reach clear across the back seat to get the bags out or back the car in.

And why do the bag boys insist on placing the bags on the seat rather than the floor? They can't all suffer from sore backs. The bags usually stay on the seat until you stop the first time. Then at least one bag falls over and cans come flying across into the front seat.

Another menace is cartons of eggs. However cheap and convenient they may be, it's almost impossible to get them all home in one piece. Somehow they are always put on the seat or floor where something falls on top of them, or they are placed in the top of one of the grocery bags so that they are the first to fall out when the bag tips over—or splits.

That's another touchy subject—rather messy at times too. The friendly neighborhood grocer used to provide customers with two bags, one inside the other, to offer extra protection for canned goods. Then some genius (a man obviously) came up with a new "double strength" bag to end the double supply. The idea was good, but I can't say much for the new bags. There's nothing like getting home after several hours of shopping and have the bottom fall out of the bag as you try to lift it out of the car—or up the steps. Even more fun is when it splits in transit and some of the items get lost under the car seats.

Remember when groceries used to provide special insulated bags for frozen foods and ice cream in particular. They're few and far between now. I heard one clerk in a store recently say that she couldn't remember when they last stocked them. Now I can usually manage to reach home with a half gallon of ice cream intact if I don't go anywhere else. But I do all my shopping for the week at one time and usually at three or four stores. Vanilla goop added to smashed eggs can be somewhat discouraging.

Then there are chickens. Now some stores still put chickens in small bags inside the larger ones. But some don't. Those dripping things contribute greatly to the disintegration of the bag bottoms. Not only that, but they make a sticky mess of all the canned goods.

So now I ask, where are the women that shop for the market operators? Or don't they dare identify themselves?

Mrs. Pollard, center, stopped on her visit Tuesday to have lunch with a former neighbor, Mrs. Edward Dillon, Jr., right, and her daughter Amelia.

7th Graders Impress Jane Pollard

Jane Pollard, wife of gubernatorial candidate, left Richmond early without breakfast Tuesday so she could visit Kemps Landing School at the request of a seventh grader there.

Mrs. Pollard, who was in Virginia Beach for a walking tour of several shopping centers, had received a letter from Bonnie Jones, a member of Mrs. Helen S. Mills' seventh grade, asking why she thought her husband should be elected governor.

The class has a special interest in the race—Henry Howell's secretary's son is a class member. Howell is also planning to visit the class.

Jane Pollard said she was amazed at the depth of knowledge and interest of the children. "They weren't prompted. Mrs. Mills left the room and let them ask questions themselves." She said that among other things they wanted to know her husband's opinions of the vote for 18 year olds, the draft law and taxes on food and drugs.

"One boy came up to me and said, 'I don't know about the other classes, but the reason we are so interested is because our teacher is.' The same class also invited President Nixon to visit during the Azalea Festival, but he was unable to arrange it." Mrs. Pollard added that the class members select two good citizens each week and feature them on a bulletin board.

She said that her own children, Elizabeth, 2, and Emily, 3, are very enthusiastic about the campaign. Emily, said Mrs. Pollard, refused to wear a campaign button because, in her words, "I can't wear that button, I don't look like Daddy-Elizabeth does."

Commented Mrs. Pollard of her campaign efforts for her husband, "I've heard I'm going to get some write in votes—I'll turn them all over to Fred."

Girl Scouts Make a Day of It

The weather couldn't have been better as several hundred Brownie Scouts and Cadettes gathered for an all day outing at Oceana Saturday.

This was the finale of a year's activities in the "Follow the Piper" project undertaken by the Tidewater Council of Girl Scouts. Different projects, according to age level, had to be completed to participate. At the conclusion of the outing each participant received a green and white Piper Patch.

The girls at Oceana were from the Lynnhaven-Oceana area. Scouts from the other three districts of the city met in various places for different activities.

The schedule for the girls at Oceana included singing, dancing, games, rope tying, fire building and crafts for the Brownies. Cadettes had lessons in first aid, camping skills, singing, dancing and crafts. All were taught by Senior Girl Scouts.

And included a number of activities such as rope tying. . .

And ended with some exhausted chaperones.

Thailand Offers Styles

From Bangkok, Thailand, comes a fresh and original fashion story---a unique combination of fabrics with a definite Eastern flavor and styling with the Western ways of fashion taken into careful consideration. DESIGN-THAI's versatile summer 1969 collection, designed by Jacqueline Ayer, has fabrics printed and styles designed and manufactured in Bangkok for world-wide distribution.

The collection opens with a group of daytime casual dresses tailored to the figure, tastes and needs of the American woman. In this group---the casual shirtdress, precision tailored for everyday wear to business, shopping, luncheon meetings and travel. The original designs in the fabrics, the fit and the hand-detailed tell the story in these as well as in the short jumpsuits (culottes that look like skirts and move with you) for street wear, a day at the country club, golf and the beach.

Wives

and on until his last semester at Davidson.

Mrs. Adams remembers the time they were married while still in school as a particularly happy period. He was there on a football scholarship and worked part time sweeping the gym and working in the office; she worked in the ticket office. "We lived in what was known as 'Cardboard Village' and it was literally just about that... all I had to do was tap lightly on the kitchen wall and say 'come over for coffee' and my neighbor could hear me."

Lately Mrs. Adams hasn't had too much time to enjoy being at home. In addition to campaigning activities she belongs to Princess Anne Hills Garden Club, Kings Daughters Sea Sprite Circle and is vice chairman of the Tidewater YWCA, Virginia Beach branch.

At the end of the interview Mrs. Adams paused and reflected a minute over what she had said about the difference campaigning would make in the household schedule. "Right now it isn't that much of a problem... ask me again a month from now, though, and I might have a different answer!"

Many Virginia Beach gardeners have azaleas which have grown larger than the growers anticipated when they were planted. The size of these can be reduced to alleviate the problem. They can be pruned to almost any height without harm to the plant. If done at this time of the year, some bloom buds will yet be formed for next year.

If drastic pruning is done, the azalea should be fertilized to make it more vigorous in order to re-grow the leaves that have been removed.

Welcome Ideas Homemakers

Mrs. America loves to be introduced to new food ideas and she's very gracious about accepting newcomers into her kitchen. Therefore, it's no surprise that in the past few years homemakers around the country have been exploring the gourmet paths to marvelous menus.

Enjoying the endive "as is" in its crunchy raw state is easy with a delicious salad recipe like "Country Fresh Delight." This is one of the three prize-winning entries in the annual recipe contest sponsored by the Belgian Endive Association. Here's how to prepare this high-flavor low-calorie dish.

- COUNTRY FRESH DELIGHT
16 large leaves of Belgian Endive
1 egg
1 8-oz. pkg. of creamed cottage cheese
1 8-oz. pkg. of softened cream cheese
1/2 tsp. of salt
1 c. of walnut halves
8 whole Maraschino cherries
1 10-oz. pkg. frozen blueberries, thawed and well drained
1 10-oz. pkg. of frozen strawberries, thawed, and well drained
1/2 pint sour cream

Wash and drain Belgian endive. Pat dry with paper towel. Divide each leaf in half. Using 4 leaves per salad plate, form a star with them. In a medium size mixing bowl, beat the egg and salt until frothy. Add softened cream cheese and beat again until smooth. Beat in creamed cottage cheese. Fold strawberries, blueberries and nuts into the cheese mixture. Using an ice cream scoop, scoop on filling over center of Belgian endive leaves. Top with sour cream, and top with a cherry. Makes 8 salad servings.

Some like endives cold, some like them hot, but everyone will agree that Belgian Endive Luncheon Pie is a wonderful luncheon or supper entree.

- BELGIAN ENDIVE LUNCHEON PIE
(Pickadilly Pie)
3 c. Corned Beef (cooked, cut into small squares)
10 Belgian endives
1 (4-oz.) can button mushrooms (juice)
1 tsp. monosodium glutamate
1 tsp. curry powder
1/4 tsp. salt
1 tbs. light oil
1 small can chopped ripe olives (with juice)
1 tbs. onion flakes
1 tsp. parsley flakes
1 tbs. lemon juice
1/4 tsp. dill seeds
favorite pie crust

Brown corned beef squares in the oil. Add onion flakes, monosodium glutamate, parsley, curry powder, and salt and cook over low heat for 8 minutes. Add chopped Belgian endive, chopped ripe olives, button mushrooms, dill seeds, and lemon juice and cook for 5 minutes, slowly. Place all ingredients in pan and cover with favorite pie crust. Bake in 400 degree oven for 15 minutes. Serve hot. Serves 6.

The distinct flavor of the Belgian endive makes it perfect for its role as the great transformer. For example, there's nothing inherently wrong with dull white rice, that a good endive-y treatment wouldn't cure. And a most delicious way to change this bland side dish into a really spectacular one is via an easy-does-it recipe like Snow Cloud Rice. Here's how to go about making it.

- SNOW CLOUD RICE
1 lb. Belgian endive
1/2 c. drained, pineapple tidbits
1 tbs. instant minced onion
1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
2 c. cooked rice
1 c. grated, sharp cheese
1 1/4 c. mayonnaise

Wash Belgian endive spears, cut into small pieces. Combine with rest of ingredients and mix thoroughly. Pour into buttered 2 quart casserole. Bake at 350 degrees for 40 minutes. Remove casserole from oven.

Spread with Snow Cloud Topping. Return to oven. Bake at 400 degrees F. for 10 minutes, or until topping is light brown. Yields 6 servings.

- SNOW CLOUD TOPPING
3 egg whites, stiffly beaten
1/2 c. mayonnaise
1/2 tsp. prepared mustard
1/4 c. grated Parmesan cheese
1/4 c. slivered almonds

Fold mustard, mayonnaise and cheese into the egg whites. Spread over casserole. Sprinkle with almonds. Proceed as directed above.

Because American homemakers are adventurous types and have the let's-give-it-a-try attitude toward new foods, anyone who does prepare a dish--either one of the three prize-winning suggestions above, or some of the many recipes that dot recipe books--will find that her venturing will have gained her something really delicious. There's no doubt about it, when Mrs. America meets the endive--the only possible result will be a life-long friendship.

Earthworm's Job Is Not Lowly

(Editor's note: Here is another in the series on home horticulture by Wesley Judkins, Extension horticulturist at Virginia Tech.)

The lowly earthworm is lowly only because of the place where he lives. He serves a high level function as a tiller of the soil. Agriculture in general, and our lawns and gardens in particular, would be much poorer if worms were not present as improvers of mother earth.

About 1600 years ago, Aristotle, that famous pupil of Plato's called earthworms the intestines of the soil. This is quite appropriate because they continually burrow through the earth. In the process they eat and digest the soil to secure food from the organic matter it contains. They will produce their weight in castings every 24 hours. These castings are much richer in minerals than the soils from which they are produced.

One of the principal benefits of earthworms is the tunnel system they develop. Their many burrows allow water to penetrate rapidly into a soil. The roots of plants may follow these tubes as an easy way of growing down through a dense soil.

The earthworms in a soil may reach very high numbers. Some research men in Ohio found over a million per acre of bluegrass pasture. Darwin, the English scientist who developed the theory of evolution, reported 1,500,000 per acre.

Most earthworms live only a year or two and then give up their difficult subterranean struggle for existence. With such large numbers in the ground, it is easy to understand that their dead bodies make a significant contribution to the organic matter content of the soil.

There are over 1100 different species of earthworms, but only two are of much concern to gardeners. The rather dark red or bluish worms, which become the large night-crawlers when mature, are of greatest value. They do most of the soil burrowing which improves our gardens.

If you are a manure or compost enthusiast, you have observed the smaller reddish type which is found in such material. These are unable to live in the soil, so are of minor value for most gardeners.

You may ask whether the ear-thworm population in the soil is seriously reduced by the use of the poisonous sprays which control insects on your flowers and vegetables. As far as we know, they are not. They secure their food primarily from within the soil, and their contact with surface vegetation is not sufficient to be harmful.

Also, earthworms which may be killed by poisonous materials are not a hazard to birds. Birds prefer living insects and worms and are not attracted to dead worm carcasses.

One last point to consider. If you treat your lawn with poison to kill grubs and beetles to reduce the Japanese beetle problem, or control moles, it will not eliminate the worm population. Adequate numbers will survive to continue their work as the original tillers of the soil.

(Editor's note: This is the first of a series of reminders to be presented by the Virginia Beach Beautification Commission to make the residents of Virginia Beach become more aware of their city.)

Outdoor Cooks Need Storage

What every outdoor chef needs is a "hang-it-all" spot.

This do-it-yourself project can be built by mounting a 1/4" thick, 4 by 6-foot panel of Masonite Peg-Board horizontally on 2 by 2 inch lumber spaced at 16-inch intervals. Primed and painted colorfully, the screen will be both attractive and useful.

Framing lumber at each end, sharpened and treated with penta, should extend two feet beyond the Peg-Board to serve as stakes to hold the portable fence in place.

Peg-Board brackets and hooks will provide a convenient place for shelves on which to place plates, cups, cooking supplies and utensils.

P.A. Woman's Club

Goal: Pets in Good Homes

Be Kind to Animals Week continues through Sunday, and the Virginia Beach Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals said that this year's BKA Week theme asks people to give a pet a good home, to adopt a pet during May. "However," Mrs. Liz Sills, SPCA president, cautioned, "many families actually do not want to live through the trouble

Would you believe that this German Shepherd was suffering from malnutrition and neglect when he was picked up by the Virginia Beach SPCA? Obviously he has recovered, much to the delight of Emily Del Zell.

District I Meets in Chesapeake

A total of 525 women attended the District I Virginia Federation of Home Demonstration Clubs annual meeting in Chesapeake last week.

The district is composed of the seven counties and two cities of Accomac, Northampton, Nansemond, Sussex, Isle of Wight, Southampton, Chesapeake and Virginia Beach.

State Federation Pres. Mrs. Willard E. Warren of York County reported that there are now 1,193 clubs totaling 24,000 members in Virginia. An invitation was extended to all members to attend the 1969 National Meeting to be held on the campus of the Virginia Polytechnic Institute at Blacksburg on Aug. 11-15.

Mrs. Alton Nicholson, State Cook Book chairman, reported that 2,231 State Cook Books were sold last year. The royalties, $420, will be used as a scholarship for a home economics student at VPI.

Subscriptions and public information were given by Mrs. Tom Hunter of Virginia Beach, stressing the importance of news writing and informing the public of benefits derived from the Extension's Educational Program for Homemakers.

Container grown shrubbery flanking this quiet bird sanctuary makes an occasional changing of the scene relatively easy. And the smaller potted plants let you rotate color between the indoors and outdoors at will.

Try a Portable Garden

The housewife who loves to rearrange the furniture every now and then can have great fun with a kind of garden that is booming in popularity. It's called container gardening.

Every kind of plant from petunias to pine trees are being grown in containers that can be moved around wherever they are most effective or most needed. Shrubs, trees, vines... every kind of plant can be moved from indoors to out, from front yard to patio, at a moment's notice. They can be in the spotlight when they are looking their best and banished when they go into a decline. A new garden can be beautified instantly with pots of geraniums, begonias or petunias.

If you are planning to do some container growing, these general principles from the American Association of Nurseriesmen will be helpful.

The containers you use must be strong and able to stand continual moisture. Wooden boxes, tubs, barrel halves, and other similar containers are available at garden supply centers, or you can use your imagination in creating your own. If you do build your wooden containers, be sure to use a moisture-resistant wood such as redwood or cedar. Clay pots are another good choice, and they come in a wide range of sizes and shapes.

The plants in your containers will dry out much faster than those growing in the ground, so you'll have to water them frequently—probably every day during hot weather. The soil you use must be porous and yet moisture-retentive. Make sure the container has drainage holes to permit the excess water to run off.

With frequent watering, food supplies are washed away and need to be replenished often. The Nurseriesmen suggest a complete plant food, preferably one of the liquid or completely soluble kinds. Use it about every three weeks once plants are established and growing.

Since the big advantage of container gardening is the mobility of your plants, these tips on transportation are worth remembering. Plan your moving in advance. If you can, so you can let the soil get somewhat dry in order to reduce the weight. Then set the container on a dolly, or a flat snow shovel, or a piece of canvas to make the trip easy.

This spring, plan to do some of your gardening in containers. It can be a moving experience.

Lake Smith

vice president; Mrs. J.J. Baadell, corresponding secretary; Mrs. H. C. Dailey, recording secretary; Mrs. J. J. Baradell, treasurer; Mrs. William E. Jocelyn, historian and scrapbook.

Group for Effect

Achieving a unified effect is the key ingredient in an attractive picture grouping, according to the Picture and Frame Institute.

The Institute suggests building your arrangement around its most important picture, which may be placed in the middle, on the top, or on the bottom of the grouping. Keep a fairly narrow space between pictures to give a feeling of one mass rather than several separate pictures.

The bottom line of the grouping should be even, if possible, and the entire grouping should be balanced so that the eye flows smoothly from one picture to another.

One of the big problems is locating the missile once it has been launched, particularly during daytime raids. First you must determine if the missile has your name on it, and then you have to out-manuver it, much in the same manner as an enemy aircraft. Armed with Russian knowhow, the North Vietnam ground gunners launch air missiles that strike with uncanny accuracy. There is no such thing as a low flying aircraft getting away. Strangely enough, high altitudes also run a balanced margin of risk.

The Navy has learned, through costly experience, the most likely "safe bombing" altitude. It is rated "classified."

Rabies Clinic Set

Rabies vaccination clinics for dogs will be conducted on two Saturdays this month—on May 17 and May 24—by the Virginia Beach Health Department and local veterinarians.

Dr. Madge D. May, City Health Director, announced detailed plans for the clinics today. They are for a mass immunization of dogs similar to an immunization program conducted successfully three years ago.

Virginia Beach dog owners have a choice of five clinic locations on May 17, and four clinic locations on May 24. Dr. May said this will enable residents to take their canine pets to the clinic nearest their home. She emphasized that the clinics will be off limits for cats.

The clinics will be from 2 to 4 p.m. on both Saturdays, and the cost will be $1.50 for each dog vaccinated. The immunization is for two years of protection for the pet.

Rabies control in Virginia Beach is administered by the Health Department in cooperation with veterinarians, the City Animal Control Bureau, the Police Division, other agencies and individuals.

Although foxes are the chief vectors of rabies in Virginia, dogs and similar carnivorous animals such as skunks and coyotes are transmitters of the virus disease. It is fatal after symptoms appear so prevention is stressed through programs such as the vaccination clinics planned in Virginia Beach.

The locations for the clinic are Ocean Park Fire Station, Kempsville Elementary School, Aragona Elementary School, Plaza Fire Station, and Creeds Fire Station on May 17, and the Health Center at 19th Street and Arctic Avenue, Kellam High School, Thalia Elementary School and London Bridge Fire Station on May 24.

Walker Discusses Increase in Crime

Stanley C. Walker, chairman of the Virginia State Crime Commission, was the featured speaker at last night's meeting of the Kiwanis Club of Virginia Beach at the Americana Motor Lodge.

Walker took the opportunity to express the views of Commission members on what has been termed as an apparent increase in lawlessness, a contemptuous attitude toward the law, and widespread disregard for duly constituted authority on the part of too many persons.

The major portion of Walker's comments concerned the increase in juvenile crime and future plans of the Crime Commission to rehabilitate juvenile law breakers.

Referring to statistics quoted in the "FBI's 1967 Uniform Crime Report", Walker pointed out juvenile arrests for serious crimes from 1960 to 1967 increased 59 percent, and that of the young offenders released in 1963, 70 percent repeated.

Pointing to his own deep concern with the issue of juvenile crime Walker said, "I feel strongly like so many others, that the need for local juvenile rehabilitation facilities is one of the major problems contributing to juvenile delinquency".

In outlining future plans of the Crime Commission, Walker reviewed recent proposals of the State Department of Welfare and Institutions for the creation of new local and regional juvenile treatment facilities; Walker said Commission members will meet in the near future with SDWI director Otis L. Brown regarding legislation, state, local and federal funds, necessary to implement such a program.

According to Walker plans are also in the making for meetings this fall with the Governor's Budget Advisory Committee on funding such a juvenile rehabilitation program, and recommendations for a State Crime Laboratory. Walker said a meeting is also being planned with the Law Enforcement Planning Council regarding that body's overall plans.

Walker also said the Crime Commission, within the next three to four weeks, is planning another public hearing in Richmond in formulating final recommendations to be made to the Governor and General Assembly for consideration during the next legislative session regarding steps to be taken to combat any crime increase in the Old Dominion.

In 1967 a Veterans Administration doctor determined that LSD is "no magic cure for alcoholism."

Virgie Hudson, president of the Virginia Beach Chapter of the National Foundation, presents a plaque to Tom Betz, who headed the general campaign for this year's fund raising drive. The occasion was the annual meeting, held at the home of Mrs. Barbara Simiele, chapter executive secretary.

Council bumper stickers affixed to the rear bumper of the vehicle. The stickers remind motorists to "buckle up for safety".

So, during the next few weeks being "pulled over to the side of the road" by a police car's siren or flashing red light could mean a free evening of movie enjoyment rather than an expensive trip to the court room.

Steer Show, Sale Set

The Virginia Beach Safety Council, in cooperation with the City's Police Department, is conducting a safe driving campaign and will be awarding the motorists who display safety courtesy, fairness and cautiousness in their driving habits.

When a police officer observes a motorist displaying safe driving skills, he will stop that motorist momentarily. The motorist will be presented a "Safe Driver Certificate" which will duly attest to the "outstanding control of a properly inspected and maintained motor vehicle".

These certificates will entitle the holder to a free pass to the current attraction of either the Bayne or Beach Theater in the Virginia Beach Borough.

As a reminder of the safe driving campaign a number of the Police Department's marked patrol cars have had Safety

Zoning Slows City Council

City Council spent two hours Monday dealing with 27 zoning matters already heard by the planning commission. The first nine items took more than an hour of that, but saw final disposition of some knotty problems that have been before Council for some time.

Approval was given to the Linkhorn Land Corp. for a 60-room motel to be built adjacent to Birdneck Point on Oriole Drive near Laskin Rd. The property had been zoned for a motel since 1958.

The attorney for the applicant and a principal in the corporation, Thomas Broyles, argued that the company only wanted a permit to build on land already zoned for such a purpose, regardless of threats of litigation concerning the legality of zoning or any covenants attached to Birdneck deeds.

Attorney Joseph Canada, representing the civic league of the area argued that the motel would not be in keeping with the nature of the residential area. A number of residents of Birdneck also spoke in opposition.

Approval was finally given after many rebuttals by both sides. Councilman G. Dewey Simmons said Council had no alternative but to grant the permit. He said if there was a legal matter involved it was not up to Council to decide. He added that in similar matters Council had been highly sympathetic to Birdneck residents in the past. Councilman Lawrence Marshall cast the only dissenting vote in the matter.

An application of F. Wayne McLeskey for a zoning change and permit to build six townhouses at the entrance to Chesapeake Colony was denied as had been recommended by the planning commission. Planning Director Patrick Standing said, however, that he thought it would be a good use for the land.

McLeskey argued that all other land around the entrance to the development is either now commercial or being developed commercially. He said he was trying to offer an alternative to commercial zoning there and protect the entrance. He added that he did not believe the land was right for single-family homes today, as it was when he bought it in 1953, and that sooner or later he would have to come back and ask for commercial zoning. Council chose to have him come back.

An application of C. Roger Malbon for a zoning change and use permit for 48 apartment units at Diamond Springs Rd. and Northampton Blvd. was deferred for two weeks, pending a school board report of attempts to obtain or purchase a 60-acre site nearby for new schools. Schools in that area are now operating at capacity and cannot be enlarged.

Vice Mayor Rober Cromwell said Council either has to see to it another new school is built or stop granting permission to build and tell potential applicants of this decision. The general feeling is that a new school will rise in the area soon, particularly since planning for it is already in the later stages by the school officials.

Council also approved supplementary zoning in the approximately 500 acres near the municipal complex at City Hall. The action gives the right of review of all new buildings in the area or modifications of old ones to a historic and cultural board to ensure that they are all compatible with the design and best interests of the Colonial area.

Council gave a one-season (See 'Zoning,' p. 2)

When it was first made public recently that Norfolk was interested in dumping garbage in Virginia Beach, extreme care was taken by City Manager Roger Scott of Virginia Beach and City Manager Thomas Maxwell of Norfolk to assure residents of both cities that even though Virginia Beach was negotiating a new water contract with Norfolk, garbage and water were not at all related.

That was before Virginia Beach City Council met Monday. Now there can be no doubt that garbage and water are definitely related. Even the smokescreen as large as the one that was thrown from Norfolk's Lambert's Point dump recently could not cover up the relationship now.

Scott told Virginia Beach City Council Monday that at Maxwell's request he was preparing a contract to accept all of Norfolk's garbage on an interim basis at least until Dec. 31. Almost in the same breath Scott said that the Virginia Beach water contract with Norfolk would have to be extended until that same date so that details of the purchase of the water system and the cost of purchase of bulk water could be worked out. That tied the two together irrevocably.

Scott then said that he had told Maxwell the cost of accepting garbage per ton from Norfolk would be $3.12, exactly double what the city of Virginia Beach estimates it costs per ton to handle its own garbage.

"I arrived at this price on the basis of what Norfolk charges Virginia Beach residents for water," said Scott, adding the final proof.

Norfolk charges Virginia Beach residents exactly double what it charges its own city customers. Scott added that the figure that has been offered in a new contract is even more than double on a bulk rate. Negotiations have been underway since last November when the old contract expired and was extended.

Virginia Beach now wants to buy the lines, and the city of Norfolk has appraised the lines at about $5 million.

Under the interim garbage contract Norfolk would use its own trucks to bring garbage to the landfill site off Independence Blvd. at the Virginia Beach-Expressway, known as Dorser's Mountain or Mt. Trashmore. The site, when filled, will be used for a lakeside amphitheater.

Scott said that with Norfolk's estimated 700 tons of garbage a day the site would be completed sooner, perhaps in about a year, and requested permission to go ahead with plans to find new sites. He said agreement was near on one site near Interstate 64. Council authorized him to go ahead.

Originally Virginia Beach requested that transfer stations be built so that Norfolk trucks would not enter Virginia Beach. There the garbage would be compacted and taken to the landfill. This is not in the interim contract, but still may be if a permanent contract is drawn.

Meanwhile Scott said Norfolk would agree to bring its bulldozing equipment to the Virginia Beach site for use and would loan the city money to purchase a new compactor that would be necessary to handle the new load. That would be repaid out of Norfolk fees.

After Virginia Beach approval Monday, Norfolk City Council approved the same contract Tuesday. Maxwell told his Council that Norfolk would save money in the long run, even though the contract would be "very profitable to Virginia Beach."

Norfolk has been under almost constant pressure recently from residents of the Lamberts Point area near the city dump. Fires there caused problems, and an application to extend the dump into the river was denied partly because of potential pollution. The problem had become critical last Friday when the U. S. Army Corp of Engineers turned down any temporary relief for extension there. That is when the two city managers met. They worked out details Monday morning.

Norfolk will continue to burn some of its garbage in city incinerators and dump the remains at Lamberts Point, but all else will be trucked to Virginia Beach. Meanwhile Norfolk will not have to build the new $7 million incinerator that had been called for.

Further evidence that the water and garbage contracts are closely tied together came from Scott also. He said that the city of Virginia Beach would reduce the fee per ton on garbage by 15 cents for every penny a

More Offices Open

Political activity in Virginia Beach is on the increase. One campaign headquarters opened last night. Another opens a week from today.

B. R. Middleton and Rhoe Adams formally opened their campaign headquarters last night at 2817 Virginia Beach Blvd. The two are running as a team in the July Democratic Primary for nomination to the House of Delegates.

Richard D. Guy, independent in the same race, has already held his official campaign headquarters opening a week ago. The fourth candidate in the race, Bruce Murphy, has yet to open his headquarters officially.

The three headquarters for the four candidates all lie within sight of each other between Lynnhaven Road and London Bridge. Headquarters for two of the three Democratic gubernatorial candidates, also running in July, lie within the

The William Battle for Governor headquarters, two doors away from that of Middleton and Adams, has been marked by a sign for some time, but has not held an official opening.

The signs are in the process of being painted now for the Fred Pollard for Governor headquarters at 2865 Virginia Beach Blvd. The formal opening of that headquarters is now set for Thursday, May 22 at 3:30 p.m., according to Dudley Cooke and Ivan Mapp, co-chairmen of the Pollard campaign in Virginia Beach.

Mapp said that after brief ceremonies at the headquarters a coffee will be held at 4 p.m. at the White Sands Country Club, where the public may meet and talk with the candidates on the Pollard ticket. Pollard, State Sen. Carrington Thompson of Chatham, running for Lt. Governor and Del. Guy Farley of Alexandria, running for Attorney General, will all be present for the ceremonies and the coffee.

There is still no announcement concerning headquarters in Virginia Beach for gubernatorial hopeful, Norfolk State Sen. Henry Howell.

While no headquarters is set up as yet in Virginia Beach State Sen. Sargent Reynolds of Richmond seeking the Democratic nomination for Lt. Gov. as an independent, has named Virginia Beach Commonwealth's local campaign manager. Reynolds made his second campaign appearance in Virginia Beach last week, speaking in several places to supporters.

The Adams-Middleton ticket has named Joe Gavrys chairman of its steering committee. Gavrys ran with Middleton in 1967 on the United Ticket, but was defeated by Kenneth Whitehurst, Jr., who is not seeking re-election.

George Darden was also named (See 'Offices,' p. 2)

This is the Virginia Beach landfill off Independence Blvd. at the expressway, known as Mt. Trashmore. Added to this picture of a truck, garbage and seagulls will now be Norfolk garbage.

Sewage Rates Adopted

Over objections of Councilman John McCombs, City Council Monday adopted a new flat rate sewage collection and treatment charge for customers on city-owned lines.

The new flat rate reduces the fee on city lines from $10.50 to $6 everywhere but in Virginia Beach proper. There the $6 fee per quarter for homes is a large increase.

Multi-family units will pay the same with $1 added for each additional unit. Motels and hotels will pay the same $6, but be assessed an additional 75 cents per room.

The adoption of the new rates was forced because of the discontinuance of the use of the city's own pumping station in the borough and the hookup to treatment plants and lines of Hampton Roads Sanitation District. The HRSD residential rate of approximately $4.50 will bring the out-of-borough charge back to the $10.50 fee.

McCombs objected strongly to hotels and motels having to pay the same in the off-season that they do in season, when some are not even open. He also said the large rate increase in the borough is bound to bring opposition.

Council accepted with regret the resignation of assistant City Attorney Stanley Phillips, effective June 30. Phillips will enter private practice with George Parker at London Bridge. Dale Binson will become the No. 1 assistant at that time to City Attorney Harry Marshall. Marshall said he was interviewing replacements.

Mrs. Richard Broudy was appointed to the Library Board by Council and Col. Aubrey Holmes was appointed to the James River Basin Advisory Committee.

Council also gave approval to an agreement with the Navy to set up a half-acre site on London Bridge Rd. with picnic tables for an observation area for NAS Oceana. Another fee agreement gave permission for the go-ahead for remodeling of the old courthouse building for a new Circuit Court. This is expected to save the city considerable money.

Council amended an ordinance to bar all but household pets in residential or commercial areas. Rabbits and chinchillas in these areas are currently the subject of some controversy.

Approval was given to city participation in drainage work at Virginia Beach Blvd. and Witbeck Rd. for the new Zayre Dept. Store there. The city will pay 65 per cent or about $39,000. The rest will be borne by the store. It was pointed out that the drainage work will benefit the entire area and that the money will be recovered in a single year from Zayre taxes and licenses.

Thoroughgood Ruling Must Wait 30 Days

Thoroughgood residents are going to have to wait another 30 days for a decision by the Planning Commission on the zoning of the property at the entrance of Thoroughgood.

The Planning Commission deferred the matter at Tuesday's Public Hearing in order for the residents to go over a plan of compromise for the area in dispute. Patrick L. Standing, city planning director, had presented the plan to the officers of Thoroughgood Civic League, but Louis B. Fine, attorney for the league, said that the majority of the residents had not seen the plan.

Another application which had been pending for several months, one submitted by F. Wayne McLeskey Jr., was finally approved. The application that was approved was for a use permit to construct 60 garden apartments on the east side of Chesapeake Trail. The application had originally been made for 46 townhouses on the property.

An application by David I. Levine for change of zoning and a use permit to construct 384 apartment units was approved. The property is located along the east side of South Lynnhaven Road across from Silina Drive in the Princess Anne Plaza area.

Lynbrook Corporation received approval for a use permit to construct 44 garden apartment units on property located on the north side of Comanche Road, west of Cheyenne Road. This property is in the Arrowhead area. Approval for construction on this same property was granted by the Planning Commission a year ago, but the units scheduled for construction at that time were townhouses rather than apartments.

The use permit that was granted approval was that of Minuteman Automatic Car Wash to operate a car wash with gasoline supply in the Princess Anne Plaza area.

Thoroughgood Ruling Must Wait 30 Days

Also approved was an application by DeProfundis, Inc. for a change of zoning and use permit to construct 56 townhouses on property located on the southeast corner of Birdneck and the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway in the Seateck Elementary School area.

An application of Colonial, L.M. for a use permit to construct 78 townhouses on the south side of Wildwood Drive in the area of the hospital was withdrawn.

Approved was an application of OCH Corporation for a change of zoning on a triangular shaped piece of property located on the north side of North Lynnhaven Road, west of Little Neck Road. This zoning change is in preparation for apartment building construction to be done in the area when Edinburgh Drive has been opened up.

Planning Commission approval was denied on the application of Yew Company for changes of zoning on property in the North Landing area. Plans for developing the area for industrial and light industrial use, with a buffer zone comprised of a trailer court and townhouses, were described by Planning Director Standing as "leapfrogging."

The day was a rough one for service station use permits. Out of the five that had been scheduled for hearing only one was approved. Two applications were denied approval, one was deferred for 30 days and the remaining application was withdrawn.

The use permit that was granted approval was that of Minuteman Automatic Car Wash to operate a car wash with gasoline supply in the Princess Anne Plaza area.

Unanimous Answers Disapprove

Replies to last week's SUN SURVEY question were unanimous. Every answer, and there were a larger number than usual, was a negative one. Many carried comments also. Like, "Absolutely not! Why on earth?" Several included signed letters, which appear on p. 4.

The question was, "Should members of the Virginia General Assembly be exempt from arrest, to include traffic violations, while the legislature is in session?" It was prompted when information came to light that State Sen. Edward T. Caton III of Virginia Beach invoked that section of state law, thus avoiding a court case on a speeding charge in 1968.

Lt. Gov. Fred G. Pollard, who received a speeding ticket in Virginia Beach recently and paid the fine, according to that same law could have been exempted. He received the ticket less than a week after the final day of the special session of the legislature and the exemption is in effect ten days prior to and ten days after the session. Pollard did not invoke the law.

While the public opinion poll does not profess to represent the thinking of all residents of Virginia Beach, it does represent the thinking of a cross section of those who took time to clip it and return it to us. Your attention is called to this week's SUN SURVEY question also, which appears in the box at the lower left corner of this page.

Each week a new question will appear and the results will be published the following week. The questions will be timely, and the more answers we receive the more responsible the opinion.

Police Boat Is 1st on Ramp

The city's new boat ramp on Owl's Creek just off General Booth Blvd. is officially open. Moments after the ribbon cutting ceremonies last Friday afternoon, the first boat to be launched officially was the city's new police boat.

State Sen. Edward T. Caton III was the principal speaker. He praised the cooperation between federal, state and city agencies in building the public ramp in less than a year's time.

Funds for the ramp came mostly from unfunded gasoline tax receipts for boats, and Caton said the original idea of this source of revenue was given him by Virginia Beach Postmaster Joseph Crosswhite. He added that he plans to offer a bill in the next session of the state legislature that will get those receipts returned to the localities.

Caton presented the idea for the ramp to City Manager Roger Scott, and Scott gave full credit for the completion of the project to Caton. Representatives were also on hand from state agencies involved in the building, as well as representatives of various city departments.

The Department of Recreation and Parks now has responsibility for the ramp and parking area, built on land given by the state to the city on a long-term lease.

The new 23-foot police cruiser was launched from one of the twin ramps and took the notables on a short boat trip through Owl's Creek to Rudee Inlet and the Atlantic Ocean following the ceremonies.

School Could Solve Overcrowding Collision

The only thing certain about the proposed new high school in Bayside is that it is proposed. "We're (a school administration committee) toying with ideas," said J. W. Littleton, director of plant planning for the city schools. "When we get together we'll present them to the School Board for their determination, at the June meeting hopefully, and give our recommendations."

A study by the Planning Commission shows that Bayside is the fastest growing area in the city. Building permits already approved for Bayside Borough just since last July 1 total 2,225 townhouses and apartments.

The planning committee is considering converting Bayside High School into another junior high and building a new high school. A new junior high school is already under construction in Bayside and will open next winter. Until it is completed students will attend classes in 18 temporary classrooms at Bayside High School.

The new junior high will have an enrollment of about 1,400. There are 2,139 students enrolled in the now overcrowded Bayside High School. The new high school, if approved, would have from 3,200 to 4,000 students, said Littleton, adding that plans are not far enough along to know definitely.

Construction of a new elementary school in Bayside will begin shortly. This school will house 900 students.

The proposed giant high school would not only relieve the overcrowding at Bayside and Princess Anne High Schools but "could conceivably serve Cox." Under the plans being considered would be the gradual change of high schools to contain only 10th to 12th grades. Seventh through Ninth grades would be contained in junior highs. "It could be a step toward kindergartens with the seventh grades out of the elementary schools," added Littleton.

Littleton pointed out that seventh to ninth graders have very little in common with 11th and 12th graders physically, mentally or emotionally. "They're dominated by the upperclassmen," he said.

"And with large groups of upperclassmen together you can improve the subject offering like advanced mathematics, science, a fifth year of foreign language. This way is more compatible and natural."

Princess Anne High Schools also are overcrowded. Because of the size of its cafeteria and its sewage and heating systems, an addition can not practically be added. With two junior highs in Bayside, the eighth and ninth grades at P.A. would be eliminated.

In speaking of specific plans for the giant school, Littleton said there are none. "I hadn't mentioned a multi-storied school," he said in answer to a question about stories that appeared in Norfolk newspapers. "The reporter asked me if it could be multi-storied. I said it could. I don't know. That's up to the architects, and they haven't been selected." He also said he had no idea what the school might cost. Littleton did say that the design of the school is very important and that it will be planned with the students in mind. "We're concerned with the impersonal attitude in a school that large," he said. "A plan of 'a school within a school' is being considered with a principal over the school and assistants over each grade, or even sections of a grade. "There's a feeling of belonging by breaking up the students on campus."

There is a site under consideration, Littleton said. "We have an idea where we'd like to put it." The school, if approved by the School Board, would be built for fall 1972. Littleton added that he regretted the early appearance of the story in newspapers before members of the School Board were aware of the school. He said several members had been asked questions for which they had no answers.

John Patrick's comedy "The Curious Savage" opens Friday night at the Courtyard Playhouse on 17th Street. Shown in rehearsal above are Pam Horton, Billie Atwill and Charles Terry. The Virginia Beach Little Theatre production will play Friday and Saturday night for the last three weekends in May. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m. For reservations call 428-8500 daily except Sundays.

Comedy Is Pleasing

Lake Wright Playhouse's current production of "The Owl and the Pussycat" by Bill Manhoff is a difficult comedy to present, but it comes off pleasingly well.

Anytime only two characters appear on a stage during an entire play, it must be a strong script, and it must be well acted and directed. The Lake Wright production has used the good script to advantage.

The action revolves around the pussycat meeting the owl and changing into a simulated owl, and vice versa.

The owl is a bookish fellow with a lot of hangups. He lives alone asexually and writes bad prose as an avocation. His seeing a girl through field glasses in a nearby apartment while she is enjoying her avocation with different men prompts a call to her landlord. When she is thrown out of her apartment she depends upon him, but fate takes a hand.

She likes him, and try as he might to be above it all, he begins to like her and her charms. Their very existences are entirely opposite, but apparently opposites really do attract. The way all this is resolved is very funny and very believable.

Joan Lancaster, as the pussycat, is a master of comedy timing, and her portrayal of the girl of many moods is extremely proficient. She far outshines the owl.

Storer Boone works hard at achieving the owl character who defects, but it doesn't quite come off. His hangover scene, however, is excellent, and he has many other nice moments.

Director Timothy Jones has put together a fast-paced comedy with lots of action, as is absolutely necessary. The setting by Chuck Vincent is interesting, if architecturally confusing.

It is a good comedy, well worth seeing, if only to view the fine talents of Miss Lancaster. HJL approval to H.G. Bradshaw to operate small power boats for recreational use at the Lesner Bridge in front of Duck Inn. He was told that if all went well he would be allowed to continue operation permanently.

Over objections of a neighbor and her attorney, Council approved the application of Louis and Mary Osterhouse to keep a horse on land on Pleasure House Rd. they own. The matter had been pending for some time.

Health, sanitary and odor opposition was overcome by investigation. The major complaint of the neighbor was that she had to sell off part of her land and potential buyers objected to a horse next door. The applicants were told that when the property built up around the area, the permit may have to be revoked.

The application of Richard Tise for a use permit to keep one horse on property on Burlington Rd. was denied, but two horses and a foal were approved on an application of James Conroy, after his closest neighbor argued the case for him.

Is Fatal

Final services were held last Saturday for 11-year-old Wayne Knight who police officials say was fatally injured in a two boat collision last Thursday night on the waters of Linkhorn Bay.

Investigators said the son of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus S. Knight, Jr. of Oriole Drive, died instantly of a broken neck and fractured skull, and that the injuries were caused by the impact of the collision.

In reconstructing the accident officials said young Knight and his 19 year-old brother William, were in the family's 16 foot plywood boat testing a new 40 horsepower outboard motor. The two were apparently crossing the lake from their Birdneck Point home when the collision occurred. The impact threw both Knight brothers into the Bay.

William Knight received lacerations of the mouth in the accident. The occupants of the second boat, a 16 foot fiber glass boat, reportedly escaped injury. Police identified them as Douglas Haycox, 14, of Crystal Parkway, and Frank Burton, 16, of Wilton Lane. The occupants of the second boat reportedly were returning to their homes from a Laskin Road restaurant.

The body of young Knight was discovered on a beach behind a home in the 1000 block of South Bayshore Drive by Fire Department Lt. Eugene Patton, about an hour and a half after the accident. The Coast Guard joined the Police Department in an investigation of the accident.

New Games Featured At Seaside

Many new games of skill operated by concessionaires who were previously with the Canadian "Expo" World's Fair, as well as several remodeled refreshment stands, will greet visitors to Seaside Amusement Park when it opens this Friday, May 16th, at 6 p.m. for the 1969 season.

The amusement park's 12 thrill rides, newly painted and fresh from winter maintenance work, will all be in operation, on a pre-summer schedule, opening daily at 6 p.m. and Saturdays and Sundays at Noon. Bathhouse and refreshment facilities will open daily at 9 a.m.

The "Frolics Room" has been given a new, lowered acoustical ceiling, the better to hear the rock, country, and soul sounds of "The Equations," the first dance combo of the season, dancing in from 8 p.m. weekdays, with all day sessions, from 2 p.m. on week-ends.

"Candy-the-Crown" will be on hand Sunday, May 18, at 2:30 p.m., on the Seaside Park outdoor stage, with a special free clown show. Free ride passes and other gifts will be distributed to children attending this event.

Admission to Seaside Amusement Park is free.

Volunteer firemen from Davis Corner advance on Plaza volunteers to win the water battle and gain permanent possession of the contest trophy.

Finale Doesn't Dampen Spirits

Several Hundred people gathered in Princess Anne Plaza Shopping Center last Saturday to witness the climax of the annual carnival sponsored by the Princess Anne Plaza Volunteer Fire Dept. and Rescue Squad.

The highlight of the carnival was a number of contests between men of the various volunteer fire departments competing for trophies. The contests tested the skills of the men in performing acts normally used in fighting fires.

Men of the Davis Corner Volunteer Fire Dept. were able to capture the trophy prized most highly by nearly all the fire departments, the trophy awarded to the winner of the water battle. In this contest five men teams compete with fire hoses in attempts to push a bucket, suspended from a wire several feet overhead, to the side of the defending team by means of water spraying from the end of the fire hose. Davis Corner Volunteers defeated men of the Princess Anne Plaza Volunteers in the contest finals for the trophy. This marks the third consecutive year the Davis Corner team has won the trophy, and thus makes them eligible to keep the trophy.

Other contests and their winning teams included volunteer firefighters from Phoebus, who won the "one man hose hook-up" contest to test how quickly a fire fighter can attach a nozzle to a fire hose; Princess Anne Plaza volunteers, taking first place in the "four man hose hook-up" which tests the time a four man team and complete laying-out a fire hose, attach it to a hydrant, attach a nozzle, and begin running water through the hose; and Smithfield volunteers winning the "dressing contest" timing teams of five men in donning their fire fighting outfits.

More than 50 fire fighters from Princess Anne Plaza, Davis Corner, Kempsville, Knotts Island, Smithfield, Phoebus and Popponoon took part in the contests.

thousand gallons Norfolk would reduce its new 36 cents per 1,000 gallon offer up to 3 billion gallons and 32 cents per thousand over that in the proposed water contract.

Members of Virginia Beach City Council were enthusiastic about the deal. Scott said that while Virginia Beach was of prime importance to him, he was pleased with the spirit of cooperation.

"What's good for Norfolk is good for Virginia Beach," said Scott.

The new contract was adopted without much fanfare by Norfolk, but Norfolk Mayor Roy Martin suggested jokingly that Maxwell might drive the first garbage truck to the dump and be met by Scott. Scott laughed as he watched the Norfolk City Council proceedings.

Virginia Beach city officials say they are delighted with the cooperative effort and that they hope it will continue. One suggested he hoped "no cold water" would be poured on the new spirit.

At any rate, bulk or by the ton or gallon, negotiations concerning the exchange of water for garbage or vice versa are certain to have entered a new phase.

The week long carnival and contests was sponsored by the Princess Anne Plaza Volunteers to raise needed money med as coordinator of the ticket. Others on the steering committee include Richard Abalom, Dr. Jesse Anderson, W. R. Ashburn, Jr., J. Fletcher Bryant, State Sen. Edward T. Caton III (Battle's campaign manager), Evans, Andrew Fine, J. Frank Malbon, James Murphy, C. B. Owens, Don Thomas, Ernest W. Turnbull and City Treas. V. A. Etheridge, who is credited with putting the ticket together.

In charge of women's activities will be Sue Bailey, Mary Counselman and Ruth Holland, while C. J. Hayes, Jr. is in charge of youth groups. F. Red Ervin has been an ad finance committee chairman.

Guy, speaking to a Chesapeake Colony audience Monday expressed his views on the Constitutional changes proposed recently by a special session of the Virginia General Assembly.

The next session of the legislature, to which Guy aspires, must again pass those proposed changes then present the package of amendments to the voters in the fall of next year.

Guy said he favored the deletion of present constitutional bans on lotteries in Virginia. The deletion could pave the way for horse racing, and Guy said he would ask for a local option bill on pari-mutuel wagering on horse races.

He added, "...it is my personal feeling that the taxpayers of Virginia Beach recognize the economic necessity of such an attraction and that they would give it strong support at the polls."

He also said he favored the proposal to limit state tuition grants to handicapped and emotionally disturbed children in private schools.

Meanwhile the Republicans of Virginia Beach say they are ready to field a slate of candidates against the winners of the Democratic primary. City chairman John A. Field, himself an unsuccessful candidate two years ago, said a nomination convention will be held prior to the July 15 nomination deadline. He added that the GOP has five people at present who are interested in making the race. Republicans in Virginia Beach have improved hopes this year because of the popularity of the party's gubernatorial candidate, A. Linwood Holton.

Mail Trucks Carry Message

Mayor Frank A. Dusch, Postmaster J. T. Crosswhite Jr., and civic leaders joined in a ceremony last week placing on a mail truck the 1969 National Maritime Day Poster, which bears the message "American Ships: Freedom's Lifeline" beneath a freight ship framed in a semi-circle of stars.

The special ceremony marked the beginning of a month-long postal truck display of the poster, which will also appear on U. S. Post Office trucks throughout the United States. The purpose of the display is to focus the attention of all Americans on the importance of our American Merchant Marine.

May has traditionally been selected to display the poster because National Maritime Day falls on May 22. National Maritime Day has been proclaimed by the President each year since 1933, when Congress requested that a special day be set aside to honor the American Merchant Marine, its ships and the men who sail them. May 22 was selected in commemoration of the sailing of the first transoceanic steamship, the SS Savannah, in 1919.

During the ceremony, Mayor Dusch said: "This poster says it well—the American Merchant fleet is freedom's lifeline. Throughout our history it linked us with lands beyond the seas, developing relationships which have strengthened us all economically and culturally. Our merchant ships, too, have made it possible for us to extend our military strength to wherever it was needed."

"The American Merchant Marine is still essential to the maintenance of our prosperity and our national security. Our ships carry American goods to virtually every port of the free world. Almost all of the military supplies for our boys in Southeast Asia are sent by ship. Our ships provide jobs and help our balance of payments."

"This Maritime Day poster has an important message for all of us. I hope you will think about it when you see the message on the mail trucks this month."

Dredging To Provide Channel

Within a short time a plan for dredging a new channel in the western branch of the Lynnhaven River will be ready for Council approval and authorization. City officials say that a year or less will then be required to cut the channel which will connect the Pembroke-Thalia areas with Lynnhaven Inlet and Chesapeake Bay.

The cost of the project is still undetermined but estimates range around $250,000 for the minimum 60-foot wide and six-foot deep channel, which would accommodate all pleasure craft in the city.

Tentative agreements have been made with property owners along the route to dump material dredged. Part of the material will be dumped on a five-acre tract the city already owns back of Princess Anne High School. Residents of the area have pressured the city for some time to begin the project. Approximately 1,000 boat owners are expected to benefit. Unofficial plans for a public marina at Thalia and Virginia Beach Blvd. have also been discussed for several years, but that is still some time away if it is ever built, according to city officials.

The U. S. Army Corps of Engineers says about 150,000 cubic yards of silt and other material will have to be dredged for the new channel. City Council is expected to approve the project, and work is expected to be underway shortly.

One of our visits to the 3rd Police Precinct, in the Bayside Borough, this past week coincided with the time a number of the men at the precinct were taking a few moments to enjoy their lunch, which consisted of good sized individual servings of chicken-in-a-box, ADR 2 D.T. Loper, attached to the Virginia Beach Shore Patrol Detachment, upon finishing his lunch breathed a sigh of contentment, leaned back with a relaxed expression of satisfaction, and said, "You know that was really good. But I think I would have enjoyed it much better if I hadn't just eaten that giant 'hoagie' and those two bologna sandwiches."

11-Year-Old to Appear

An 11-year-old boy is scheduled to enter Juvenile Court on May 20 on a charge of felonious shooting in connection with wounding this past week of another youth. Police say the charge resulted from the wounding of 10-year-old Leonard Hines of Cypress Avenue in a field at the end of 23rd Street. The Hines youth, according to officials, was shot in the right chest and spine with a .32 caliber pistol. The boy was rushed to Norfolk General Hospital where he underwent surgery and remained under intensive medical care for a week after the shooting. Attorney Gay E. Millus, Jr., has been appointed by the court to represent the boy accused of the shooting.

Sentence Set

Cecil L. "Frenchie" Phelps was sentenced to 40 years in prison Wednesday by Circuit Court Judge Paul Ackiss. Phelps, 33, of Virginia Beach, was arrested last November when he was identified by police as a member of an alleged burglary ring operating in the resort city. Phelps was convicted of 13 of 19 indictments involving charges of store-breaking and burglary. He received consecutive sentences of ten years on each of four convictions, and sentences of ten years each on the remaining nine convictions. Judge Ackiss however decreed the sentences on nine of the convictions be served concurrently with the initial four convictions, thus giving Phelps a total of 40 years imprisonment.

Another Appeal Made

Another Circuit Court appeal has been made on the decision by the Board of Zoning Appeals to allow a zoning variance which will permit Lake George Corp. to construct an extra 12 duplexes in an area formerly known as Holly Road. Planning Director Patrick L. Standing, along with 141 residents of the area which is located between 76th and 98th Streets, have filed the appeal. The controversy centers around the Corp.'s request to reduce requirements for plot sizes in the region under development, thus permitting construction of 48 duplexes instead of 36 duplexes. The board granted the variance last Aug. 5, however Circuit Court Judge Robert S. Wahab, Jr., last April 11 overruled the decision on grounds of an appeal from surrounding residents. The current Circuit Court appeal is on a second granting of the variance request in a second meeting of the board this past week.

Mayor Proclaims New Week

Mayor Frank A. Dusch, in a presidential setting ceremony last Friday in his office at the new Virginia Beach Municipal Building, proclaimed the week of May 11 - 17 as "Small Business Week".

Mayor Dusch's proclamation called upon the Chamber of Commerce and industrial and commercial organizations of Virginia Beach to recognize the contribution made by the small businessmen to the progress and well being of the people of Virginia Beach.

Mayor Dusch also took advantage of the occasion to proclaim this week as "Police Officers Week" in Virginia Beach, and called upon the residents of the city to renew their support of those men who devote their lives to the protection of the city's residents and visitors.

Cavalier Play Is Delightful

Cavalier Dinner Playhouse's current production of "You Know I Can't Hear You When the Water's Running" is a thoroughly delightful evening in the theatre. This collection of four totally unrelated one-act plays, when viewed separately or as a whole, is pleasant and enjoyable.

As originally done the leads in all four were played by the same people, but Cavalier has expanded the cast somewhat, to excellent advantage. Several of the performers, however, do appear in more than one playlet.

Will Hicks has paced the four situations well. Never does the action drop when it should not. It is an up-tempo production all the way.

The first play, "The Shock of Recognition", deals with a modern-day playwright determined to have a very ordinary nude man appear in his next production. The producer is not game and tries to talk him out of it, even by showing him how ridiculous the idea is.

Jan Ewing does a nice underplayed job as the playwright and Charles Richman is very funny as the exasperated producer. Carol Saunders is convincing as the young, easily-embarrassed secretary. But it is Tom Story, who auditions for the nude role, that holds this one together. His plastic facial expressions and constant patter are highly amusing.

"I'll Be Home for Christmas", begins as a family-type comedy. The emancipated mother tries to discuss the children's sexual behavior with the old-fashioned father. It is all light and funny until the surprise ending that is both touching and terribly true-to-life.

Barbara Sellers is highly convincing as the mother with modern ideas. Everyone has met someone like her. Hank Mauro suffers well through the role of the beset husband and father, much to the amusement of the audience. Stephanie Rula perhaps portrays the small role of the high school aged daughter a bit too maturely, but does succeed in getting the point across.

In "The Footsteps of Doves", the action deals with an aging couple about to buy twin beds and mattresses. He does not want them. She does. He feels it is an end to their sex life. She could care less. But the entire matter changes when he meets a swinging young girl in the bedding department of the store who wants to buy a double bed instead of a twin.

Jan Ewing is hilarious as the husband and dirty old man. Barbara Sellers is perfect in the can't-be-bothered wife's role. Carol Saunders is definitely pleasing as the young divorcee. And Skip Newton gives a sweet portrayal to the role of the bored bedding salesman.

In the final play, "I'm Herbert", an elderly, senile couple has difficulty keeping each other's name straight, especially since both have been married twice before. Their conversation is almost side-splitting. Tom Story is excellent as the old man and Stephanie Rula could not be better as the old woman. Their comedy timing is most enjoyable.

The entire production is an outstanding one, and one of the finest offerings in Tidewater in recent months. HJL

Area Plans Day

This weekend is filled with plans for Armed Forces Day celebrations. Special activities have been planned by Fort Story and Naval Air Station Oceana, as well as by the City of Virginia Beach.

The 12th Annual Armed Forces Day parade will be held on May 17. This is a joint undertaking by the city of Virginia Beach and the Chamber of Commerce in recognizing members of the nation's Armed Forces.

The parade will start at 10 a.m. at 10th Street and Atlantic Avenue, proceed north on Atlantic past the reviewing stand at 25th Street and will end at 31st Street. A special added attraction will be a performance by the U.S. Navy's famed Blue Angel flying team. This precision flying group will give a demonstration over the ocean immediately following the parade. The air show will be along the boardwalk.

In addition to the parade a military-civilian ball will be held Saturday night at Pembroke Mall.

One of the special attractions to be featured during Naval Air Station Oceana's Open House celebration on Sunday, May 18, is a freefall skydiving demonstration by the UDT/Seal Parachuting Exhibition Team from Little Creek Amphibious Base.

Also featured on the program will be the Navy's flight demonstration team, the Blue Angels, and the Flying Processor. The gates will open at 10 a.m. and the air show will begin at 1 p.m.

Armed Forces Sunday will be observed at the regular Protestant Worship Service at 10 a.m. in the Chapel of the Good Shepherd at Oceana.

Fort Story will hold Open House on May 17 with a full program featuring aerial displays, underwater diving demonstrations, inspection of a field kitchen and numerous displays of weapons and military equipment and surface-to-air guided missiles. Post Commander Col. Daniel K. Byrne invites the public to join in Fort Story's celebration of 1969 Armed Forces Day.

Those attending the Open House join Army personnel in rides over the dunes and into the sea on the amphibian vehicles LARC's. Children will be treated to jeep rides and a continuous showing of cartoons at the post theatre. Army buses will transport all to the main activity areas. At audience intermission times, refreshment stands and mobile canteens will dot the main display areas.

Some of the features of the day include a demonstration by the 79th Transportation Battalion of the capability of LARC's amphibian vehicles and an explanation of the Nike-HERCULES missile by Battery D of the 4th Missile Battalion.

BADGES & BANTER

Capt. Robert K. Halstead, officer in charge of the Police Central Services Division, has been in Poughkeepsie, N.Y., this week attending the IBM Customer Executive Program school. Halstead underwent a course in the utilization of computers in modern day police work.

Another reminder that this is "Volunteer Firemen's Month" in the resort city. Support those fire fighters who devote their time and energy to the protection of your life and property with your cash donation to enable the departments to finance their operations.

During discussions this past week with various members of the police department on our skill, or the lack of same, in the popular game of golf the conversation centered around the age old battle of lowering individual scores. Vice Squad Sgt. Carl West told us he feels his game has reached the point where he is just about ready to "take on 18 holes". (A word of caution...he sounds pretty confident.)

Lt. Claude W. Simmons, Police Training Officer, who has the unusual hobby of studying the habits of snakes and collecting specimens of various species, has just returned from a trip to Florida, during which he was able to obtain a number of unusual specimens to add to his collection.

Officer Charles E. Stinson, who in addition to his regular police duties is also a member of the Davis Corner Volunteer Fire Dept., acted as handler for the Department's mascot during last Saturday's contests between fire fighters at Princess Anne Plaza Shopping Center. The mascot is a female Dalmatian named Lady Flame. When asked if Lady Flame was playing any significant role in the days events Stinson replied, with a sly grin, "not unless our team gets too far behind in the competition. Then you'll really see her go into action".

One of our visits to the 3rd Police Precinct, in the Bayside Borough, this past week coincided with the time a number of the men at the precinct were taking a few moments to enjoy their lunch, which consisted of good sized individual servings of chicken-in-a-box, ADR 2 D.T. ## No Time to Boast

Norfolk and Virginia Beach have agreed on an interim contract by which Norfolk garbage will be dumped in Virginia Beach. Both City Councils have accepted the far-reaching decision.

Virginia Beach City Manager Roger Scott recommended that the cost per ton to Norfolk be twice what it costs Virginia Beach to dispose of its own garbage. He based this on Norfolk's double charge to Virginia Beach residents for water.

Now he has offered Norfolk an out. While a permanent garbage contract is being set up and a permanent water contract is being set up, Scott has offered to negotiate the price downward, if Norfolk will do the same.

Many do not remember the last water contract negotiations a few years back which became so steam heated that there was a threat of cutting off the Norfolk water in Virginia Beach. Virginia Beach had no bargaining point then. Now it does, and it seems that much good can come of it.

This is no time to boast of having Norfolk over the garbage pail. This is the time to take a realistic view of cooperation between two cities which should have been cooperating to a much greater extent in the past. If having what the other needs is what brings this about, then a useful purpose can be served.

This should be merely a beginning, instead of in interim solution, of cooperation on a variety of municipal matters that can benefit both cities. If either city drops the ball this time, they may never find it again in the tall grasses of controversy.

Both cities have a great opportunity here in this matter. They must make the most of it.

The Zoning Jam

City Council faces an ever-increasing zoning and use permit docket each month. Two to three hours are often consumed hearing these matters, many of which are the center of controversy.

The far-reaching implications of Council's decisions, particularly where new apartments and townhouses are concerned, are ominous. Growth cannot be stymied, but Council must guard against putting itself into a tax bind when additional schools and other services are needed for these new dwellings. Often, therefore, decisions on these projects are deferred for months at a time, causing more of a jam-up.

And then comes a motel use permit on the rim of a fine housing development. In the most recent case the land was already zoned for this purpose, but arguments by lawyers, residents and the civic league lasted interminably. Much of the verbiage should have been argued in a court of law, not in Council Chambers. And many of the residents had too much to say that amounted to mostly repetition.

This is not an isolated case. Gas stations, commercial zoning, industrial zoning and even office buildings and parks often run into long-winded, hot-tempered discussions and opposition by civic leagues.

The time has come for Council to limit debate to the pertinent. Lawyers and civic leagues should be so warned. Fair play is important, but hissing and cheering residents or many rebuttals by opposing lawyers no longer have a place on a crowded docket or in a progressive city.

The Way of Progress

Growing pains are often the worst kind of pains. For Virginia Beach as a whole this has been increasingly obvious in recent years as a fledgling city has worked diligently to take its rightful place.

Virginia Beach borough is now what is left of the old city of Virginia Beach following merger with Princess Anne County in 1963. Expediency was employed in setting many of the conditions of the merger.

Another matter is currently reaping the harvest of that expediency. Sewer rates in the old city were ridiculously low. At merger they remained so, while rates in other city lines and for private companies have been much higher.

In the borough new lines were added, new pumping facilities were added to meet growing demands and new personnel had to be hired. Still the rates stayed low. Now the old pumping station is going and the city-owned lines will be connected to lines of Hampton Roads Sanitation District. City Council has set a uniform rate for all its city customers. Private companies will do the same. Some are already in the process.

The rate for the old city borough jumps many times, and the residents are up in arms. The fact remains, however, that the rates should have been hiked before this. These folks have no real basis for complaint. They have been granted dispensation long enough. Now they too must suffer the growing pains of the rest of the city.

'VANDALS!'

Pollard Commended

Editor, VIRGINIA BEACH SUN: Mr. Pollard is a leader of the people of Virginia and is expected to set an example for the citizens and parents of our state.

I think this is a part of our troubles in the nation, as the leaders are citizens and parents too, but they seem to be exempt from punishment.

I do admire Mr. Pollard's stand on the matter. One final comment. We all lose time from our jobs, whether housework or running the country, when we go to court.

Jessie Palmer

Disgruntled

Editor, VIRGINIA BEACH SUN: The marker along Shore Drive for Route 60 is confusing. Somewhat abnormally once I glimpsed it and took it for the speed limit. Although I was not caught, a passenger in my vehicle brought it to my attention.

However there is no excuse for Mr. Caton except his foxy mind and glib tongue.

There is much unrest among the general people since the political change in our city - to the point that many are considering moving out of the District.

There are no minimum wage laws, we are told - yet the utilities are rising again, and the high real estate taxes are causing the poorer class of people to sell their property. There is no choice. They just cannot pay them.

In the meantime more and more apartments are going up. The occupants do not have taxes to pay, yet the children have the benefit of public schools. Please do not print my name. Just sign me Disgruntled with the new order

Legislators Human

Editor, VIRGINIA BEACH SUN: In answer to your SUN SURVEY question, "Should members of the Virginia General Assembly be exempt from arrest . . .", no, I do not feel they should be exempt from ANYTHING. They are only human.

They can speed, run stop lights and signs and perhaps even cause an accident. Why, just because they are Virginia legislators, should they be exempt from arrest of any sort. They are merely the common everyday working men. They are no better or worse than you or I.

This is my opinion, but I appreciate the chance to air my views. Thank you very much. Mrs. P. L. Pavey

Special Report

Low-Key Continues

The Jaycees of the state will be meeting in Virginia Beach this weekend, and it's the weekend of Armed Forces Day. Another army will also be moving into the city.

An army of candidates and campaign workers will be here. After all, what better way to get to the young business and civic leaders from across the state?

Schedules received from Lt. Gov. Fred Pollard, William Battle and Henry Howell early in the week indicate they will center their campaign in Virginia Beach sometime during the weekend.

Pollard will not be here himself. But a member of his ticket, Del. Guy Farley of Alexandria will be in town Friday and Saturday. Both Battle and Howell are expected to put in appearances, and some of the other Democratic and Republican candidates for statewide offices are also expected to show up either officially or unofficially.

Meanwhile Battle must have profited from seeing Fred Pollard's "secret weapon" in action. Mrs. Pollard was so described by Linwood Holton a few weeks ago as she campaigned in her husband's stead. Now Mrs. Battle, a frequent campaigner with her husband, has also struck out on her own. She visited a couple of service organizations in northern Virginia this week to "get her feet wet" while her husband was in the area nearby, but talking to different groups. More of this is expected.

Still no comment from Mrs. Howell so far, but she is also expected to take to the podium if it proves successful to the other two candidate husbands.

Stumping the hustings continues by all candidates, even as the talk of a number of joint TV debates near the end of the campaign looms. But the one unspoken question of the campaign so far remains why it is so low-key.

Political observers statewide now admit that the Democrats could very well be in trouble in November if they can't get back together after the July primary or an August runoff. And that could take some big doing if wounds are opened that require serious stitching.

Thus the candidates are so far doing what they always said they did before. Talking about the issues. But this time, there really is a difference. They are keeping personalities out of the issues. It can't continue, and the tacit agreement and unbelievable politeness is bound to end sooner or later. But it has been nice while it lasted.

The first indication that personalities and some good ole grass roots campaigning is in the works will probably come from Howell who is directing his appeal to the common man and fighting everybody else. Even his new slogan, "Let's keep the big boys honest," indicates this peaches-and-cream campaign won't continue much longer.

June promises to be a spectacular month, if the candidates can really generate any real enthusiasm in this campaign. A big vote will have to turn out to favor Howell or Battle, and they know it. It therefore behooves them to beat the bushes for votes. On the other hand a smaller vote is said to favor Pollard. But this three-man ticket is carefully, even methodically making itself known all over Virginia in a smooth campaign so far. All three will be in Virginia Beach for a coffee and campaign headquarters opening a week from today. That's the way it is going.

Most do not believe the low-key of the campaign can continue, but they know it must if the best interests of The Democratic Party are to be served.

And that's the dilemma still faced at mid-May, the same dilemma faced in mid-January.

SPOTS

By H. Joseph Lowenthal, Jr.

"Why don't we just hang out a sign with a big red cross on it?" she asked. "Then people will know there are sick people inside."

"That isn't very funny," he pointed out. "But don't try to make me laugh anyway, it hurts when I laugh."

"Most people get a tooth filled, and that's the end of it," she said. "Why do you have to be different?"

"Beats me," he said. "The dentist said it was a really bad one though. When he looked at the X-ray, he whistled, coughed, cleared his throat and said, 'Wow!'"

"What does that mean?" she asked.

"About 15 dollars, I think," he said.

"Well, if it's filled, why does it hurt now?" she asked.

"That's what I asked him when I called him tonight to tell him I was dying," he said. "He laughed and told me I couldn't be doing that, but I cried and assured him it was. Then he said he had drilled so that the nerve had been bared and that the saliva on the metal filling against the nerve was acting like a dry cell battery. See?" She thought for a minute, then said, "... (Whatever turns you on."

"I told you not to make me laugh," he begged. "It hurts."

"So what happens now?" she asked. "What does he do next?"

"He says if the nerve doesn't stop reacting, he'll have to take further action."

"What does that mean?" she asked.

"About ten dollars," he said, "for pulling it out."

"So take your pain killer like a good boy, while I see about the other patients."

"Does our oldest daughter really have bronchial pneumonia?" she asked. "That's what the doctor said this afternoon," she said. "She was all right when she went to school this morning, but she came home with a temperature of 103 1/2. He gave her two very nice, and expensive prescriptions."

"Is it serious?" he asked.

"It must be," she said. "He said to keep her home from school for one day."

"That's fine," he said. "She can keep her little sister company while she recovers from her ear infection."

"That's true," she said. "But I do hope she stays away from the baby. He has a cold."

"That reminds me," he said. "The cat's sick too. She threw up this afternoon."

"What's the matter with her?" she asked.

"You know how she's shedding," he said. "She swallowed too much of that long white hair... the same hair that gives you that allergic sneezing."

"I have some medicine the vet gave me for that. For the hair balls, I mean," she said. "I'll give it to her."

"Incidentally, how do you feel today," he asked as he clutched his jaw where a sharp pain had just gone through.

"Me? Oh, I feel fine," she said. "But then I've had six aspirin, two sinus pills and three tranquilizers since noon. That's the only way I can put up with all this."

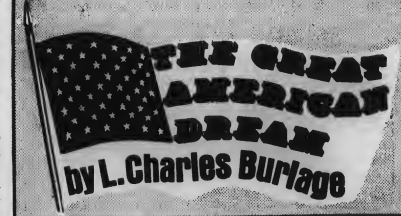

"You had all that medicine, and you're still walking?" he asked.

"No, I'm flying," she said. "Whewee!"

"Don't make me laugh," he said. "It hurts when I laugh."

"Rest awhile," she said. "I'll go hang out the hospital sign."

"Maybe we can apply for federal aid for our hospital," he said. "Then we can afford to pay the doctor and medicine bills."

Virginia Beach, notwithstanding its current budgetary problems, is potentially the wealthiest city in Virginia. If this potential exists, why is our city experiencing financial difficulties?

In 1926 Harry F. Byrd stated, "What I am trying to do here in Virginia is not a politician's job at all. I am simply trying to run state business with the reasonable efficiency of a big corporation". Without agreeing 100% with Mr. Byrd's political philosophy, one certainly should adopt this portion of his fiscal policy as being applicable to Virginia Beach today.

The city needs less of a political approach and more of a business approach to its day-to-day problems, and their solutions. It won't be too long in the future before the electorate will stop believing that high officials have "nothing to do with tax increases."

The solution to the city's fiscal problems lies in two areas. First budgets should be reduced and secondly, income should be increased. This article will deal with budget reduction.

How can the Virginia Beach budget be reduced? Since the largest portion of the budget lies in the area of education the search should begin there. One change in the policy of school construction could conceivably save millions of dollars annually. Why not start putting second floors on all single story schools and thereby double the classroom facilities without the need for additional land purchases or supervisory personnel? If this is considered undesirable, why not operate the schools on a two shifts basis? This latter method would double the capacity for plant use without the need for additional capital funds for plant construction.

Another area of saving could come in the free-public transportation phase of the school system. Why must Virginia Beach school children be transported "gratis" to and from school. All the neighboring cities charge for this service.

Other opportunities for savings exist in the school system such as the present system of unique architectural designs for each school, but these three suggestions, i.e., doubled decking the schools; or in the alternative, using split shifts; and charging for school transportation, if followed, would not only make the present tax increase unnecessary, but in fact, would allow for a tax decrease.

Nothing I say here is intended to be in any manner critical of the new Superintendent of Schools, Mr. Brickell. In my opinion, he is one of the most capable public servants in Virginia Beach. Since the current school budget is $24,000,000, the School Board should be staffed by a proper blend of the finest financial business and educational minds in the city represented by all elements of the population who are willing to spend the necessary time to do the job.

The costs of operation can also be reduced by a general increase in efficiency throughout the various levels of government. Employees should only be permitted to operate city vehicles on city business. Incentive programs for cost saving ideas are invaluable in any large operation, whether it be government or private industry.

In short, Virginia Beach should try to conduct its business as Harry Byrd suggested in 1926, "with the reasonable efficiency of a big corporation."

Bureau Is One of Busiest

Unless you have ever lost a pet dog or cat, or been injured or bitten by a stray animal, you probably have not required the services of one of the busiest of the many offices, namely the Bureau of Animal Control.

The men of the Bureau are on constant patrol of the city aiding residents in locating pets which have strayed from home, checking on possible abuse of animals and seeking out animals which may endanger residents of the city.

R. L. "Duck" Reid, is Bureau supt. and is assisted at his office by Mrs. Mary Walker, who serves as Bureau secretary. Those who answer calls in the field and patrol the city include R. T. Munford, V. E. Brown, W. H. Clark, J. E. Merlino, R. E. Moore, R. E. Walker and C. E. McChesney. Halie Walker is caretaker of the Bureau's kennel, performing the many tasks involved for caring for animals in the kennels.

Reid and his associates profess that dogs running at large create the greatest problems and are responsible for the greatest number of dog bites in the city. During the month of April the Bureau received over 700 complaints regarding dogs at large and investigated 173 reports of dog bites. Those of the Bureau say that these problems may increase when schools shut down for the summer months.

Realizing how much a dog means to its owner, and vice versa, Reid is reminding residents of the City of steps which must be taken for the safe keeping of a dog. The law states dogs, six months of age and older, must receive rabies shots (and the owner must be able to produce a record of such shots) which must be repeated every two years. Dogs must also be properly licensed with a tag being attached to the dog's collar. Licensing covers an annual period from Jan. 1 to Dec. 31. Whenever a dog is taken on city streets or other public property the animal should be in the care of a responsible person.

The Virginia Beach Health Department and local veterinarians are jointly sponsoring two rabies clinics this month, for the proper inoculation of dogs. Clinics will be held on May 17 at the Ocean Park Plaza, and Creeds Fire Department and Kempville and Aragona Elementary Schools. Similar clinics will be held May 24 at the City Health Dept., (19th & Arctic), Kellam High School, Thalia Elementary School, and London Bridge Fire Dept. Clinic hours are 2 to 4 p.m., and a fee of $1.50 per dog will be charged.

Another major problem is that of dogs on the many beaches which line the resort city. The law prohibits dogs from being on the beach, including public and private beaches, from May 1 to Sept. 30.

Any violation of regulations governing proper care of dogs will make the animal's owner subject to a summons and possible fine.

Dogs which are picked up for infractions of the above regulations are taken to the Bureau's kennels, on Bendix Street off Bonney Road, and may be claimed by the dog's owner calling at the kennel in person. The kennels are open from 12 noon to 5:00 p.m. Mon. through Fri., and between 9:00 a.m. and 12 noon on Sat. After an animal has been "boarded" at the kennels for a period of five days, the animal is open for adoption to anyone who may wish to claim it.

In summarizing the Bureau's operation all of the personnel want to impress upon the many youngsters, and others, who may witness an animal being picked up by the Bureau personnel that none of the animal's "are put to sleep," but rather given a good home until the animal's owner claims it or a new home is obtained by a new owner adopting the unclaimed animal.

Realtors Have Week

The Virginia Beach Board of Realtors is joining with many of the other 1,550 boards of the National Association of Real Estate Boards throughout the country in observing Realtor Week, May 18-24.

The local board was organized in 1951 and is active in both the Virginia Association of Realtors, Inc. and the National Association of Real Estate Brokers. The Virginia Beach Board of Realtors, Inc. is located at 2407 C Pacific Ave.

The Red Cross Bloodmobile will visit Pembroke Mall on May 15 so that more of the Beach Realtors will be able to take part in the Realtors Week Blood Program.

Other plans for the year include hosting the Virginia State Annual Convention for the Virginia Association of Realtors, Inc. in October at The Cavalier. Robert Walnwright Sr. is convention chairman.

Officers of the Board of Realtors, Inc. are: Alfred William Wells, president; Hubert Bissett, vice president; J.W. Wood, secretary; Herbert Cooper, treasurer; Scott Brooks, Scott Taylor, Frank Abel, Robert Maxey and Bailey T. Parker, Jr., directors.

Luxury Motel Features View

Construction will begin on the $2 million luxury Fountainhead Motor Hotel in Virginia Beach within the next few weeks. The 12-story, uniquely-designed luxury oceanfront facility will be ready for occupancy by April 1, 1970.

The Fountainhead, to be built on the beachfront between 6th and 7th Streets, will be the tallest motor hotel in the southeastern part of the United States.

Evan McCorkle, of McCorkle and Northern, Architects of Virginia Beach, has designed the structure to contain no square corners. Even the walls of the 110 rooms will be curved, and each room will be afforded a view of the Atlantic Ocean.

The entrance to the motor hotel will feature a massive fountain, with a 50-foot jet stream of water shooting into the air. The base of the fountain is some 12 feet from the ground level.

Oversized rooms, including a sitting room area, are featured, and each room will be equipped with a refrigerator, bar and color television and land direct dial phones. The landscaped roof garden will have banquet facilities for 250 persons. Included in the plans are also a 125-seat restaurant, a beauty shop, special meeting room and a number of plush suites.

Leo J. Martone & Associates of Norfolk are the general contractors. A spokesman for the company says construction will begin about June 15. Virginia National Bank is financing the new motor hotel. Principals in the corporation are Larry Sanello, Anthony Sanello, Michael Savvides and Tommy C. Kyros.

R.L. Reid, (white shirt), Bureau of Animal Control superintendent, and Mrs. Mary Walker, Bureau secretary, are joined by men of the Bureau for this group photo.

Service Will Honor Police

Special memorial services will be held at 11 a.m. today in front of the police headquarters building at Princess Anne Courthouse.

The services will pay tribute to three police officers who lost their lives in the line of duty, and will also mark the observance of National Police Week.

One of the main highlights of the service will be the placing of a memorial plaque, obtained by F.O.P. members, on a permanent stone monument in the center of a specially constructed walkway on the lawn in front of the headquarters building. The plaque bears the names of deceased police officers Charles E. Porteus, a Princess Anne County police officer who was fatally injured in June 1952 while investigating a traffic violation, and Virginia Beach police officers Robert R. Monette and Roger L. McClung who lost their lives in Dec. 1968 during a police diving team training exercise.

The list of dignitaries scheduled to take part in the program include Police Chief Col. W. W. Davis, Juvenile & Domestic Relations Court Judge Phillip L. Russo, Judge George Vakos representing the various Virginia Beach Courts, Mayor Frank A. Dusch, Chief Justice of the Peace Alvin L. Rogers, Virginia Beach Bar Association Pres. Thomas Broyles, Lt. A. ## Festival Lowers Curtain

There will be no Friends of Music Arts Festival this summer.

"It's very sad, but we had to be realistic," said Mrs. John W. Musick, president of the Friends of Music which presented its first festival last summer. "We have just paid off the deficit from last summer. We considered having a one night festival, but one night just is not a festival."

According to Mrs. Musick, a survey of local businesses showed there was not enough support for a festival this summer.

"If the community doesn't support it, there's no use a handful of people working themselves into the ground over it," said Mrs. Musick.

"But we are planning for a festival for 1970 right now," she said, adding that the group also plans to have concerts next winter as they did this past winter.

Teacher Speaks on Unrest

Mid-City Woman's Democratic Club held a luncheon meeting May 8 at White Sands Country Club. Guest speaker for the meeting was Ed Booth, a teacher at First Colonial High School.

Booth, who teaches Government, Economics and International Relations, spoke on student disorders. In his speech Booth placed the blame for the present situation on elements of the national press, on the faculties of various institutions and on the lack of adult leadership in the country.

"Students today read more and know more than when I was a student," Booth said. He also stated that the youth of today should be taught that "things should be changed by orderly process... evolution, not revolution." As part of the solution to the problems of student unrest Booth said the young people should be more involved in governmental processes, but they would need better leadership from adults.

During the business session of the meeting plans were discussed for the convertible the club would have in the Armed Forces Day parade. The club meeting day was also changed from Thursday to Wednesday.

HERE COMES OLGA!

Friday night, gee what a night! Of course, if you remember, we had storm warnings for hail and terrific rains and wind. To start the night off I locked my car keys in the ignition of the car. Of course, I was very careful to be sure all doors were locked so no one could get in the car—even myself.

I was to be at a buffet at the Sea Horse for their formal opening at 6 p.m. and where am I? On Military Highway locked out of my car and the time is 6:45. Finally I found a man and he got a coat hanger and somehow retrieved the keys. Believe it or not I finally got to the buffet at the Sea Horse before it was all over. Roy Neil, the owner of the Sea Horse, each year formally opens with a buffet for his many friends.

Some of those attending were: Mr. and Mrs. S. Karageorge, Mr. and Mrs. Pete Scoppa, Phil Coleman, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Husted, Mr. and Mrs. Wyndham Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Meyers, Mrs. Wilma Davis, Carol Sutherland, Nick Ferraro, Dale Beasley, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Gardner, Mrs. Laura Lambie, Pat Babcock, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hewitt, Dick Shum-

Special Sandwich

Trim 3 large ribs Florida celery. Cut each into 3-inch lengths. In a small saucepan bring 1/2-inch broth or water to the boiling point. Add celery. Cover and simmer 12 to 15 minutes or until just crisp-tender; drain. Wrap a slice of bologna around each celery length; set aside. Spread 8 slices of white or rye bread with mustard or butter. Sprinkle 4 slices lightly with grated Cheddar cheese. Arrange 2 or 3 bologna rolls over cheese. Top with sliced salami and remaining bread. Place sandwiches on a buttered cookie sheet. Toast in a preheated moderate oven (350 F.) 5 minutes. Turn and toast other side 3 to 5 minutes longer. Yield: 4 sandwiches.

mate, Mr. and Mrs. N. T. Christie, Mrs. Inez Graham and Mr. and Mrs. George Davis.

Take it from me when it comes to buffets I do believe that the Sea Horse really deserves the gold medal. The food is not only delicious, but there is so much to choose from. This is the same buffet that is offered to the public when they go there to dine.

Man when I looked at that buffet table I almost flipped because I had been silly enough to eat a hot dog while the man was fishing for my keys. This killed my appetite for any more food and I was really mad.

This was the menu: corn, hot rolls, buttered macaroni shells, spaghetti with meat sauce, broiled fish, french fries, sautéed apples, country sausage, candied sweet potatoes, potatoes au gratin, macaroni and cheese, black-eyed peas, collards with ham hock, savory green peas, buttered carrots, home baked beans, scalloped ham, potatoes, buttered long grain rice, shrimp creole, chicken chow mein, fried chicken Sea Horse style, fish sticks, Virginia ham biscuits, old fashioned spoon bread, tossed salad, hot German potato salad, beets, cole slaw, fruit topped with cottage cheese, syllabub (custard with brandy and lady fingers), chocolate mousse and homemade cake.

Food like that and I ate a hot dog! How stupid can you get? But I had just about figured I would never make the buffet in time and in desperation turned to the hot dog.

Mrs. Sunny Vaughan, who manages the Sea Horse, is a delightful person who bubbles with personality and makes you feel so very comfortable when you are in her presence.

If you visit the Sea Horse this year remember me and the hot dog.

See you next week and lets hope my luck will be better. By the way, if you're planning to have a party, large or small, how about letting me know about it?

Mulch Useful in Gardens

The use of an organic mulch is an ideal way to handle a vegetable or flower garden. A one-inch layer of sawdust, wood chips, peat moss, lawn clippings or other relatively fine material should be used. If you have leaves or coarse plant refuse available, apply a two-inch layer around your larger growing crops like sweet corn, tomatoes, cucumbers or melons.

Mulch is very beneficial in conserving moisture and keeping the soil cool during hot summer weather. Mulch makes weed control much easier. It helps to suppress the germination and growth of weed seedlings, and those which do develop may be easily pulled out when the soil is moist after a rain.

One of the most important effects of an organic mulch in the garden is its improvement of the infiltration of rain into the soil. The mulch breaks up the impact of the falling water and causes it to run quickly into the ground. Rain puddles bare soil, and the water runs off, resulting in erosion and loss of moisture and soil.

Plastic mulches are very effective for producing flowers or vegetables where organic materials are scarce or expensive. They do not improve the organic matter content of the soil but are very effective in conserving soil moisture and controlling weeds.

Mulching enthusiasts will go to great extremes to practice their trade. Can you imagine rolling out the red carpet in your garden? Some home gardeners have collected old carpet and cut it into proper widths to fit between their rows of plants. If you follow this suggestion you will have a neat garden and a fine carpeted path to walk on when you cut your flowers or harvest your vegetables.

The carpet mulch should be taken up and dried out in the fall before storing for the winter. It may last for several years if handled carefully. Carpet with a rubber back is not as desirable as one with coarse heavy burlap. The layer of rubber will prevent rain from running through the carpet into the soil.

Another idea that may seem quite far out is to use newspapers as a mulch. It takes only a few weeks to have enough for a good sized home garden. Lay them out several pages thick after your plants are well started. The edges should be covered with soil to keep the papers from blowing away, or they may be pinned to the ground with short pieces of stem. These may be secured by saving some of the prunings from your shrubs.

to rot by the end of the summer. Punch some holes through the paper to allow better water penetration. It should be at least partly decomposed by spring and can be plowed into the ground when you prepare your garden for planting.

If you don't use mulch we would suggest that you don't cultivate or hoe your garden. This may sound like the poorest kind of advice but please bear with me a bit longer. Cultivating and hoeing may cause considerable damage to the shallow roots of your flowers and vegetables. Also, every time you cultivate or hoe your garden you stir up the soil and bring weed seeds to the surface where they will germinate.

In the small home garden it is much better to pull weeds by hand. If you start early and pull the weeds regularly when they are about 2 inches tall, it is not too big a job. And, once the first crop is eliminated you will have only small second and third flushes of weeds to pull. If the weeds get ahead of you and must be controlled by more drastic measures, do not cultivate deeply. Shave them off just below the surface of the soil with a sharp hoe.

Crab Salad in Two Parts

Spring is filled with days of candescent sunlight and light rain. Robins cock their heads for worms and children float small boats on puddles. Gardens bloom and cities promote Clean-up, Paint-up, Fix-up Weeks.

It is a time for meeting, talking and planning and for coffee shared with friends. Whether it is clear and dark or rich with cream and sugar, its flavor adds to our enjoyment of reawakened senses.

Let the coffee be as fresh as possible, brewed in a spanking clean coffee maker. Use one Approved Measure of Coffee (or two level measuring table-spoons) to six ounces of cold water. Porcelain or silver coffee-pot must be scalded before they are filled. Coffee should accompany food that is equally bouyant and fresh.

The two-layered jellied crab-meat mold can be successfully teamed with coffee and dessert for a spring luncheon. Too often the delicate flavor of crab is lost in a complicated preparation or dominated by too-powerful aromatics. Here, the lean crabmeat is set off by tartar sauce and fresh dill.

CRABMEAT SALAD MOLD
4 hard-cooked eggs, halved lengthwise
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
1/4 c. cold water
2 instant chicken bouillon cubes
1 c. boiling water
1/2 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
Few drops Tabasco
Green food coloring

2nd layer:
2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
1/2 c. cold water
1 jar (8 oz.) bottled tartar sauce
Fresh dillweed, snipped
2 pkgs. (6 oz. each) frozen Alaska King crabmeat, diced
4 hard-cooked eggs, chopped
1/3 c. sliced celery
2 tbs. capers
2 pimientos, diced
2 tbs. diced green pepper

For the 1st layer: Arrange halved hard-cooked eggs, yolk side down, in bottom of 6 cup ring mold. Soften gelatin in cold water. Dissolve bouillon cubes in boiling water; add Worcestershire sauce and Tabasco. Tint pale green with food coloring. Pour over softened gelatin; stir until gelatin dissolves. Pour about half this mixture into ring mold to partially cover egg halves (reserve remainder for second layer). Chill until almost set.

To make 2nd layer: Sprinkle gelatin on cold water. Add reserved tinted gelatin mixture; stir over hot water until gelatin dissolves. Blend in tartar sauce and dill; mix well. Add all remaining ingredients; mix thoroughly. Pack into ring mold on top of first layer. Chill until firm. Unmold on salad greens. Place a small glass dish in center of mold to hold additional tartar sauce, if desired. Makes 8 servings.

Hospital Gives Pins

General Hospital of Virginia Beach will honor its employees at a reception in the hospital cafeteria on Friday, May 16 in celebration of National Hospital Week, May 11-17. Pins will be presented to employees who have served for five years on the hospital staff. Making the presentations will be Hunter C. Phelan, President of the Board of Directors, and W. Earl Willis, Hospital Administrator.

Annually held on the week of the birthday of Florence Nightingale, National Hospital Week is sponsored by the American Hospital Association and observed by hospitals across the nation. The purpose is to help keep the people of the community informed about their hospital.

The theme, "Your Hospital - Pathway to Progress in Community Health," emphasizes how today's hospitals are seeking to establish new channels for delivery of health care. The traditional role of a community hospital has been to provide care for patients within its walls. Now, hospital services are aimed at rehabilitation, education, and prevention, as well as diagnosis and treatment.

There's Always Room for Patio

With another season for outdoor living on their minds, a lot of homeowners are taking a look at their patios...or the spot where they wish they had a patio...and wondering what improvements might be made.

Whether you're planning to improve your existing patio or constructing a new one, there are some fresh ideas being suggested by the American Association of Nurserymen. The easiest way to improve your outdoor living facilities, the Nurserymen say, is to plant for patio pleasure.

If you're constructing a new patio, plan it around an existing tree. An opening in the patio design for a tree or shrub will add beauty and coolness on summer days. If you will be improving the patio you already have, see if there isn't a way for you to plant a small tree within the patio design.

Avoid "messy" trees over the patio. Trees that drop flowers, shed bark, or have undesirable fruit will just be a bother.

A patio should have a wall or fence wherever it's needed to block out unsightly views; other than that, though, the fence or hedge should not be taller than one foot, because higher enclosures will have a confining effect. A low wall of shrubbery will set the patio apart from the rest of the yard without creating a sense of closeness.

Building or remodeling a patio gives a garden enthusiast practical, you can add charm with potted geraniums or other plants in containers.

This in-town patio shows how trees and plants can be used to advantage without having a crowded look to your outdoor living area. The greenery and color not only soften the harsh man-made lines of walls and fences but add depth to the patios.

Even the smallest home landscape has room for a patio. Make yours a cool, green, inviting place for outdoor living.

Mrs. C.E. Upton, Jr., Cape Henry Woman's Club president, presents a check for $500 to Mrs. Bashford.

Club Helps Campers

Approximately 33 underprivileged children will be able to attend camp this summer thanks to Cape Henry Women's Club.

The club presented Mrs. T. A. Bashford a check for $500 from proceeds from the club's Christmas in the Country open house. Mrs. Bashford and her husband operate Camp Hope Haven, which is sponsored by the Union Mission, on a 3,000 acre site on North Landing Road.

The camp was begun as a day camp for about 100 children nine years ago. "It was frustrating to take them out of their environment during the day and send them back to it at night," said Mrs. Bashford. "I agreed to head the camp if my husband would build cabins for them." Thus a permanent camp began. A pool and other buildings have been added.

Mrs. Bashford said that last year 569 children attended for a week. "It is free to each and every child," she emphasized.

"While we're dealing principally with underprivileged children, that doesn't mean just slums. Some underprivileged children live in nice homes--but they have no Christian education."

Mrs. Bashford added that the price of camp is often beyond the means of middle class families too, and they also are accepted. "Mixing the middle income children with the others imparts something...they learn manners and personal care."

The main source of income for the camp is money raised through appeals mailed to area homeowners. The cost per child was $10 per child last year to $15 per child for this summer.

Mrs. Bashford said that applications are processed on a first come, first serve basis, and that any child who applies will be accepted as long as there is room.

On its information brochure Camp Hope Haven is described as "where boys and girls begin to live."

Warm weather is apparently turning area resident's minds towards the out of doors. Many of those who are starting new lawns are, of course, getting a late start, depending on which grass they choose.

I am yet receiving many calls concerning the establishment of a Kentucky 31 Fescue lawn. Quite frankly, it is too late to begin a lawn using this grass. Kentucky 31 is a cool season grass, and must be treated differently than the warm season grasses. It should be planted during September and October, or during February and March; otherwise, it will not have the ability to grow the deep roots required of this grass for survival during the hot summers of Virginia Beach and Norfolk.

It should be fertilized with a light application of nitrogen no later than June 15, and should not be fertilized again until early fall.

Hospital Strives to Keep Pace

General Hospital of Virginia Beach will soon be going into its fourth year of operations. During the time of its existence the hospital has been in a state of constant change and growth, necessitated by the population growth of the area. There are some outstanding features of the hospital, such as the new intensive care unit, but one of the most distinctive features about the hospital has been its rapid expansion.

It is difficult to imagine living in an area with a population of 58,748—the population of Virginia Beach and Princess Anne County in 1960—without a community hospital, but that was the situation here nine years ago. The only hospital to serve the city and surrounding county was the 34-bed privately-owned hospital at 25th Street and Arctic Avenue. Three physicians had built it in 1948.

Patients from this area had to go into Norfolk for treatment, creating a hardship not only on the patients but on the doctor as well. Making daily hospital rounds was becoming more and more involved with the increase of traffic on the roads. Many citizens realized the extreme need for additional hospital facilities here to serve Virginia Beach and Princess Anne County in the 1950's.

In 1960 two separate projects were sponsored for additional facilities. One group was for a 100-bed hospital, Princess Anne County Memorial Hospital, to be located on a site donated by John Aragona in the Princess Anne Plaza development. The second group proposed a hospital to be located within the former city limits of Virginia Beach. This group pursued the hospital at 25th Street and Arctic Avenue in September of 1960 with plans to increase its bed capacity to 94 by expanding the facilities onto an adjoining site of land.

The hospital began operations as a non-stock, non-profit community organization on December 1, 1961. The building's interior was renovated and construction was begun on a two-story wing, which opened in December of 1962. The total bed capacity of the hospital was then increased to 141.

Fund drives were started by both the city and county groups, still for separate hospitals. Both groups applied for Federal assistance for hospital construction in 1961 under the Hill-Burton Act. Both groups were rejected by the Hill-Burton Agency of the State Health Department because both applications were for facilities to serve the same area.

On Sept. 19, 1962 the two groups announced their decision to consolidate their efforts and promote the construction of a new and larger hospital. This decision was influenced by three factors: one was a gift of 20 acres of land at Hilltop, given in memory of Dr. William Levi Old by his wife and his son, Dr. William Levi Old Jr.; another was the pending merger of Virginia Beach and Princess Anne County; and the remaining factor was the inability of either group to finance adequate hospital facilities without Hill-Burton assistance.

The groups combined their applications for Hill-Burton assistance and on Oct. 25, 1962, Hill-Burton administrators announced approval of the application and allocation of a three-year grant for $1,430,000. The contract for construction of a new 105-bed community hospital was awarded Oct. 14, 1963. The project, estimated to cost $2,690,000, was financed by fund drive contributions, the Hill-Burton grant and a mortgage loan.

The new hospital was dedicated on June 20, 1965, and opened for service on July 12, 1965. The population of Virginia Beach was 122,702. By then the city was a municipality, created by the merging of Virginia Beach and Princess Anne County.

The hospital made application for Hill-Burton assistance again in June 1966 for the construction of a 50-bed addition. In October 1966, the hospital received a grant of $363,000 to aid in the construction of a $841,000 50-bed addition. This addition, which was begun in September of 1967, was completed and opened for service on Jan. 6, 1969—the 50 beds attained 100% occupancy in two weeks.

An application for $2.8 million of Hill-Burton funds was made in June, 1968. This funding was to be used in the construction of a $5.6 million expansion program. In December of that year the hospital was notified that the application had been denied because of the lack of available funds. The hospital has now decided to proceed with a modified expansion program, costing $3.6 million in order to try and meet the community's needs—needs which are becoming tremendous, for the hospital consulting firm of Dr. Anthony J. J. Rourke and Associates, Inc., has estimated that the hospital should attain a bed complement of at least 370 by 1975 and expand its service department. By then the city's population will be between 200,000 and 300,000.

A look at some of the statistics prove the desperate need of the hospital facilities. There were 4,952 patient admissions to the hospital during fiscal year 1966, 6,044 admissions during 1967 and 6,321 admissions during 1968. Bed occupancy, which is recommended at 85% by the American Hospital Association, reached 90% in the last half of 1966. The average occupancy for 1967 was 125.8% and in 1968 it was 126.5%.

The facilities at 25th Street and Arctic Avenue were reopened as an annex on Jan. 16, 1967 and continued in use until January, 1969. Plans are now under way to reopen the annex within the very near future.

K. of C. Convene

More than 500 Virginia Knights of Columbus members, their ladies, guests and friends came to Virginia Beach's Cavalier Hotel last weekend to attend the 69th annual Virginia State Knights of Columbus convention. Friday evening the Virginia Knights of Columbus honored their State Deputy Sylvester J. Petrine at a reception.

A panel discussion on Pornography was held Saturday morning. Panel members included Norfolk City Councilman Sam Barfield, a strong crusader against pornographic materials flooding our U. S. mail system and being sold throughout the country; Dr. Sterling Decker, of Virginia Beach; and Capt. Harold C. Mape, a member of the Newport News Police Department. Panel moderator was Vern Jones, of WAVY-TV.

Guest speaker at the Saturday night banquet was Rabbi Harold D. Hahn of Norfolk's Ohel Shalom Temple. Rabbi Hahn is on the faculty of Old Dominion College, a member of the advisory board of the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith, a member of the Community Relations Commission of the Jewish Community Council of Norfolk.

Father Nicholas J. Habets, Knights of Columbus Council No. 4632, Virginia Beach, is hosting this 69th State Convention. The Council's Grand Knight is A.E. "Pat" Goodwin.

Navy Ens. Richard L. Stow, son of Navy Captain (Ret) Walter K. Stow Jr. of Forehand Lane, has made his first solo flight.

Rev. Gimenez to Speak

The Parents League of First Colonial High School will sponsor a program at the school auditorium at 8:00 p.m., Monday night, May 19, featuring a talk by the Rev. John Gimenez, who appears in the film "Way-out" presently showing in Norfolk. He is also director of "Proclaim".

John Gimenez, born in Spanish Harlem, N. Y., spent 16 years as a drug addict. During this phase of his life, which began at age 11 with the introduction of marijuana, he spent time in Sing-Sing, Harts Island Prison and various other prisons and reformatories.

Since his conversion from drug addiction, Gimenez has become an ordained minister and has devoted his talents to telling others of the tragedies and unhappiness that result from use of drugs, and in helping those already "hooked".

He has written a play called "The Addicts" and his new book "Up Tight" is fast becoming a best seller. He has established an organization called "Proclaim" with headquarters at 3101 Lens Ave., Norfolk. The program "Proclaim", which can be heard each Saturday at 5:30 p.m. on radio interviews citizens whose lives have been touched by tragedy as a result of drugs.

All parents and the general public are urged to attend and hear this speaker. Rev. Gimenez has already spoken to the students, who received him with great interest and enthusiasm.

Ayers was referring to a Constitutional amendment which could change taxation of farm lands.

This course is part of the 90 hours now required by the Virginia Real Estate Commission to license non-high school graduates. Those individuals with high school diplomas may take the first 30 hours of instruction which is designed to prepare them for the real estate exam.

The math course will be held at Princess Anne High School in room 509 and will meet from 7 p.m. to 9 a.m. on Mondays and Wednesdays, and will end on June 11. The course is open to anyone desiring to work toward license preparation, and to real estate agents who wish to increase their efficiency in math.

Interested people should contact Clifford H. Lewis, Distributive Education Service, Princess Anne High School at 109-1261, Extension 41.

Festival Scheduled

"Spring Festival" will be the theme for the Point O View Elementary School PTA program on May 20 at 7:30 p.m.

A delightful evening is planned full of dancing and singing by the students of the school. A King and Queen will also be elected and crowned May King and Queen on this night.

A bake sale will also take place after the program.

Outstanding Cadet Named

Cadet Lt. David Samples of Princess Anne High School has been selected the outstanding cadet of the Naval Junior Reserve Officer Training Corps (NJROTC) in the Tidewater area.

Cadet Samples will receive the award at the Naval Reserve Association dinner May 16, at the Breezy Point Officer's Club, Naval Air Station. Cmdr. T. J. Broecker, Jr., USNR-II, president of the Hampton Roads Chapter Naval Reserve Association, will present the award.

Samples was selected from nominations submitted by principals from Princess Anne, Kecoughtan and York High Schools. The school of the selected cadet will receive a trophy which will be kept by the school until another outstanding cadet is selected next year.

Cadet Samples is the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Samples of Hessian Road.

Plan Requires Money

The next step is up to Virginia Beach City Council. The U. S. Army Corps of Engineers has presented a plan for protection against beach erosion and for building up the present beach from Rudee Inlet to Fort Story.

The $17 million plan came in the form of a detailed report which was presented to City Council informally at its meeting last Monday by C. J. Robin. The federal government would pay $10,687,000 of that, but non-federal funds must pay the remaining $6,313,000.

Robin asked for a statement of interest from Council and said he would like to have some sort of assurance that the city would cooperate in funding of the project. He said he plans to submit the report to the next higher headquarters by July 1 and asked for some type of commitment from the city by then.

Council agreed to appoint a committee to work with the Engineers and to study avenues of raising the necessary money, which would include an additional annual maintenance cost of about $300,000. A decision was promised by the June 23 City Council meeting.

City Councilmen were generally in favor of the project, as was the Virginia Beach Erosion Commission, now charged with beach nourishment in the area. But all were hesitant to take any concrete action because of the cost of the project, and until more studies were made.

Robin told Council that the federal money would probably be meted out in several stages over a period of several years if the project is finally approved. He added that the recommended three-phase project could probably be broken down into even smaller projects if the city could come up with enough money.

A representative for the State of Virginia told Council that state money is not possible for the project at this time, but that it may be in the future.

What is envisioned by the Engineers is a beach high enough, wide enough and with proper bulkheading to withstand the effects of a 100-year storm expected once every 500 years. The storms of 1933 and 1962 devastated much of the oceanfront areas of Virginia Beach.

Since 1953 the Virginia Beach Erosion Commission has managed to get enough federal and state aid to widen the beach considerably and Virginia Beach has been cited as a major area on the east coast where erosion is being dealt with successfully and adequately.

The first phase of the Engineers' project calls for the construction of a 15-foot high sheet pile bulkhead in front of the present boardwalk which is about 12 feet high. The present sand elevation would be raised from 5.4 feet to 10 feet and the beach widened to at least 100

(See "Sand," p. 2)

Charges Termed Ridiculous

Retired Virginia Beach Police Chief James Ed Moore has termed "ridiculous" charges made in U. S. District Court that he was paid protection by gambler Charles M. "Whitey" Howard.

Howard's testimony came Monday at the outset of gambling and gambling conspiracy charges against four men, James L. Midgett, Robert Hudgins, Joseph Lupia and Howard Amduky.

Howard also mentioned a number of other Virginia Beach officials but did not make any real charges against them. Howard told the court he paid Moore 25 per cent of his one-third interest in gambling activities at one time.

In his often amusing testimony Howard said he went to the FBI in 1966 to tell all, in efforts to break up gambling in Virginia Beach. His former gambling associates are the defendants, but Howard said he'd rather see Moore convicted. He added that he had earlier asked for Moore's indictment, which was not granted.

Pollard to Open Headquarters

The first of the Democratic gubernatorial hopefuls to open headquarters officially in Virginia Beach is Lt. Gov. Fred Pollard. Along with the other two members of his ticket, Pollard will open the headquarters near Lynnhaven Road on Virginia Beach Blvd. at 3:30 this afternoon.

Following brief ceremonies there Pollard, State Sen. Carrington Thompson (running for Lt. Gov.) and Del. Guy Farley (running for Atty. Gen.) will be hosts of a coffee at the White Sands Country Club at 4 p.m. The public has been invited to meet the candidates.

Headquarters for gubernatorial hopeful William Battle have been established for some time a few doors east on Virginia Beach Blvd., but no official ceremonies marking the opening have been held.

No plans have been announced for a headquarters in Virginia Beach for the third Democratic gubernatorial hopeful, Norfolk State Sen. Henry Howell.

Council to Get School Report

The Virginia Beach School Board Tuesday received copies of a progress report of school construction and planning which will be presented to City Council at Council's request.

The report shows six school now under construction and six more being planned. In addition the report concludes with a paragraph stating that in the near future (June) "A study of Projected School Plant Requirements 1969-75" will be completed and presented to the School Board. A local committee has been working for future school needs, and Supt. E.E. Brickell announced that a committee from the State Board of Education will be here, probably in August, to make a separate study.

Presently under construction are Bayside Junior High, an addition to Creeks Elementary School, Kempville Junior High, King's Grant Elementary, Plaza Junior High, and an addition to Trantwood Elementary. Planned construction includes an addition to Seaboard Elementary, Vocational Technical School, an elementary school in Bayside, another high school in Bayside and an elementary school in North Virginia Beach.

Progress, as of May 20, is as follows:

Bayside Junior High—Junior high for 1,400 students. Completion date is Dec. 23, 1969, and progress is satisfactory.

Creeks addition—Four classrooms, new library, enlargement and modernization of cafeteria, two classrooms, administrative area, clinic and improved parking and bus loading facilities. Completion date is Sept. 15 and progress is satisfactory.

Kempville Junior High—Junior high for 1,400 students. Completion date is Sept. 5, and progress is satisfactory.

King's Grant Elementary—Rebuilding of burned school with addition of air conditioning and improved lighting and a gymnasium. Completion date is Sept. 3 for school and Nov. 2 for gymnasium, and progress is satisfactory.

Plaza Junior High—Junior high for 1,400 students. Completion date is July 3, and progress is fair—"not as rapid as we'd like."

Trantwood Elementary—Addition of four classrooms and two seminar rooms. Completion date is July 3, and progress is on schedule.

Planned construction: Seaboard Elementary—Ten additional classrooms and an enlarged library. Bids will be opened on June 11.

Vocational Technical School—"It's in limbo where it's been for some time." Funds have been authorized by the federal government but not appropriated. Supt. Brickell will appear soon before the House Appropriations Committee to plead the city's case. Matching funds from the city are being held until federal funds are available. A site on North Landing Road has been approved.

Bayside Area Elementary School—Elementary school for 900 students. Completion date is hopefully September 1970.

Bayside Area Senior High—A senior high school designed for approximately 3,500 students in grades 10, 11 and 12. A committee is working to formulate the philosophy, objectives and education program of such a school. It would relieve overcrowding of the Bayside area, since Bayside High School could be turned into a second junior high for the area. Eighth and ninth grades would be eliminated from Princess Anne High School. This facility will be needed by the fall of 1972.

North Virginia Beach Area Elementary School—Negotiations are being made to procure a site for a 900-pupil school in this area. J.W. Littleton, director of plant planning, said that he is "fairly optimistic" about getting a site. Part of Seashore State Park has been suggested. The suggestion was also made that this might be the city's first totally ungraded school.

Bruce McGuire, director of elementary education, and Mrs.

Mildred Wilson, assistant director, brought the School Board up to date of plans to initiate ungraded first grades in some of the elementary schools next fall in preparation for the possible institution of totally ungraded primary grades (grades 1 through 3) in all schools.

McGuire introduced the ungraded system by telling Board members what most schools now have—a self-contained graded organization, where enrollment is equal, promotion and detention of pupils is practiced and which follows a set curriculum.

He said that a committee has been working for a year to individualize instruction. "We recognized that the ideal in terms of organization of classes and organization of curriculum on an individual basis on a 1-1 pupil-teacher ratio," said McGuire. "This is not possible or practical. We are seeking some form of instruction that is more individual and which lets the children work to their fullest potential." He said the program might be begun in as many as 12 schools. Achievement test results of graded and ungraded schools will be compared at the end of the year for evaluation.

McGuire said that first grade will become a series of levels in reading, mathematics, lan-

Life May Be Sweeter Parking Solution Sought

Residents of Aragona Village and part of Princess Anne Plaza will breathe a little easier, or at least perhaps a little deeper, within the next 30 days.

Within that time the sewer lines for both areas, operated by Aragona Utilities and Princess Anne Utilities respectively, will be connected to the treatment lines and centers of the Hampton Roads Sanitation District, according to latest reports.

The odor in the areas has been a major contention of residents over a long period of time. A spokesman for the engineering division of the State Corporation Commission told a group of Aragona area residents who banded together to form a civic league last week that when HRSD takes over the lines the smell should finally leave.

Aragona Utilities and Princess Anne Utilities are both owned by John Aragona. The latter has applied to the SCC for a large rate increase, but the SCC spokesman, Robert Tuck, said the increase from $10.50 to $28.50 will probably be denied by August. Oral arguments are set for June 25.

The City of Virginia Beach had requested that a similar request by Aragona Utilities be delayed until the Princess Anne case is settled. The increase requested is from $10.50 to $18 per quarter, plus the HRSD charge of about $4.57 per home. The city will fight the increase as it did in the Princess Anne Utilities case. That case is now set for July 17.

Meanwhile Monday City Council informally approved an extension of the franchise area of Pembroke Utilities, which said the new area was left out of final plans for the system by accident. City Attorney Harry Marshall said that until recently both the City

VEPCO Study Ready

The results of a major economic study of the city of Virginia Beach will be presented on Thursday, May 29 at a meeting of the Virginia Beach Development Council at the White Sands Country Club.

The study was conducted by the Virginia Electric and Power Company at the request of the VBDC. Guest speakers at the dinner meeting will be Gov. Mills E. Godwin, Jr. and J. R. Perrow, VEPCO manager of area development.

E. R. "Dick" Cockrell, Jr., VBDC president, will accept the report from VEPCO officials.

Company researchers worked with a local committee composed of area business and government officials in obtaining the data to be included in the report. Among the major topics covered by the study are the area's physical assets, manpower, market resources, government and finances and representative industrial sites.

The study will serve as a directory of current information and is designed to be used by anyone interested in the present and future economic development of Virginia Beach, according to VEPCO officials.

Copies of the report will be distributed to city officials, development organizations, the

Godwin

Virginia Division of Industrial Development, railroads, colleges, universities and local public and school libraries.

Several months of effort have gone into the compiling of the information.

Commenting on the study, Cockrell said, "The study should prove valuable in promoting the economic development of our area. We are grateful to VEPCO for this contribution to our development program."

Scott Makes 'Suggestions'

The Virginia Beach Beautification Commission got more than it bargained for when it invited City Manager Roger Scott to be guest speaker at the annual meeting held last Thursday at the Cavalier Beach and Cabana Club.

Members, apparently, were expecting a pat on the back for their many beautification efforts around the city. But Scott's talk centered on constructive criticism.

"The first thing you've got to do to be effective is to come out of your Ivory Tower," said Scott. "You've got to come out and do the work and sweat to make this a beautiful city."

"You've got to make it city-wide," he added in pointing out that 80 percent of the membership is from Virginia Beach Borough. "Reach out beyond the Borough and make it a Virginia Beach Beautification Commission, not a Borough Commission."

He proceeded to point out the wide program of beautification undertaken by the Memphis, Tenn., in the 1930's. There the Memphis City Beautiful Commission has area chairmen, block captains and a speakers bureau.

"You can't beautify a city at four meetings a year (which the local group has)," said Scott. "They (Memphis) have a city-wide beautification effort, and I say we do not in Virginia Beach."

Then paraphrasing the famous quotation of John F. Kennedy, he said, "Ask not what your city is going to do for you; ask what you can do for your city."

Specifically, Scott suggested a clean up, fix up, paint up campaign. Then he suggested that the Beautification Commission, which has long fought billboards, try to improve the looks of the entrances to the city by erecting one large sign for all the civic club signs rather than have them strung out along the highways.

He also suggested that the Commission have parades of its own or at least participate in local parades, and also sponsor beautification inspections or contests. "The City will help you in these efforts and in most cases make whatever available for beautification. Tell me what you're going to do for the city, and the city will in the majority of cases go out of its way to help you."

Plans Will Be Announced

Virginia Beach businessman David Levine will unveil final plans for the development of the old Seaview Beach property this afternoon at a press conference at the Shore Drive Inn.

Levine purchased the old amusement park property and a large tract of adjacent land near the intersection of Great Neck Road and Shore Drive several years ago and announced plans at that time for several resort motels, high-rise apartments and other resort-oriented businesses, but the development has been bogged down for some time.

At one time last year, Levine offered several acres to the city of Virginia Beach for a cultural-convention center on his property, but the offer was rejected because the area was considered too far away from the oceanfront resort area.

Levine has said in the past he hopes to develop the Seaview area into a major resort area also. His plans now call for a $100 million complex at the site.

Work will also begin shortly on the final four-lane segment of Shore Drive (Route 60) from near the property at the gate of Fort Story to Atlantic Avenue, thus making the area more accessible.

Levine's press conference and luncheon is being held in conjunction with the Bayside Businessmen's Association.

Suspended Sentence

William L. McLaughlin, 18, of the Malibu Palms Apartments, has received a 12-month suspended jail sentence on conviction of burglary charges.

is opened. He said the situation could be mutually beneficial to both cities.

Adams, on the other hand was recommending a change in the Virginia Beach City Charter that would set up trade restrictions against Norfolk trades and professions to keep them from working on public works projects in Virginia Beach, as he said Norfolk had against outsiders.

Almost immediately another candidate, Richard Guy, jumped on this statement, saying that Adams had made an erroneous comment at a time when co-operation between Norfolk and Virginia Beach is at an all-time high. He cited particularly the recent garbage agreement and pending negotiations concerning water mains and the purchase of water. He also agreed with Middleton concerning the hotel-motel accommodations cooperation for Scope.

Guy hit Adams by saying that the closest he came to apologizing was a statement that he "was delighted to read that the restrictions of which he complained do not exist." Guy added that Norfolk officials were obviously disturbed over the charges. He called for a complete retraction by Adams.

Both Guy and Bruce Murphy, the other independent candidate, have been busy making the rounds of coffee and civic meetings speaking to large and small groups alike.

The first real confrontation of the campaign came last week when Adams told the Pembroke Civic League that Guy was backed by "the political organization that has been in power for 28 years," an obvious reference to the political forces aligned with Sidney Kellam.

Guy countered that he was not a part of any organization, and suggested that Adams and Middleton were part of a "political machine run by one of our city officials," an obvious reference to the forces of City Treasurer, V.A. "Jack" Etheridge, credited with putting the Adams-Middleton ticket together. Middleton, however, insisted he is an independent. Murphy also assured the audience of his independence.

McLaughlin pled guilty to charges of burglarizing the White Sands Country Club last Aug. 25, when the club was named the Bow Creek Country Club. Wine and beer representing a value of $153 was reportedly taken from the building. Police investigators said that McLaughlin in addition to admitting the Bow Creek Country Club burglary assisted them in naming others who took part in that burglary and who were allegedly responsible for burglaries involving the Aragona Moose Lodge and seven Princess Anne Plaza model homes. McLaughlin, according to officials, was only charged with the Bow Creek Country Club burglary.

Two Bound Over

Two men charged with the manufacturing of illegal whiskey have been bound over to a Circuit Court grand jury. Police identified the men as John Dull, Back Bay Station, Virginia Beach, and John Powell, of Chesapeake. Officials said both men were arrested during an April 13 raid on a still located in a wooded area near a house on West Neck Road. The still, with an operating capacity of 1,650 gallons and a potential capacity of 1,925 gallons, was one of the largest illegal whiskey stills ever uncovered in the city of Virginia Beach.

Suit Settled

John C. McCollum and his daughter Alice have been awarded a settlement of $37,000 in a legal suit resulting from an accident which claimed the life of Mrs. Geneva McCollum. The former principal of Holland Elementary School was fatally injured in a two-car collision last Aug. 11 outside Williamsburg. McCollum had sought a sum of $75,000 in the death of his wife. Defendants in the suit were named as Samuel E. Diggs, of Nyack, N.Y., identified as driver of the auto which collided with the McCollum car; the Ford Motor Co., manufacturers of the Ford sedan being driven by McCollum, which the suit contends had an improperly fitted rear seat; and Beach Ford Inc., which the suit contends modified the rear seat in such a fashion as to cause it to rip loose from its fittings during the impact of the collision.

'Top' Injures Boy

A four-year-old Virginia Beach boy escaped serious injury early Tuesday morning when he, according to police, accidentally shot himself in the leg. Investigators said the child found a loaded 22-caliber pistol in a cabinet in the kitchen of his 20th Street home. The youngster apparently thought the weapon was a toy, and inserted toy caps behind the hammer then pulled the trigger.

Youth Div. Sgt. Douglas McCloud, Princess Anne FOP Lodge president walks away from the new permanent monument outside police headquarters after placing a wreath. The new monument honoring police officers killed in the line of duty was unveiled last Thursday during the ceremonies.

Scott Will Be Speaker

Roger M. Scott, city manager of Virginia Beach, will be speaker at the annual meeting of the Princess Anne County Historical Society on Sunday, May 25, at 3 p.m. at Emmanuel Episcopal Church in Kempsville.

According to Edmund S. Ruffin, Jr., president of the society, Scott will outline city plans for helping the Society to carry out plans for the preservation and restoration of historical landmarks such as Pembroke Manor House and Upper Wolfswarne.

The meeting will be open to the public and refreshments will be served.

feet. The bulkhead would be capped with concrete. This would be done from Rudee Inlet to the end of the present boardwalk at 37th Street. From there to 57th Street the construction would be the same except timber bulkheading would be used.

From 57th to 69th Street the plan calls for construction of dunes 40 to 48 feet and a beach elevation of 8 feet for 100 feet then sloping toward the water. The dune would be 25 feet wide.

While the carrying out of the plan could run into much red tape and could be many years to completion, general feeling of city officials is that it is a good plan and is hopeful it can be implemented. Money, as usual, is the prime problem.

Transportation Is Hang Up

Irby N. Hollans, Jr., travel promotion director of the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce, told the annual spring and the company thought the area was already included.

Marshall also said the company was requesting a new $8 a quarter fee, plus the HRSD fee, before the SCC, but information after the meeting showed that no rate adjustment has been sought, although a petition is expected to be filed in the next week or so. No rate had been set for the petition early this week.

The area where the Pembroke Apartments are to be built was the area in question. About 900 new customers will be added, Marshall said it was his information since the company had already installed lines and stations adequate for this area, they would have to increase rates to take up the slack in volume if the extension were not granted.

In Virginia Beach Borough HRSD was to take over sewage treatment last week, and other city lines will be connected in the near future. The city rate has been set at $6 per quarter plus the HRSD fee. Scott explained at the informal meeting Monday that the city can charge less since it does not have to worry about making a profit or pay taxes.

banquet meeting of the Innkeepers of Virginia Beach that they could fill their motel and hotels every night of the year if there were better ways to get the people here.

Hollans based this on interest abroad, especially in the Scandinavian countries, as well as in this country, in Virginia and in Virginia Beach.

He said the new 747 super-jets which will carry about 362 passengers on long transcontinental and international flights will be operating out of Dulles International Airport in Northern Virginia by next February. He added that only 21 airports in the United States are large enough or equipped well-enough to handle the 747.

Hollans said that about five to ten years will be needed to plan and build another major Virginia Airport which will handle the new planes, which cost about $33 million each, as well as to meet the needs of future planes.

He added that the Tidewater area, with its vast amount of open-land would be ideally located for such a new airport, but stopped short of criticizing officials in the area for not making plans now.

At present plans call for Norfolk's Regional Airport to be enlarged and runways lengthened, but Hollans said the 747's will hardly use the airport because it will still be too small to handle fully-loaded super-jets for cross-country or trans-oceanic flights.

Hollans has recently returned from Everett, Wash., where the 747's are being built. He said he was awed by the massiveness of the operation there.

In the near future Hollans said the State Chamber will sponsor a travel promotion trip to Scandinavian countries to sell the United States, Washington, D.C. and Virginia. He added that the people there are interested in our Eastern Seaboard in the spring and fall, when it is often too cool for Americans to visit resorts.

Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce executive vice president Albin Mailhes echoed Hollans' words. He said that his office had been unable to handle the tremendous volume of mail inquiries which have come to the Chamber in recent weeks. He said this is the first time this has been the case.

Charles Gardner was again installed as president of the Innkeepers. George Davis was re-elected as vice president also.

Fire Controlled Without Injury

By Les Lehigh

Men of the Virginia Beach Borough Fire Department and Second Police Precinct disregarded their own safety in saving the lives of occupants of the fifth floor of the Cavalier Hotel when dense smoke and fire filled the corridors early Monday.

Carrying hoses and other equipment to fight the fire the men rushed up stairways and began making their way through the smoke-filled corridors checking all rooms and loading occupants to safety. Fire Chief E. B. Bayne said some of the first to reach the fifth floor included fire Lt. Eugene G. Patton; police Sgt. Edward Adams; and police officers Claude Norton and R. T. Talbot.

Fatton said, "When I opened that door on the fifth floor, it sounded like bedlam. People spilling down the hall, policemen running up and down the floor warning people. You could hear people yelling and rushing around, and the smoke was real heavy."

Sgt. Adams said he, Norton, Talbot, and a Shore Patrolman (later identified as ADR2 C.L. McCoy) had started working each floor of the hotel "beating on doors and warning people." Adams said when they found Room 530 locked they "tried to get into it through a ladder vent but couldn't do it."

Meanwhile the hotel switchboard operator was making phone calls to all the rooms warning occupants of the situation. She discovered the occupant of room 530 was still in his room, and unable to get out. This was reported to Sgt. Adams as he returned to the lobby.

McCoy said when he and Adams got up to the fifth floor they were hit by a wall of smoke, and people were still coming out. "We rushed back upstairs and found the fifth floor blocked by fire. I went to the floor below to continue evacuating the building, while Adams went downstairs for help in reaching whoever was in room 530." Adams said he reported the situation to Chief Bayne, who alerted firemen to begin moving a fire truck aerial ladder into position. The occupant of room 530, identified from hotel records as Ralph White of New York, was quoted with saying he awakened to find his room filled with smoke, and as he left the room it burst into flames. He attempted to extinguish the flames, but was unable to get back into the room. He then joined others making their way port News, was crouched on a ledge outside the window of his room. The aerial ladder was raised, and firemen led White to safety.

White later said he "was notified by phone of a fire, but I couldn't get out the door." White said he then "tied bed sheets together, secured them to the bed, crawled out the window onto the ledge," and used the bedding to hold himself securely while the ladder was being raised.

Occupants of the hotel included agents of the State Farm Insurance Company and their wives, who had checked into the hotel late Sunday for a three day meeting. Ironically enough the topic of the conference was insurance claims settlements and adjustments. Hotel records show 353 persons had checked into the Cavalier for the conference. Of these 58 were occupying rooms on the fifth floor.

T. Carter Coates, of Richmond, who with his wife Katherine was occupying room 526, said, "I waked up and smelled smoke. After checking our room I put on my pants, looked down the corridor and saw a haze. I came down the elevator and told a woman on duty back of the reception desk area, 'I don't want to alarm anybody but I smell smoke.'"

Coates said he was assured it was coming from the hotel incinerator, and that he went back upstairs. Upon reaching the fifth floor Coates said he "smelled more smoke and the haze was obviously heavy by now, and I went back down a second time." A hotel employee was sent to check. Upon his return, according to Coates, the man's eyes appeared to be watering and he was told to go tell whoever may have been operating the incinerator to stop any burning of trash. Coates then said when the man returned he reported a room was on fire, and that "by this time people had started coming down the stairway."

The fire began in room 514, which was occupied by R. H. Horton of Richmond. Horton has through the hall, knocking on doors warning other occupants. The fire investigation is being conducted by Milton Holland, Chief Fire Inspector for the city. Holland says his investigation thus far shows the fire was probably caused by careless smoking. Holland added, "There was some delay in reporting the fire. Occupants of the building apparently attempted to extinguish the fire before sounding the alarm. That fire had burned for some time before it was reported."

The question has been raised of the possibility of an earlier fire occurring in room 514, prior to the blaze which routed occupants. This point was discussed with Cavalier General Manager Charles S. Krummel Krummel placed damage from the fire in excess of $100,000, and said that repairs are underway and the hotel is continuing operations. When questioned about previous fires in the resort city landmark Krummel said the only other fire of any consequence took place back in the 50's, when fire broke out in the lumb room and spread up into the Cavalier Room through the vents running through the hotel.

those property owners who do not have enough room to get the boats or trailers into the back because of little property on the slide, especially where there is a fence. In the RS-4 zoning area most houses only have six feet from the side of a house to the line.

John Gibbs, of the inspection division, which will be charged with enforcing the ordinance, said that campers used as family cars would not be affected because they would be moved at least every 24 hours.

Complaints have come from several quarters about the equipment blocking traffic, creating traffic hazards or just creating a nuisance or marred beauty. At present an ordinance prohibits parking as has been done, but it has not been enforced since many felt it has not been workable.

Council authorized City Manager Roger Scott to enter into a temporary agreement with Trailways to provide four bus trips a day from Seatack to Birdneck Point and to Cavalier Park and Bay Colony. The request for the trips came from a Negro action group several months ago as an aid to getting domestic help to and from their jobs.

There were no objections from Birdneck Point, but Cavalier Park and Bay Colony Civic Leagues both objected. The permit can be terminated by either party if the service does not prove to be successful.

Council heard a request for a $1,000 appropriation annually for the Virginia Beach Safety Council, which is now totally supported by about $200 in annual contributions and by volunteer work.

A new tax ordinance dealing with trailers in trailer parks was also put forth. The ordinance will be presented next week that would require a regular $25 merchant's license on each house trailer in the park, plus 6 per cent of the park's gross profits. Under existing regulations, the city has been realizing extremely low taxes.

Council agreed to go along with the Rudee Inlet Authority and the Shadowdown Civic League and prohibit any more dredging or bulkheading in the Rudee Inlet area until the bulkheading line is fully established and until a Planning Commission study regarding uniform standards of piers and the like in the area is completed. It is expected to be finished shortly.

A letter outlining procedure for doing away with City Council primary elections, staggering terms of Councilmen, electing the Mayor every two years, and giving Councilmen more money was received from City Attorney Harry Marshall.

Charter changes are required which must be done by the Virginia General Assembly. To be effective next year the changes would have to be adopted on an emergency basis in January. Council took the entire matter under advisement.

In addition Council agreed to hire an actuary firm to study recent retirement benefits of police and firemen in the city as put forth by the Fraternal Order of Police Associates, but asked that the firm study the benefits to all city employees instead.

Because of the length of the agenda, Councilman George Ferrell asked that in the future a written agenda for the informal meetings be received prior to the meeting as is done for regular meetings. Scott agreed.

Easter Heads New Class

Elgia L. Easter, Extension Agent, Agriculture for the VPI Cooperative Extension Service, will be in charge of the new horticulture program at Kellam High School next fall.

Easter, who has been in Virginia Beach since 1965, has announced his resignation, effective June 30. Kellam High School will be the first to offer courses in horticulture. According to Phil Meekins of the school personnel department, there has been increased demand for this type of class.

"His line of work isn't changing; his employer is," said Meekins.

Easter has worked specifically in the fields of ornamentals, horticulture and turf. He majored in horticulture in college.

Art Festival Is May 25

The Art Judges will be Barbara Spector and Harriet Goldberg. They are winners of many prizes and awards. Their work is currently on exhibit in shows and galleries throughout the United States.

There is a $5.00 donation requested. The money received from the Arts Festival will be used for the Art Scholarship Fund.

Two to Attend Fashion Show

Two well known Virginia Beach residents have prominent roles in a three-day fashion exhibit to be held at the National Guard Armory in Bluefield, W. Va. June 8-10.

Milton Soffer, Automobile Circle, is second vice president of the sponsoring association and Everett Stone, Poland Brothers representative in this area, is promotion chairman of the semi-annual event. He is also on the show's board of directors.

Commission Rejects Plans In Favor of Modification

Two alternative plans were turned down Tuesday by the Erosion Commission in favor of one which calls for the modification and utilization of equipment the Commission already owns.

One plan, which would include the purchase of a new 12" cutterhead dredge and other equipment necessary to operate it, was estimated at nearly $450,000. The second plan, the purchasing of a new 10" cutterhead dredge, was estimated at nearly $150,000.

Both plans were turned down when Joseph McDonald, consulting engineer from the firm of Langley, McDonald and Overman, pointed out that there was no guarantee that future conditions would make even this new equipment adequate for an extended period of time.

The adopted plan will cost approximately $10,000. This figure will cover the cost of modifying the presently owned 10" cutterhead dredge and the building of a floating breakwater. Modification of the dredge includes covering the stern with a 3/4 inch steel plate.

The Commission's smaller sand-sucker dredge is presently undergoing modification. Elsworth Morse, Commission superintendent, estimated that it should be finished in about two weeks. Once it is completed it will be put into use at Rudee Inlet and the larger dredge, after modification, will move into Owl's Creek.

McDonald informed the commission the annual off-shore survey will be scheduled within the next few weeks.

Two to Attend Fashion Show

Two well known Virginia Beach residents have prominent roles in a three-day fashion exhibit to be held at the National Guard Armory in Bluefield, W. Va. June 8-10.

Milton Soffer, Automobile Circle, is second vice president of the sponsoring association and Everett Stone, Poland Brothers representative in this area, is promotion chairman of the semi-annual event. He is also on the show's board of directors.

Commission Rejects Plans In Favor of Modification

Two alternative plans were turned down Tuesday by the Erosion Commission in favor of one which calls for the modification and utilization of equipment the Commission already owns.

One plan, which would include the purchase of a new 12" cutterhead dredge and other equipment necessary to operate it, was estimated at nearly $450,000. The second plan, the purchasing of a new 10" cutterhead dredge, was estimated at nearly $150,000.

Both plans were turned down when Joseph McDonald, consulting engineer from the firm of Langley, McDonald and Overman, pointed out that there was no guarantee that future conditions would make even this new equipment adequate for an extended period of time.

The adopted plan will cost approximately $10,000. This figure will cover the cost of modifying the presently owned 10" cutterhead dredge and the building of a floating breakwater. Modification of the dredge includes covering the stern with a 3/4 inch steel plate.

The Commission's smaller sand-sucker dredge is presently undergoing modification. Elsworth Morse, Commission superintendent, estimated that it should be finished in about two weeks. Once it is completed it will be put into use at Rudee Inlet and the larger dredge, after modification, will move into Owl's Creek.

McDonald informed the commission the annual off-shore survey will be scheduled within the next few weeks.

Bedding tied together and used in his escape by a man trapped by the fire, dangles from a window of room 530 (arrow) moments after the occupant of the room had been rescued by firemen who raised an aerial ladder to the window to lead him down to safety.

Sand For the Beach

The U. S. Army Corps of Engineers has put forth an ambitious sand erosion and rebuilding program for the Virginia Beach oceanfront from Rudee Inlet to Fort Story. It calls for raising the level of the beach, widening the strand, a new seawall that would protect against almost any storm and various other provisions.

But it only can be done at a high cost—about $17 million. If approved by Congress and if the money is meted out in small increments over a period of years, with no change in the total amount of appropriation, the project might be completed in the next ten or 15 years.

That is dependent also upon local participation, or more realistically, non-federal money. Somewhere about $6-plus million must be found by the city to take part in the program if it so desires.

State money cannot be counted on at present. Grants or other sources are tenuous at best.

So if the city does agree to take part the burden could fall on the taxpayer. City Council has appointed a committee to look into the matter fully and make its recommendations by the end of June. Hopefully a favorable report will be forthcoming.

Although the beachfront and resort businesses are not a panacea for the entire city, the tourist industry is quite important, economically and otherwise. The city should investigate every possible avenue of getting funds to participate in the project, especially if it is spread over a period of years.

Even if the taxpayers have to pay for it and continue to maintain it the money will be well spent in aiding the continued growth of Virginia Beach's resort industry and in making our city unrivaled as a resort of the future. The Army is offering a chance and we must take it.

A Place To Park It

It is expected that next week City Council will pass on first reading an ordinance that will do away with one sticky situation and add another.

Campers, large and small trailers and large recreational equipment are now being parked illegally in driveways, in side yards and on city streets, while enforcement officers have been looking the other way. The law forbids this parking, but for well over a year the city has been trying to come up with a reasonable ordinance covering the entire matter.

The ordinance to be presented next week will finally forbid all such parking, prescribe legal parking areas and be enforceable. This should answer the problem of aesthetics and end most of the complaints about safety and parking problems. But in areas where the lots are too small to park the equipment legally on the side of the house because of being too near the property line or because the side yard is too small to get the thing around back, there is going to be a big problem.

The owners may even have to rent storage space elsewhere or find a willing friend. The complaints are also expected from those who drive campers regularly as the family car, but there is reason to believe a catch-all phrase in the law regarding movement of the vehicle in every 24 hours will take care of this.

The ordinance should write a final chapter to the array of recreational equipment in residential areas which admittedly has created some problems, but there is doubt that this is the last we'll hear about the new ordinance.

Money For Safety

The Virginia Beach Safety Council, affiliated with the National Safety Council, and made up of a few dedicated Virginia Beach residents interested in all types of safety, has been working diligently in the schools, with civic clubs, with youth groups and with just about anyone who would listen.

Its members work free and give up much of their free time to do it. The only support of the organization has been through contributions, which have been ridiculously small.

City Council, quite used to groups of all kinds, municipal and otherwise, coming to ask for money to operate, heard a request from the safety group Monday for an annual appropriation so that the members do not have to continue begging for donations of postage, paper and everything else.

They will continue seeking contributions also, they say, if Council sees fit to cooperate. Now for the shocker. They are seeking only $1,000 for this very worthy cause to supplement the pitifully low $200 annual contributions. Hopefully Council can see the way clear to grant this small request.

How the safety council has been able to carry out its excellent work so far on so little and has been able to make such an impression on the community is totally unbelievable, now that the dollar amount of its operation has come to light.

Prevention of auto, home, and boating accidents through education is certainly worthwhile work. The Virginia Beach Safety Council deserves the support of all of us and of the City. And its members deserve our thanks.

Concerned by Trend

Editor VIRGINIA BEACH SUN: As a member of the Virginia Beach Beautification Commission and a resident of Thoroughgood I am deeply concerned with the trend of commercial exploitation of beautiful residential areas by developers. The motives of this private interest group, in the issue of Thoroughgood, is questioned because when commercial rezoning was granted in 1955, presumably the intent was to provide commercialism to serve the community under conditions then existing. Now (1969), 14 years later we no longer have this need. There are ample businesses available of all varieties, and practically within walking range.

Conditions have changed drastically. Today Thoroughgood is considered a well established residential community, the aspect of commercial zoning was well concealed, the combined investment of homeowners is approximately 40 million dollars as compared to the private interest of the Real Estate Corporation, with an inflated property valuation of $200,000. They would still stand to make a 1,000 per cent profit if the 12-acre tract is rezoned back to single residential.

If this grave situation is not stopped NOW it could very well serve as a demoralizing blow to all civic-minded residents of our potentially great city and severely affect the image of Virginia Beach in the long-range.

Special Report

Who's Winning the Races?

The pollsters are at it again, and unless patterns set in years past are changed, they will do little more than confuse the issues and voters.

Not that the political polls are always wrong. They came close in the 1969 Presidential race. They told it like it was. But no one old enough to remember Thomas E. Dewey will ever forget Mr. G. and his 1948 poll.

The Fred Pollard-Carrington Thompson-Guy Farley ticket folks are all elated over the recent poll taken, and quite possibly with good reason. The results show that the William Battle forces are losing ground.

That sounds fine, except this is the first time anyone in the Pollard camp ever publicly admitted he had gained any in the first place.

Supposedly the Battle poll showed him far ahead. The Pollard poll supposedly shows a neck-and-neck race for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. They were taken at different times.

As far as is known so far Henry Howell hasn't taken a poll, but maybe now he'll have to, if only to "keep the boys honest." What it all really means right now is open only to conjecture. Battle has been running hard and strong. Pollard was stuck in the President of the Senate's chair for two months during the special session of the Virginia General Assembly. Howell is flitting all over the state, ignoring his home ground, where he is certain of many votes.

The only poll that really means anything comes on July 7. That's the day the voters give the results of their poll.

And at the present time those voters who admit quite frankly to being undecided still control the balance of power. They always do.

Certainly the state of Virginia deserves a hot contest, full of neck-and-neck races. This is as it should be in a state that has been accused of not giving way to progress for so long. The voters this time have clear-cut choices that can be made in all three slots. Then they'll get another chance in the fall when Linwood Holton runs against the Democratic winner. Wonder if he's made any plans about having a poll taken yet?

The weekly schedules of appearances for candidates is beginning to show more and more activities as the time of the primary draws ever closer. Candidates seem to be turning up often in diverse sections of the states. And its bound to get worse.

The sad commentary on all of this is that a runoff primary in August is almost a certainty. That means two of the candidates will have to go through all of it again. All very expensive and all very complicated.

By the time November rolls around the general public is bound to be candidate-tired. The excitement of a dynamic personality or a dynamic campaign or even dynamic issues is still lacking, and unless something goes awry, that's the way it will probably remain. No one can afford to make anyone too angry, for fear of sending the party into many parts after the primary.

Locally those running for the House of Delegates are still very carefully sidestepping support for any statewide candidate, although both Rhae Adams and B. R. Middleton are placed solidly with the Battle faction. Richard Guy and Bruce Murphy say they are staying out of that.

There has even been one clash so far of personalities in Virginia Beach. Adams accused Guy of belonging to the Kellam Organization and Guy called Adams and Middleton a member of the machine run by Jack Etheridge. It had to happen sooner or later. So no one was surprised.

But now that it's been said, maybe we won't hear it again. Anyone who calls that wishful thinking is right.

And so 1969, supposedly an off-year in elections, takes on a dramatic new dimension locally and in Virginia. The eyes of the country are on us. Now it's up to the voters...and the pollsters.

SUN SPOTS

By H. Joseph Lowenthal, Jr.

"Hold still," she said, as she came toward him with the tape measure. "What are you going to do with that?" he asked. "Measure your ears, of course," she said simply. "Your sideburns look uneven, since you got a haircut." "Oh, for heaven's sake," he said. "Get away from me." She measured. "Aha!" she exclaimed. "It's just as I thought. Your ears are uneven. No wonder there's an inch difference in the length of your sideburns." "That's ridiculous," he said. "I'm not that deformed." "Yes, you are," she said. "One ear is 2 1/2 inches long, and the other is 3 1/8."

You're Pulling My Leg

"I don't believe it," she screamed. "One side of my nose is a quarter of an inch shorter than the other. I never knew that."

"See," he said. "I told you so. But don't worry about it. One of my feet is bigger than the other." She measured her feet.

"Mine are exactly the same," she said brightly, but after more measuring, she screamed again. "But my finger span on my right hand is a half-inch less than on my left hand." "I have perfect, dainty little fingers," he said. "Try your arms. One of mine is a half inch shorter than the other. I just measured them."

She did and screamed a third time. "There's a whole inch difference in them."

"You know, all this is really ridiculous," he said. "The body develops in halves, you know. Nothing is entirely symmetrical."

"I just never thought about it," she said. "Hey, maybe that explains..."

She measured her legs. "Now what are you doing?" he asked.

"I knew it," she said. "That's why I walk funny. One leg is shorter than the other. No wonder I couldn't pass physical education in college for so long. That's why I'm uncoordinated. I'm off balance."

"If anybody would come in here and see us measuring ears, noses and legs, they'd think both of us were off balance," he said.

"You don't understand how happy I am," she said. "All my life I've wondered why I couldn't play volleyball or swim. Now I know. One leg is shorter than the other, and I'm off balance."

"I fail to see the direct connection," he said. "But I am glad you're so happy about the whole thing. If I'd known there was so much of a problem I'd have measured your legs years ago."

"I'll bet that's why I couldn't hit a tennis ball or handle a croquet mallet or play pool," she said.

"Wonderful," he said. "If you're not too off balance how about fixing me some dinner? Use your longer arm to turn on the stove. And stop pulling my leg."

"I don't think you're very funny," she said. "I just never knew I was such a mess."

"I did," he said. "But I'm going to thank my barber for cutting my sideburns wrong and setting it."

The previous article contained suggestions for reducing the budgetary expenditures of Virginia Beach. The next question is, how can Virginia Beach increase its governmental income? The answer, of course, is to foster a climate which encourages the growth of business. When it comes to paying taxes, residences simply cannot produce the revenue of a business. For example, Pembroke Shopping Center, when fully developed, will pay taxes of all forms equal to the entire real estate tax increase recently assessed.

Virginia Beach Blvd. is a potential source of tax revenue without parallel in Tidewater, Va. First and foremost, the feeder road has to be made into a third traffic lane for both east and west bound traffic. An investment of this sort would pay tax-revenue-dividends to our city for generations to come. The feeder road is a fatal deterrent to Virginia Beach Blvd. ever reaching its potential as a prime source of tax-revenue-producing businesses. Shore Drive has not been developed because water and sewage facilities are lacking. The development of Shore Drive would be a tax revenue bonanza for the City of Virginia Beach.

One aspect of the recent increase in real estate taxes could well encourage the development of commercial business in Virginia Beach. In the past, vacant land has been held by the owner because the taxes were insignificant, while the owner asked an exorbitant price for his property. With a more severe tax bite, the owner will probably be induced to place a more realistic asking price on his property and in this manner the commercial development of Virginia Beach will be hastened.

Virginia Beach is unique in the number of civic organizations operating within its boundaries. The writer on one occasion attempted to count them and after reaching 160, stopped. There must be at least 200 civic organizations in the city. These organizations have many desirable results, such as the encouragement and promotion of city and neighborhood pride. But when it comes to the commercial development of a city such as Virginia Beach, they also have some drawbacks.

With our neighborhood and commercial areas intermixed throughout the city, any time a business organization attempts to get a certain zoning classification or a use permit in order to conduct a certain business enterprise thereon, the probability is that he will have a highly organized civic group in opposition to him. This type of "political zoning" has cost our city millions of dollars in tax revenues. It has also literally driven from our city many worthwhile desirable business enterprises.

The only trouble with this system is that the city loses $278.62 annually on the average home in Virginia Beach while it makes money from businesses. Virginia Beach needs to encourage businesses to locate therein and to recognize their value to our city. This should be the official publicized position of our city government.

Events Attract Large Crowds

Armed Forces Day Weekend proved to be a big attraction for area residents, drawing an estimated crowd of 50,000 to the Armed Forces Day Parade at Virginia Beach Saturday and more than 65,000 to the Open House at NAS Oceana on Sunday.

Saturday's two-hour parade had 75 units marching. Judges for the parade included five military and civilian judges, headed by Col. J. K. Hostetter (Ret.), former commanding officer of Ft. Story. Kellam High School band was picked by them as the best civilian band in the parade and Little Creek's School of Music was named the best military band. Princess Anne Women's Club float was judged the best civilian float.

One of the main features of the weekend was the Blue Angels, who performed after the parade Saturday and again at the air show at Oceana on Sunday.

In addition to the Blue Angels the air show at Oceana featured a free-fall exhibition by the Navy's Underwater Demolition Team, a helicopter demonstration of search and rescue missions, Retired Navy Capt. Dick Shram ("The Flying Professor") and a police dog demonstration by the Virginia Beach Police Department.

As part of Armed Forces Day celebration Fort Story held Open House on Saturday. Numerous displays were set up for public inspection, including one of a field kitchen. Those attending were also given rides on amphibious vehicles, LARCs, and jeeps.

This float, sponsored by the Knights of Columbus Council #4532, was one of the many gaily decorated displays in the parade.

"There they are—I think!" said the onlookers as they searched an overcast sky Sunday for the "Blue Angels." The flying team was performing at the Air Show at NAS Oceana for Armed Forces Day Weekend activities.

Adults and children alike tour the BARC, one of the amphibious vehicles Fort Story had on display Armed Forces Day.

BADGES & BANTER

By Les Lehigh

Friends of police officer James E. McEvoy offer their sympathy on the loss of his son this past week. We understand young James Edward McEvoy, Jr., passed away following a long illness.

Congratulations are in order for officer Joseph M. Stacy, attached to the police Traffic Bureau, and his wife Barbara on the birth of their son. All reports indicate the young rookie weighed in at eight pounds, and that mother, father and the new arrival are all doing fine.

Floyd Waterfield, chief of the Creeds Volunteer Fire & Rescue Squad, says an open house will be held between 2 p.m. and 6 p.m., next Sunday afternoon at the fire station. The public is invited to attend a demonstration of the unit's Rescue Squad equipment, to better familiarize themselves with the service available to protect them in any emergency.

Milton Holland, Chief of the Virginia Beach Fire Inspection Bureau, has been elected president of the newly formed Virginia Fire Prevention Association. The primary purpose of the Association is promotion of fire safety programs throughout the state through education of the general public, and increased training for members

Wesleyan Contract Awarded

The Board of Trustees at Virginia Wesleyan College has authorized the award of a $908,030 contract for a new Science Center at Virginia Wesleyan College.

The new Science Center is the second major building in Phase II of the college's long-range development program. It will be located in the center of the 300 acre campus adjacent to the new $1,700,000 library now 80 percent completed. The library was the priority project in the $3,000,000 Phase II physical expansion program and will be ready for occupancy in the fall of 1969. The Science Center is scheduled for completion in August 1970.

A service building, to house the heating and mechanical support for these two major buildings and others to follow, is now also under construction. The service building will also eventually house the central kitchen for the projected four academic villages at Virginia Wesleyan. Only one Academic Village is now in operation.

In a statement to the Board, Henry Clay Hofheimer II, chairman of the Trustees' Development Committee, reported that the college had reached its local foundations. Wesleyan has also received authorization for a loan and a grant from the U.S. Office of Education on both the library and science center totaling $2,070,000 under the Higher Education Facilities program.

The Science Center will house classrooms, laboratories and faculty offices for the college's expanding science program and will be similar in design to the new library. College officials expect to sign a contract on the Science Center later this month with W. H. Belanga and Associates of Norfolk, low bidder among four contractors who submitted bids on the project in April.

of the various fire departments and bureaus of the Old Dominion.

While last Tuesday began quite normally in Tidewater police departments a slight amount of confusion set in before the day was over. Virginia Beach police officer W.A. Padon reportedly arrested a subject on a charge of trespassing, who reportedly identified herself as Linda Scott, who gave her age as 21 with a Portsmouth address. Officials said this same individual was arrested last week by officer Padon on a charge of unauthorized use of an auto and resisting arrest, and during routine processing requested a fingerprint check, for any previous arrest record, from the Central Criminals Record Exchange in Richmond, Va. The fingerprint check reportedly identified the subject as a Thomas Burke arrested last October in Norfolk and as a Thomas Nash arrested last December in Portsmouth.

Officials in Norfolk verified the arrest last Oct. 11 of a Negro male, aged 18 who gave the name of Thomas Burke, alias Barbara McNair, of Portsmouth on a charge of grand larceny of an auto. Portsmouth police officials indicate their records show the arrest last Dec. 7 of a Negro male, aged 18, who gave the name of Thomas Nash, alias Barbara McNair, of Norfolk on a charge on contributing and disorderly conduct.

Virginia Beach police officials Tuesday said they have definitely established the subject is a female. Yet we can't help wondering how this simple fact of emphatic gender classification will affect the records of the police departments of the cities of Norfolk and Portsmouth, and perhaps those of the records section of the Central Criminals Records Exchange in Richmond.

Manners Is Serious Comedian

by Joseph Lowenthal, Jr.

I believe that's the way He wants it."

On his golf game, he said, "Those pro-am tournaments are the greatest. A serious golfer should enter one. The White Sands course can be played many times, it offers challenges and can humble you."

He doesn't have too many

Mickey Manners is a very funny comedian. His rapid-fire, wisecracking can be seen and heard each evening through May 24 at the White Sands Country Club. Listen carefully or you'll miss about three jokes and you'll never catch up.

He was "discovered" by Tidewater audiences a few weeks ago when he appeared on the bill with Frank Sinatra, Jr. at the same club. The audiences liked him so much, as did the club's owners, that he was asked to come back for two weeks to go to it on his own.

One of the funniest parts of his act is his choice of a member of the audience to come onstage and do a routine with him. "I'm careful whom I pick," he said, "and we have fun with it. I begin trying to size up the audience as soon as I walk onstage and to decide which one will work with me."

Actually Manners was in Tidewater once before at the old Norfolk Candlelight Club, but he won't say how many years ago that has been. But he's ageless anyway, so it doesn't matter. He is a Californian now with a career that has recently taken a tremendous upswing. That upswing includes a feature role in an upcoming movie with Don Rickles and Clint Eastwood. The MGM film, "The Warriors" will be filmed in Yugoslavia.

But he is really a transplanted New Yorker who studied acting quite seriously along with Tony Curtis and Harry Belafonte before wandering into comedy because he "thought it was more lucrative."

"I think funny," said Manners, "and I enjoy comedy. But comedy depends on the people. The material is secondary."

Off stage Manners is a very serious person, although he can't help tossing out a funny remark now and then.

He is a dedicated man, dedicated to his profession, his family, his religious beliefs and his golf game.

On his profession, he said, "I like to think of myself as an actor who can do comedy, rather than a comedian who can act. I wouldn't do anything else."

On his family, he said, "My wife and five kids are my equalizers. I slowed down about five miles per hour with each new child."

On his deep religious faith, he said, "Yes, things are beginning to look up lately, but and he is looking forward to another series soon.

He says he has been pleased with the audiences in Virginia Beach but believes that more people should get out more often to night clubs.

"When you are lucky enough to have a club like the White Sands trying to offer top-notch entertainment, the public should demonstrate its interest," he said. "They're really trying to give the public something here, and the public should take advantage of it instead of saying there's nothing to do in this town."

Manners was dressed in his mod golf clothes while he talked. He's an early riser, and always ready to play golf. But the rains came Monday and Tuesday. His game was cancelled Tuesday morning.

He glanced at the wet course from the dining room window and made a wry face.

Mickey Manners is a very funny comedian, and a very serious person. With that combination and his faith in himself and others there's no wonder his career is getting off the ground. Eventually he wants to be a director. Look for his name soon when they give the credits for directing.

She Fell in Love with Wreck

By Carolyn McAllen

The Ash Wednesday storm is now famous or infamous to anyone who was living in Virginia Beach on March 7, 1962.

But the storm had one strange aftermath with which not everyone is familiar. It uncovered the skeleton of a schooner which, it was later discovered, had been washed ashore during an earlier storm in 1903.

Miss Ruth Epperson, well known local artist, was "watered in" her 62nd Street home for eight days after the storm because of flooding. She said she had a good supply of food and she was ashamed to ask anyone to bring her what she really wanted—ice cream.

"On the first day I could get out I went across Atlantic Avenue and there she (the schooner) was exposed," said Miss Epperson. "I fell in love with her. I took all my paint things down on the beach. Everybody that came by asked me the name of the wreck, and I couldn't tell them."

Thus began a search for the history of the wreck. After contacting the Coast Guard and even Lloyd's of London, she came up with the same answer. "All said if I knew the name they could provide the information." The painting of the wreck completed, Miss Epperson named it "Reappearance."

But that was not the end of her search. She called the Cape Henry Lighthouse and asked for their records, but found out they are only kept a year.

"People who know me know that if I have a bill of goods to sell, I'll keep talking," said the determined Miss Epperson. "I was advised to find a father or grandfather who had been in the Lifesaving Service. It used to be separate from the Coast Guard.

"I had heard the name Capt. Drinkwater and called him. It was his 90th birthday. Without hesitation he said the wreck was the "Ocean Belle", and it sank in November of 1903. He was only wrong on one thing—it was October of 1903."

Miss Epperson even has a copy of the Public Ledger (Norfolk) for Oct. 12, 1903 which tells of the storm that wrecked the "Ocean Belle" along with two other schooners and two barges on Oct. 10. One other schooner washed ashore at Dam Neck and another farther down the beach.

The captain of the "Ocean Belle" and a crew member were drowned. But three members of the crew were rescued by a Surferman Capps of the Seatack Lifesaving Station.

Surferman Capps, Miss Epperson discovered just this Tuesday, was Walter Napoleon Capps who, at that time, lived at Cape Henry. Miss Epperson planned to visit his daughter, Mrs. Lala Whitehurst, at Back Bay this week in an effort to learn the names of the three men her father rescued.

With the name finally determined, Miss Epperson went about trying to discover the history of the unlucky schooner. She was unable to get a picture of it, but she does have a picture of its sister ship, "Exeter."

The "Ocean Belle" was built in 1896 in Bath, Me., as a four-masted schooner barge. It was carrying coal from Newport News north at the time of the storm.

Garden Clubs 'Adopt' Classes

By Yatta Jones

"We began to work and then it just seemed to mushroom," says Mrs. G. F. Heuser, president of the Lake Shores Garden Club about the garden-therapy project sponsored by the Lake Shores and Town and Country Garden Clubs.

The idea of the project had its beginning right after the first of the year when Mrs. Heuser was looking for a garden therapy project that would supply the maximum amount of benefit to those involved. She knew Mrs. Ruth Cole, principal of Hermitage Elementary School, and she knew about the special education classes that are held at Hermitage.

Thinking that there might be a chance of the garden club's working with these special classes, she called Mrs. Cole. In the meantime a friend of Mrs. Heuser's who is president of Town and Country Garden Club, Mrs. William McHenry, became interested in the enterprise also.

Mrs. Heuser and Mrs. McHenry, both former teachers, went before the teachers of the special education classes—Mrs. W. L. Bimberry, Mrs. Cleveland Johnson, Mrs. William L. Owens and Miss Palmada Jones—and informed them of the two clubs' willingness to work with garden therapy in the classes. Two of the teachers, Mrs. Owens and Miss Jones, were extremely interested in the project...they felt that the children needed an expanded art program.

Each of the garden clubs took a class and began to work with them. At least once a week for the last three months several members of the clubs have worked with the children.

In addition to working with the children with garden-connected projects, the garden club members have helped with handicrafts and arts in the classes.

Wanted: Volunteer Aides

The Virginia Beach public schools will embark on a full-scale volunteer aide program next fall, expanding a program begun on a trial basis this year.

"We can use as many as we can get," said Miss Patricia King, supervisor of reading programs. "We want people—but only those who will show up."

Reliability is one of the main requirements. Miss King said that children are upset by disruption of their routine.

The volunteers always under close supervision, may be used in three ways: as pairs testing first grade children on the Titmus Eye Screening machine and administering an auditory discrimination test; as individuals helping (under the direction of teachers) one to three children from various first grade classes; as teaching aides working with children in the Center for Effective Teaching and Learning (opening in September), tutoring these children as prescribed by instructional personnel in that school in such areas as physical education skills, visual-motor coordination, reading, etc.

No experience is needed, but ex-teachers are welcome too. There will be a training period before aides are placed in schools. Qualifications expected of volunteers would vary according to their assignments. High school completion and a good command of English are minimum requirements. Some of the jobs would require college background with specialization of training. Any special backgrounds which volunteers might have in music, art, physical therapy, psychology, etc. would be used to the fullest.

The eight women in the pilot program this year are "doing a fabulous job," said Miss King. They are members of the Junior League, and other League members are doing similar work in Norfolk. They make up an auditory screening and an eye screening teams. Others are working with first graders in perceptual training, and one is working in physical training.

"To my knowledge everybody is happy with it," said Miss King. "One principal said the Junior League lady in her school was 'making a splendid contribution to education.'"

"We haven't had time to evaluate the actual progress of the children yet. But obviously one advantage is that some children, who would never get the individual attention they need are getting it."

So far Miss King's "recruiting" of volunteers has been aimed at service clubs and the Council of Church Women, but she is quick to emphasize that any individual who is interested is welcome.

"I can't place enough emphasis on reliability," she said. Volunteers are expected to work a minimum of three hours a week. Service should be offered at a specific time on a specific day(s) of the week. According to Miss King, some placements work better on a three hour block, one day per week basis. Tutoring types of placement work better on a one hour, three days per week basis or an hour and a half, two days per week.

Although aides are not now actually tutoring in subjects, Miss King hopes for this in the future. "In another year with some volunteers who are ex-teachers, we can put them into tutoring situations."

"The aides are a tremendous service to the community. This isn't new. The same thing is being done in many large cities with a fulltime person to coordinate them."

Miss King cautioned that aides would have to be as professional as teachers in not discussing pupils and personnel. She added that aides would probably not be assigned to schools in their own neighborhoods.

As an added inducement, Miss King said that volunteer service could lead into permanent paid jobs.

For further information, call Miss King at 427-3863.

Let's Transplant The Pumpkin

There's a pumpkin growing in an inch of dirt in a paper cup in my kitchen window.

Anybody who has read this column for awhile is familiar with the pumpkin situation around the house. Two years ago, when the eight-year-old was in kindergarten, her teacher gave each child a pumpkin seed in a cup to grow. Betty's did.

Not only did it grow, but it produced three huge pumpkins for her to share with her brother and sister—and also smothered a few of daddy's prize tomatoes along the fence. Then tragedy struck when the pumpkins, almost ready for picking, were stolen just a week before Halloween.

A farmer in Kempsville read the tragic tale in the paper and gave the kids three pumpkins. But that wasn't all. He called again last year and let them have three more—this time miniature ones. The eight-year-old saved some of the seeds for this year's crop. I thought (and hoped?) that she'd forget during the winter, but no such luck. So now we're in the pumpkin business again but with better results this time maybe.

Sort of in line with the above is a poem written by Betty Ann Boss, one of the staff members, dedicated to one we all know well.

Lo! The Lowly Earthworm.
To the earthworm in my garden,
If I hurt you—I beg your pardon.
'cause your body's long and skinny
Thru the garden roots you shimmy.
Thru rain and hail and sleet and snow,
Thru lime, 5-10 & 5 you go.
And on a strange and rare new plant,
You never look upon askant.
Underground—without a light—
You always help me in my plight.
'Tis you who loosens bits of soil,
As oh so dill'gently you toil.
You ask of me a simple nothin',
Yet, what you give is really somethin'.
So please, I ask, oh most sincere,
Hark these words aimed at your—ear(?)
Don't venture up during rain or drought,
Cause the birds will get you if you don't watch out!

Volunteers Receive Awards

General Hospital of Virginia Beach held its annual meeting of the Auxiliary on May 15 and presented nearly 200 awards of pins, service stripes and badges to hospital volunteers.

Mrs. Earle C. Van Buskirk was presented a 2000-hour award and a 2400-hour stripe. Mrs. C. U. Walkley received a 1600-hour stripe; Mrs. Burton Lee Doggett and Mrs. James R. McCaw Jr. each received 1400-hour stripes; 1200-hour stripes were given to Mrs. James M. Jordan Jr., Mrs. Joseph LaGiglia and Mrs. Edward Olejar.

In addition to these presentations were given to volunteers who had worked 50, 100, 200, 400, 600, 800 and 1000 hours. Teen-age awards were made for 100 and 500 hour volunteers. Teen-age recipients of 100-hour pins are: Judy Anderson, Gretchen Cooter, Jane Criscoe, Nancy Finch, Pat Holzmacher, Genny Johnson, Beth Minton, Pat Townley, Corliss Wilbanks and Joelle Williamson.

The Auxiliary also elected and installed officers for the coming year. The officers who were in office were unanimously re-elected. They are: Mrs. Rueben F. Trant Jr., president; Mrs. George G. Phillips Sr., vice president; Mrs. David G. Shellburne, recording secretary; Mrs. William D. Baldwin, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. Spencer Lott, treasurer.

Speaker for the meeting was Earl Willis, administrator of General Hospital.

Notice the landscaping outside East Gate of Fort Story at Atlantic Avenue and 89th Street. Similar landscaping also enhances the West Gate entrance off Shore Drive. The planting makes both entrances much more attractive. The Fort Story Officers' Wives Club donated the money for these beautification efforts to make Virginia Beach a more beautiful community.

Parsley Popularity

A gastronome once observed, "Take parsley from the cook and how can he practice his art?" Today parsley is the handiest kind of an herb, on the spice shelf in flaked form.

Classes

With the help of the garden club members the children made many different articles for the school-wide carnival. These articles included bricks covered with burlap, wastebaskets made out of ice cream containers, banks and pencil holders made out of tin cans and hot pads constructed out of popsicle sticks. For Easter the ladies assisted the children in making tissue paper flowers and rabbits out of bleach bottles.

Part of the work of the garden club members has included collecting articles that the children can work with, a job that was formerly undertaken by Mrs. Cole.

Unlike many continuing projects that begin big and then fall off, this one seems to work the other way. "Those who started at the beginning have continued to work at least once a week," says Mrs. McHenry. "Some even come over twice a week." Mrs. Heuser gave some insight to the success of the project when she said, "Those of us who have worked here feel that we have benefited more than the children...it has been very rewarding."

Another garden club, Thoroughgood, joined the two already occupied with the project a short while ago, leaving only one special education class without volunteer helpers when school begins next year. Mrs. Heuser and Mrs. McHenry are not too concerned right now, though, because they both feel that it is such a worthwhile undertaking that getting volunteer helpers will be no problem.

The children in the classes, are receiving needed attention that would be impossible without volunteer help, because qualified teachers for these classes are limited. The time and patience the two clubs have spent with the children is an invaluable asset in the special education program.

On the last day they were to visit the children this year, Mrs. Heuser and Mrs. McHenry took the children some cut-flowers and cherry tomato plants. "This summer when you are eating tomatoes," said Mrs. Heuser, "be sure to remember us." And they will, too.

Smoking May Cause Wrinkles

Smoking apparently encourages crow's feet and other unsightly wrinkles.

Dr. Harry W. Daniell, an internist, had made a study confirming earlier observations that more women smokers have slack, thin, wrinkled skin than do non-smoking women.

Dr. Daniell, who goes so far as to refer to such skin as "cigarette skin," remarks that some women pay more attention to a diagnosis of impending crow's feet than to "heart-to-heart talks and threats of catastrophic disease, delivered with grave countenance."

Cotton is the only major fiber that increases in strength when it's wet.

NWCA Council

Mrs. James Latham, Navy Wives Clubs of America Southeast Regional President and Mrs. James Counts, NWCA National Parliamentarian were honored at a luncheon given by the NWCA Tidewater Area Council May 14 at the CPO Club, Little Creek.

Mrs. Donald Cayton, National Activities Chairman and Mrs. Laurel Van Dyke, National Public Relations Chairman were special guests for the luncheon.

Guest speaker Stanley Nahill, National President Fleet Reserve Association, discussed the Widow's Equity Bill HR 6226, which pertains to retired military personnel.

Other guests present included Mrs. Carl Plavidal, Past Southeast Regional Vice-President, Mrs. Homer Jones, Past Southeast Regional Vice-President and National Parliamentarian, Mrs. A. H. Galvani, sponsor of NWCA Dam Neck No. 207, and members of NWCA clubs No. 143, 190, 207 and 241. Mrs. John Beard is president of the NWCA Tidewater Area Council.

Little Creek CPO

Installation of newly elected officers of the Little Creek CPO Wives' Club will be held May 24, 8 p.m., at the Little Creek CPO Club.

The new officers are: Janet Weidrick, president; Wilma Regan, first vice president; Norma Draper, second vice president; Carolyn Roehm, secretary; Florence Herrschaft, treasurer; and Vivian Janki, chaplain. New sponsor for the club is Mrs. Hardcastle, wife of Capt. W. H. Hardcastle Jr., commanding officer of Little Creek Amphibious Base.

The installation of officers will be followed by dinner and dancing.

HERE COMES OLGA!

Cocktails and buffet were the first part of the Kiwanis Club ladies night at The Americana. Dinner over, the club, of course, introduced their candidate for the Lotus Festival to their wives—Miss Loretta Bunting, 17 years old, a student at Cox High School.

The Kiwanis Club, when they start a project, see it through, and from the way the president talked about their candidate for the Lotus Festival, I would suggest that all the other clubs had better be prepared for strong competition against their candidate.

Pete Boshier was the chairman for the program. The entertainment he had for the club and their wives was the St. Mary's College of Maryland choir. Brantley D. Greeson is the director and Mrs. Greeson the accompanist. The choir consisted of 11 girls and seven boys. You look at these girls and boys who are so very gently and ladylike and you can't help but think of some of the other boys and girls who have turned away from the good things of life.

The choir sang 11 songs, starting their program with "Magnificat"; then changing pace to "Talk to the Animals". The voices of these young boys and girls were beautiful and they have been well trained. Listening to a discussion held by three men and one woman was quite interesting. The conversation was started by one of the men saying that men should be the kings and all women should bow down to them. Of course I am sure that he was talking about each man should be the king of his household.

One of the younger men of the three men spoke up and said that he felt that men very often did not give their wives the credit they so readily deserve. He went on to quote the number of years he had been married and how he felt about his wife, which was to me such a very nice thing for a man to say about his wife. She was a wonderful wife and mother and he knew without her his life perhaps would have never been as happy as it has been. He felt that women as a whole are never given the appreciation they deserve so very much from both their husbands and children. When this young man had finished, all the other men by that time were in accord with him. So ladies, you won't start bowing down yet to your husband as he walks into the house.

Those attending were Mr. and Mrs. Ambler Hatchett, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Johnston, Mr. and Mrs. Hurley Harrell, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Cohick, Mr. and Mrs. Al Craft, Dr. and Mrs. M. B. Battlemann, Mr. and Mrs. Pete Boshier, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Foltz, Bill Paul, Mr. and Mrs. John Scalap, Morris Long, president, Miss June Turner, Joe Miller, Jim Moody, Millard Strickler, Rev. Bob Newland, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Paramore, Mr. and Mrs. William R. Hughes, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Jaffee, Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Rittman, Mac McManus, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Kellam, and 1 B. Dent. Guests from the Suburban Norfolk Club were: Don Dicerio, Harold Lawless, Bill Webb, T. H. McVay and E. C. Baker.

See you next week.

Wreck

Part of the deck of the "Ocean Belle" is under a house on the beach. All but a few of the ribs and part of the bow of the skeleton have been re-covered by sand. (It was uncovered once before in 1933).

Miss Epperson's painting of the wreck (now entitled "Re-appearance of the Ocean Belle") will be displayed with several of her other paintings as well as paintings by 41 other local artists in the new Virginia Beach City Hall on City Hall Day on June 1. All artists are members of the Virginia Beach Art Association (Miss Epperson is a charter member), and all art will be of Virginia Beach subjects. Most will be for sale.

Art will be displayed in the general foyer. A $25 prize will be given to the blue ribbon winner, and there will be two honorary red ribbons. Among other prominent artists exhibiting will be Herb Jones, who has won several prizes at the Boardwalk Art Show, William Cradle of Back Bay and Mary Ellen Carter, who has had several one man shows.

The art will be on display June 1 after the opening ceremonies of City Hall Day. The ceremonies begin at 1:45 p.m. and open house will be from 2:30 to 6 p.m.

League to Visit Probation Dept.

The League of Women Voters, Virginia Beach division, will visit City Hall May 27, 10 a.m., to tour the Probations Department.

The Good Old Days Recollection #1

This electric toaster was the cat's pajamas back in 1926.

Connect it to a handy electric light socket, and for a mere 7¢ per kilowatt hour it made toast right at the table while you watched. (Since it wasn't automatic, you either watched or you ate black toast.)

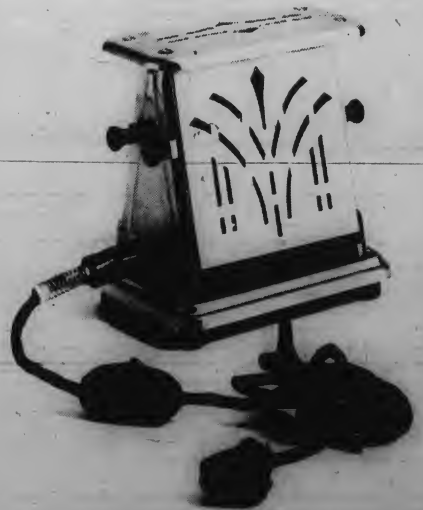

There've been a couple of big changes in the 43 years since then.

Electric rates are down, for one thing. From 7¢ a kilowatt hour in 1926 to only 2¢ today.

Students Are Writer's Concern

(Editor's note: Here is another in the series on home horticulture by Wesley P. Judkins, Extension horticulturist at Virginia Tech.)

In these days of campus turmoil, you may wonder if there are any serious, hard-working students in our colleges and universities. Those of us who teach horticulture at Virginia Tech are concerned about this too. But we are proud that the young men and women with whom we work seem to be dedicated to the better life to which we all aspire.

What are the objectives of modern education? Are our sons and daughters receiving the training for which we are paying such a high price?

Probably the most important skill a student should acquire is the ability to study and think for himself. Very few people develop real talent along these lines. But you have only to read the daily paper to appreciate that today's college student is a thinking individual. You may not accept some of his ideas. We appreciate that many of them require considerable mellowing. Most folks seem to agree however, that certain changes of direction are needed if we are to make acceptable social progress in these modern times.

Another attribute of the educated person in the U. S. is a comprehensive knowledge of English. The capacity to read with understanding, to speak with conviction and to write with clarity and skill, are major objectives in an adequate mastery of language.

Here again, we may not agree with all the vocalizing of the younger generation, but they are certainly gaining the ability to make themselves heard. Some of their ideas need to be adjusted by experience. In general they do reflect the need for change in a society which may have become too soft and complacent.

Among the many other skills to be acquired in college is the need for training in leadership. Students at Tech receive experience of this sort in the various campus organizations. In some instances the more radical individuals may be trying to exert more influence than their abilities seem to justify.

Students must learn that the most successful leaders are those who have the ability to determine in a democratic way, what is desired by, and best for, the people he leads. He must have the wisdom and tact to promote those ends.

Colleges have a vital role to play in convincing students that the most desirable changes can probably be secured by progressive evolution, rather than aggressive revolution.

Attendance in school and eventual graduation do not insure that the individual will receive an education. Unless a person has a real desire to learn, no amount of instruction will significantly improve his mind. The student must somehow develop his own motivation. It is the obligation of the teacher to guide and stimulate this desire for learning.

This discussion of education may seem a bit out of place in a column typically devoted to gardening. We do, however, have important responsibilities for guiding our students, and believe you may appreciate our concerns in this area.

Lynnhaven African Violet

Lynnhaven African Violet Society discussed the violet exhibit in connection with the Council of Garden Clubs spring flower show at their May meeting at the home of Mrs. E. A. Dawson. Included were do's and don'ts for future shows.

Mrs. Nelson Charlton won an innerclub contest for the best African violet. Last September each member was given a plant to raise by Mrs. C. W. Diggs. They brought them to the May meeting. Mrs. Charlton's was judged the best.

Plants and arrangements were judged by the Pioneer African Violet Society. Blue ribbon winners were Mrs. Diggs, Mrs. Dawson, Mrs. Carl Salland and Mrs. Charlton. Mrs. Dawson also won a blue ribbon for an arrangement.

May Farm

Tips on growing and showing horticulture were given May Farm Garden Club members by Mrs. G. H. Hamilton, new horticulture chairman for the Virginia Beach Council of Garden Clubs.

Mrs. Hamilton identified different types of horticulture and told club members the proper way to grow them.

The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. J. C. Chisholm, and the president, Mrs. John C. Brevington, gave the annual club report. The club also had a luncheon on May 14 at the White Sands to install new officers.

Installation Set

Officers will be installed for the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Virginia Beach Elks Lodge #2268 on May 24 at the American Legion home on Laskin Road.

New officers of the Virginia Beach Council of Garden Clubs, Inc. were installed by Tidewater District Pres. Mrs. Frank Lukanich, right, last week. They are, left to right, Mrs. John Brevington, treasurer; Mrs. E. W. Estes, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Norman Perry, recording secretary; and Mrs. Arthur H. Gallagher, president. Mrs. M. J. Schwartz, vice president, was absent.

Judges Council Installs

The Tidewater District Virginia Council of Accredited Flower Show Judges met at the Norfolk Botanical Gardens Tuesday at 10:30 a.m. for the last meeting until Oct. 11.

We have now 44 members and four new Master judges: Mrs. L. M. Caputo, Mrs. Merwyn H. Keller of Norfolk, Mrs. Philip C. Morris and Mrs. Malcolm H. Todd, Jr. of Virginia Beach. There are a total of 17 Life Judges.

Mrs. Dewey C. Heath, club historian, presented the Council with a leather back history book to keep our permanent club records. It will be engraved for the next year.

It was announced that Course I Flower Show School will be held at V.P.I. July 29, 30, 31. A judges dinner will be July 29 at V.P.I. The speaker will be Mrs. E. E. Hampton from Roan Mountain, a National Accredited Judge. She will lecture and demonstrate "Unusual Flower Arrangements".

Mrs. Frank Lukanich was awarded National Life Membership. She was also elected state president and Mrs. Merwyn Keller Tidewater District president. Mrs. Edwin Forrest, outgoing president, installed the new officers for 1969-70. They are: President, Mrs. Arthur H. Gallagher, Virginia Beach; Vice-Pres., Mrs. M. W. Llewellyn, Norfolk; Recording Sec., Mrs. Walter Baker, Williamsburg; Treas., Mrs. Philip C. Harris, Virginia Beach.

Mrs. C. L. Hershberger, outgoing president, opens the coffee service given her.

Convention Returns to Tidewater

The 35th annual convention of the Virginia Federation of Garden Clubs will be held May 26-28, at the Golden Triangle Motor Hotel in Norfolk. More than 400 delegates and guests are expected to attend.

The first convention was held in the Tidewater area 35 years ago, but, according to Mrs. Edgar J. Hennessey of Norfolk, convention chairman, and Mrs. Arthur H. Gallagher of Virginia Beach, co-chairman, this is the first time the state meeting has been held in Norfolk.

Mrs. Charles T. Benjamin, federation president, will preside at the state board dinner meeting and at all the business sessions. Tidewater District, of which many Virginia Beach clubs are members, will be the official hostess group who will greet delegates.

On Tuesday, the convention activities will get off to an early start with J. E. Ames, speaking on "Watching the Birds", at the traditional bird breakfast.

The first morning business session will be followed by a "Fanfare of the Past" luncheon, and Mrs. G. L. Campbell will present a folk song program.

A tea honoring the national and state presidents and members of the 30 charter clubs will be given by the Tidewater District clubs, prior to the Awards Dinner, Tuesday night.

Theme for Wednesday is "Conserve the Present," and Fred Huette retired director of the Norfolk Botanical Gardens, will speak on "Conservation of Water."

New federation officers will be elected at the morning business session, Wednesday.

Mrs. F. Paige Butler of Charlottesville, immediate past president of the Virginia Council of Accredited Flower Show Judges, will speak on "Floral Art, Past - Present - Future" at the "Build for the Future" dinner, Wednesday evening at which the new officers will be installed. A reception honoring the new state officers will be held following the dinner.

Mushrooms Are Weight-Watchers Delight

Every woman who looks regretfully at a favorite dress which used to fit so beautifully, starts day-dreaming of a diet. A miracle diet preferably, somehow discovering magic mushrooms with a delightful flavor, pleasing texture and almost completely free of calories.

As a matter of fact, this almost describes mushrooms. Whether they are the familiar little white umbrellas or the brown or cream varieties, their calorie count couldn't be daintier—just under a hundred for a whole pound. And, of course, the color makes no difference in flavor or texture either. Light as they are, a pound of mushrooms makes a fine bowlful, lots of nibbling.

Mushrooms add easy elegance to many meats, fish, fowl and vegetable dishes. They are a convenience food, for they require very little preparation and are available in fresh, canned or frozen forms.

If fresh, rinse them briefly in clear water, dunking them under a time or two; then lift out. If they are to be sautéed, pat them dry. (This is just to keep the frying fat from spattering.) For any other use, they can be turned into a colander to drain. In an case, don't peel mushrooms. This is not only time-consuming, but wastes a lot of lovely mushroom flavor. If the bottom of the stem looks a little dry or bruised, trim away a thin slice.

Canned mushrooms are ready

Mushroom Salmagundi Salad compares with a chef's salad in its hardness and appetite appeal. Sliced fresh mushrooms are excellent in salads of many kinds and cut down on the calorie count of the serving.

to go as is—having been washed and cooked in the processing plant. Again, pat dry if they are to be sautéed.

Frozen mushrooms need no more attention than canned ones.

One important mushroom cookery rule: Cook them briefly. When fresh, they need no more than three to five minutes over medium heat. Frozen may need an extra minute or two. Obviously, canned mushrooms need only reheating.

Since they are as good raw as cooked, sliced raw mushrooms are delightful in mixed green salads. The spongy texture of the mushrooms absorbs seasoning ingredients and distributes them deliciously throughout a salad. As an example, try this recipe for Mushroom Salmagundi Salad from the test kitchens of the American Mushroom Institute.

Rain Halts Golf at One Round

For the first time in the history of Virginia High School League Group 1-A golf tournaments, spring rains cancelled the final round. The heavy rains in Virginia Beach Monday night and Tuesday morning forced cancellation of the second day of the tournament at the White Sands Country Club.

They waited anxiously for almost three hours before the greenskeeper declared the course unplayable. The sand traps had become water hazards, as had much of the fairways and even some of the greens.

The winner of the state title was then declared on the basis of the Monday round. Granby was the winner, with a clear four-stroke lead over Kempsville. The Comets' George Fischer had fired a three-under par 68 Monday to win medalist honors. His teammates in the championship foursome scored 77, 78 and 79 respectively.

The young Kempsville team continued to hold surprises for every one in the tournament. Mark Hill had a 75; Ricky Wood, a 76; Tim Saunders, a 77; and Robert Woods, and 80.

Kempsville still has no senior class and its golfers are sure to be back in the running for the state title next year, according to all indications. But whether the Chiefs could have caught and passed Granby this year had the second round been played is open only to speculation. No doubt the point will be pondered and bandied about for some time to come.

The rest of the state foursome weren't even close. Douglas Freeman of Henrico County had a 320, 18 strokes off the 302 pace set by Granby and 14 strokes off the 306 pace set by Kempsville.

Following was JEB Stuart (322), defending champion, George Washington of Danville (323), Huguenot of Chesterfield County (325), Patrick Henry of Roanoke (328) and James Madison (350).

For Kempsville, the cry is definitely, "wait 'til next year." In last weekend's Group 1-A track tourney in Williamsburg the only Virginia Beach to score a point was Princess Anne, and that was the number of points the Cavaliers scored — one. That came as the result of Glen Logan placing fifth in the two-mile run. Newport News, as expected, was the runaway winner with 42 points. No Eastern District team scored more than three points.

In baseball the Eastern Region Group 1-A tourney is underway with the championship games of the state coming over the Memorial Day weekend. In the opening round Wednesday afternoon Princess Anne was favored to defend its third consecutive Eastern District title with a win over the Southeastern District champion, Craddock. In the other semi-final round Wilson faced Newport News High School. The winners tangle Friday night at Portsmouth's Frank D. Lawrence Stadium. The winner there plays again Tuesday in a semi-final game against the Northern Region champions being decided this weekend also.

Princess Anne is highly favored to win a berth in the state playoffs based on a 10-0 regular season and 13-1 overall record in Eastern District play. Wilson was also undefeated in regular conference games, but lost two in overall play, one to Princess Anne.

Kempsville, which tied for fifth place in the Eastern district ended its season a little later than the rest of the teams. Last Wednesday the Chiefs downed Norview 6-3 to end with a 6-7 overall record.

Two Represent Bowlers

Three of the most important games that Charles Messinger and Jean Hammernick will ever bowl will take place on May 30 at Brunswick River Bowl Lanes in Bethesda, Md.

Messinger, of Lavender Lane, and Mrs. Hammernick, of Silina Drive, will be competing that day against 364 other bowlers from all over the United States and Canada for the top prize in Brunswick's Fourth annual "Bowl Your Way to Europe" tournament.

The two local bowlers are representing Brunswick Plaza Bowl in the national finals of the tournament being held in the Washington, D. C. suburb.

They qualified for the tournament by winning the local roll-off Saturday May 10, in Brunswick Plaza Bowl's "Bowl Your Way to Europe" Tournament.

Messinger bested 13 other male bowlers to capture the title. He rolled 210 in his second game, 36 pins over his 174 average.

Mrs. Hammernick won the woman's title on a 221 game, 58 pins over her 163 average.

Finishing second in the men's division was Jessie Crisp, of Longdale Crescent, who bowled 208, 21 pins over his 177 average. Third finisher was Jim Glatpatrick, of Seeman Road, who bowled 169, 30 pins over his 139 average.

Finishing second in the woman's division was Nina Liverman, who bowled 190, 50 pins over her 140 average. Third finisher was Wilma Johnson of Reynard Crescent, who bowled 155, 43 pins over her 112 average.

Finalists, representing 182 establishments operated by Brunswick's Bowling Division, will bowl three games on May 30.

The man and woman scoring the most pins over his or her average in a single game will be declared national champions and each receives an all expense paid trip for two to Europe this summer. Trophies and cash prizes will be awarded to runner-ups in each division.

Regatta Is Club Topic

The annual Broad Bay regatta sponsored by the Broad Bay Sailing Association was the topic of the Virginia Beach Sports Club meeting Tuesday.

Maury Jackson told the membership at the weekly luncheon meeting at the Americana of plans for the Memorial Day weekend event, and showed films of last year's regatta. He also discussed the increase in pleasure sailing in Virginia Beach in recent years.

Sydney Duval of Virginia Beach has been elected vice president of the Circle-K Club at Virginia Wesleyan College. Circle-K is a collegiate service organization sponsored by Kiwanis International.

Elections Wind Up Convention

Nearly 1,500 Jaycees and their wives were in Virginia Beach last weekend for the annual Jaycees State Convention. The main order of business of the convention was the election of officers.

Elected new state president was Lewis M. Walker III of Petersburg. A Virginia Beach resident, Dennis Kuhnemund, was elected executive national director for administration and

T. Rodman Layman of Pulaski was elected executive national director of programming.

Another Virginia Beach resident, Dr. Donald F. Kern, was elected one of the six national directors. The other five are: Louis M. Cowart of Lynchburg; Douglas D. Eika of Springfield; Carl Kepling of Powhatan; George E. Wright of Manassas and Franklin D. Simmons of Richmond.

Speaker at a convention luncheon on Saturday, Harry S. Flemming of Alexandria, informed the Jaycees of the problems of student unrest, admitting he had no solutions. Flemming is a special assistant to President Nixon.

Flemming also commended the Jaycees for the stand they take in encouraging members to participate in politics.

Broad Bay Regatta Set

Contestants will register at the Narrows, 64th Street extended, from 8 to 10:45 a.m. Saturday. The warning signal for the first race will be given at noon. A second race will follow. Afterwards there will be a crab roast for visiting skippers and crews only. Sunday a third race will begin at noon. There are launching facilities available at the Narrows.

Classes with five or more yachts entered as of 10:30 a.m.

Saturday will be sailed as a class. Classes with less than five yachts entered will sail in one or more handicap classes. The regatta is sanctioned by the Chesapeake Bay Yacht Racing Association.

First, second and third place awards will be given for each class with five or more entries and for each handicap class. The Broad Bay Sailing Association Perpetual Trophy (The Broad Bay Bucket) will be presented to the winner of the class which has the largest total number of starters.

For further information, contact Walter Stubbs, regatta chairman, at 464-2570 (nights).

2nd Masters Meet Set

Entries are now being accepted for the second annual Virginia Beach Masters Track and Field Championships, sponsored by the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce.

The meet, for men 40 and over, will be held on Saturday, June 14, at First Colonial High School. The closing date for entries is June 10.

Official entry forms may be obtained from the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce office at 25th Street and Pacific Avenue. Completed forms must be accompanied by a physician's certificate.

Bob Whitley, assistant Chamber executive vice president said entries have already been received from as far away as the state of Washington and that a large number of states are expected to be represented. The events will be divided into three divisions. For those 40-49, the events will be the 100-yard dash, the 440, the 880 and the mile run. For those 50-59, only the 100 and the 880 will be run, and for those 60 and over only the mile jog will be held.

In addition a special 3-mile run will be held for men 32-39.

There is no entry fee, and trophies will be awarded to first, second and third-place winners.

The event, new last year, was well received, and Whitley said interest in this year's event is running quite high.

Marian L. Costenbader, of 49th Street, is a candidate for the bachelor of arts degree at Dickinson College where she has majored in biology.

The commencement exercises will be held Sunday, May 25 with Howard L. Rubendall, president of the college presiding. President Kingman Brewster, Jr. of Yale University will be the speaker.

Law Office Fire Checked

Fire and police investigators continue the investigation of the "fire bombing" this past week of the Shel Road law offices of Del. Kenneth N. Whitehurst, Jr., Vice Mayor Robert Cromwell, and lawyers William Culver and Garland Layton.

Officials said the fire was started by a Molotov cocktail which was thrown through the front window of the building. Fire quickly spread through the building virtually gutting the interior. Members of the Chesapeake Beach Volunteer Fire Department were on the scene within four minutes after the alarm was sounded. A total of 19 volunteers responded to the alarm.

Flames and heat were so intense paneling in the office spaces buckled, and typewriters, a copying machine and light fixtures were melted.

Damage from the fire has been estimated at upwards of $50,000 including an estimated $15,000 to $20,000 damage to property of the lawyers including destruction of a law library, and estimated $20,000 to $30,000 damage to the building.

Thus far none of the lawyers who maintained offices in the building, nor officials investigating the fire, have been able to advance a reasonable theory as to why the building was set afire.

11th Track Meet Held Today

There were 1586 participants in the meet from 36 elementary schools. The meet is for grades 4-7.

VBLT Ends Season Well

The Little Theatre of Virginia Beach is ending its season and its production of plays in Courtyard Playhouse on a fine note. The current production of John Patrick's "The Curious Savage" is delightfully funny. Slightly reminiscent of "Harvey", an eccentric woman is committed to a high-toned mental institution by her greedy stepchildren because she is determined to give her money away through a foundation to those who really need it.

Actually there is nothing wrong with her at all, but through this they hope to gain control of the family fortune. It backfires because she had converted all the money into negotiable bonds, which she has carefully hidden.

The institution is full of a collection of pathetically amusing characters that all have serious problems. However in many ways they are saner than those who do not live there. It is through them that the humor and uplifting philosophy is generated.

The production is generally slow and deliberate and needs to be picked up. The action calls for more up-tempo delivery at times, and it just doesn't come. That, and the unfortunate localizing of the action are the only two major criticisms.

Sylvia Johnson gives a pleasing performance as the winsome, wealthy woman, whose child died, causing her mental problems. Robert Giles, as the would-be violinist patient, is not terribly believable, but works hard at the role. Dorothy James, as the plain child-woman who craves love, is outstanding in her straightforward characterization. Larry Norman plays the war hero-pianist far too young and petulant. And Anne Pennington shines as the artist who hates everything and talks little. It must be pointed out that these mental patients are all handled with finesse by the author and cast. Nothing about it is offensive, and the play is definitely a comedy.

David Jones is almost stuffy enough as the Senator of the family that commits the old girl. Ruth Sherman as just nasty enough. But Foy Shaw gives one of the best performances of his career as the bumbling jurist of the family. He is very funny, and it is difficult to watch anyone else while he is on stage. Bill Atwill is pleasant as the eccentric woman, but contributes much to the slow pace of the play. But she is trumper enough to endear herself to the entire audience.

The cast is completed by Pamela Horton and Charles Terry, who handle the hospital staff-roles well.

Concert Scheduled

The Princess Anne High School Symphonic Band will present its Spring Concert on Friday May 23 in the High School Auditorium at 8 p.m.

Selections will include "William Tell Overture" by Rossini, "Concert for French Horn" by Mozart, and "Universal Judgement".

Tickets are $1 for adults and $0.75 for students (children under 12 free) and are available at the Auditorium.

Grant to Help in Testing

The Virginia Beach School System has been notified by the State Board of Education that its application for support under Title VI-A, the Elementary and Secondary Education Act, for a project entitled, "Preparation for Effective Teaching and Learning" has been approved. $18,634.40 has been approved for the project.

The Project for Effective Teaching and Learning encompasses as its major feature the screening of additional children suspected of being trainable mentally retarded and children suspected of being severely emotionally disturbed. Psychometrists, psychologists, audiologists, and speech clinicians will be involved in the screening of children.

A one week workshop to train teacher aides for work with trainable mentally retarded children will also be a part of the project. The workshop will be used to acquaint the teacher aides with the characteristics and needs of trainable children, to familiarize the aides with the materials and equipment used in the classes, and to train the aides in the nature of their duties and responsibilities to the children, teachers, administration, and the total staff.

A two week in-service workshop for the total professional staff will be held to develop curriculum, evaluate and select curriculum materials, and to develop classroom organization and management patterns.

Through this project the School System hopes to strengthen its program for trainable mentally retarded children by developing a more clearly designed curriculum and activities, by more careful evaluation and selection of materials and equipment and by the addition of trained teacher aides to work with teachers and children.

Summer Program Announced

Summer enrichment and remedial classes for elementary students will be held in seven centers this summer: Linkhorn Park Elementary School, John B. Dey, Bayside, Aragona, Point O' View, Thalia and Holland. Classes in remedial reading, mathematics and English will be offered, as well as enrichment classes in science, art, and the language art provided there is sufficient enrollment. In addition there will be pre-school kindergarten for eight weeks in 14 schools for children who will enter first grade in the fall. Minimum class size is 18 and the maximum is 23. Tuition is $15 for the full term. Parents must provide transportation.

Transportation is provided from designated stops for the remedial and enrichment programs which last from June 23 through Aug. 4 from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. Bruce McGuire, director of elementary education, said that registration for the classes was conducted mostly in the schools but some classes are still open. Eligibility is based on recommendations of teachers.

Already 499 seventh graders have enrolled in the beginning band program which will be taught at Princess Anne High School, Bayside High, Kellam, Kempsville High, Cox and Virginia Beach Junior High. Equipment and materials are available at the schools. The dates are June 23 through Aug. 4.

There will be 15 school libraries operating on a part-time schedule this summer. Those already designated are Cooke, Alanton, Old Donation, Kempsville, Kempsville Meadows, Plaza, Kingston and Court house.

Sancilio Kicks Off Campaign

Lawrence A. Sancilio, president of the Virginia Beach Unit of the American Cancer Society, recently met with Mayor Frank Dusch to kick off a National Program of the American Cancer Society dedicated to discouraging people who are already smoking from continuing this harmful habit. The Mayor presented Sancilio with a lapel pin which reads "I.Q." which stands for "I Quit".

The National Chairman of the "I Quit" Program is Tony Curtis. Sancilio earned this award three years ago when as a confirmed 2-1/2 pack cigarette smoker he stopped smoking after becoming very actively involved with the local Cancer Society Unit, at which time he was Crusade Chairman. Sancilio said, "We at the Virginia Beach Unit are actively promoting this National Program. We have available a brochure called 'If You Want To Give Up Cigarettes,' which can be obtained by just calling our office at 428-4151. This booklet is specifically designed for the confirmed cigarette smoker to assist him in breaking the cigarette smoking habit."

"I personally feel that this is a most important undertaking by our Public Education Program and we intend to pursue it throughout the year," Sancilio added, "I am most encouraged by the amount of general literature that is being distributed through our Cancer Crusade. Over 20,000 leaflets on Cancer's Seven Warning Signals were given out by the resident crusade workers who are doing an outstanding job by spreading the word."

2 Attend Seminar

Bruce Deemer, Kempsville High School, Terrie Meredith and Ann Sutton, both of Princess Anne High School, recently attended a three-day Youth Freedom Leadership Seminar which was held at the Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge, Pa.

The seminar was sponsored by the Chesapeake District of Civitan International and was directed by W. C. "Tom" Sawyer, senior vice president and dean of education at Freedoms. The purpose of the seminar was to provide the 42 participating high school juniors and seniors with a background of freedom in America and a study of those forces which would try to suppress this freedom. Dr. Kenneth D. Wells, president of Freedoms Foundation, challenged the young participants to help preserve the fundamental freedoms through patriotism, loyalty and good citizenship.

Sunday Is Historic Occasion for Growing City

This Sunday marks an important day in the history of Virginia Beach. It also affords all of the residents of the city a chance to view the inner workings of Virginia Beach's municipal government.

Sunday is "City Hall Day." The event has been planned for plete the center, but this is subject to revision to meet the needs of a growing city. When finally finished, the city hall center is expected to meet municipal needs within the city well into the 21st century.

When the old city of Virginia Beach and Princess Anne County merged on Jan. 1, 1963, governmental agencies of both political subdivisions were spread over large parts of the new sprawling city. It has only been with the completion of the present complex that the smooth, efficient operation of the city has been brought under one central "roof". It is this event that is being celebrated Sunday.

At 1:45 the day's activities will start when the U. S. School of Music strikes up the band at the site of the corner laying ceremonies for the new $1.3 million Administration Building.

Bands from Cox, Princess Anne, Bayside, Kempville, Kellam and First Colonial high schools will play music during the afternoon from two separate locations. The bands will play in relays by the Court House and Police Headquarters.

The new miniature train will transport those attending from one "open house" building to another. Boy Scouts will be handing out souvenir programs and high school hostesses will give City Seal key rings to the adults.

Dedication ceremonies for the new municipal complex will begin at 2 p.m. The invocation will be led by Rev. John Liles, of First Presbyterian Church of Virginia Beach. Master of ceremonies for the program is Sam Scott, director of the Civic Center. Talks will be made by W. Russell Hatchett, former city manager, Roger Scott, city manager, and U. S. Rep. Thomas Downie.

City Council on Monday passed a resolution honoring W. Russell Hatchett for his long service to Virginia Beach. The resolution will be placed on a scroll and presented to Hatchett during the ceremonies.

Hatchett served the old city of Virginia Beach in several positions, including City Manager and became the first City Manager of the new city. He retired on July 1 of last year. The municipal complex was conceived by Hatchett, and the presentation of the scroll-resolution Sunday is expected to cap his long governmental career.

A sealed capsule, actually a 12"x6"x6" copper box, will be placed in the corner of the new Administration Building with the stipulation that it is to be opened by the city's mayor or city manager in 2013, a Golden Jubilee Year for the City of Virginia Beach.

Enclosed in the capsule for posterity will be a copy of the City's Charter, a history of Virginia Beach, an economic and cultural profile of Virginia Beach reflecting its progress and projections, a City Hall Day program, some coins and stamps, and a prophecy by City Manager Roger Scott.

After the ceremonies of the day there will be a performance by the Virginia Beach Concert Orchestra and Civic Chorus under the direction of Frank Ferrigno and the opening of the various municipal departments, each with exhibits and personnel to explain its functions.

To emphasize further the important role cultural groups play in the city's development the Steering Committee has invited the participation of the Virginia Beach Council of Garden Clubs and the Virginia Beach Art Association.

Over 60 works of art depicting some months with great care so that the municipal complex at Princess Anne can be shown off to best advantage.

Early this year the city's new $1.3 million Administration Building was occupied by city employees. And during the past year numerous improvements have been made within the complex. In addition several other new buildings have been completed in recent months.

There is currently a master plan for new buildings to coming local subject matter will be exhibited in the main foyer of the new Administration Building. Prominent judges will award a blue and two red ribbons for the paintings adjudged first and second best.

The city's new Administration Building.

Scott

(See "City Hall," p. 2)

Opinions Are Split On Survey

Opinion is split almost even on last week's SUN SURVEY question. While the replies may not settle the question, most had some comments attached and were emphatic in one direction or the other.

Of those who replied, 48 per cent said "Yes" to the question, "Should Virginia Beach spend up to $6 million for sand erosion control and ocean beach nourishment, as part of a $17 million plan advanced by the federal government, if the money must come from the taxpayers and not from outside sources?" The other 52 per cent said "No."

Of all the comments that were included in affirmative answers, this one stood out.

"I don't usually answer these, (SUN SURVEYS) but this one is too valuable to miss."

It was unsigned.

Several who answered in the negative had comments just as caustic and just as sincere. City Council is not sure of what to do either. A committee was appointed Monday to work with the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers on further study and to report back late in June. (See City Council story)

While the public opinion poll does not profess to represent the thinking of all residents of Virginia Beach, it does represent the thinking of a cross section of those who took time to clip it and return it to us.

Your attention is called to this week's SUN SURVEY question also, which appears in the box at the lower left corner of this page.

Each week a new question will appear and the results will be published the following week. The questions will be timely, and the more answers we receive the more responsible the opinion.

SUN SURVEY

QUESTION: Should City Council pass an ordinance banning equipment in side yards, especially on small lots where regular side yard restrictions cannot be met?

Your comments and signed letters would be appreciated also.

Campaign Pace Quickens

The political pitch in Virginia Beach has been a little higher in the past week. More appearances by candidates and more statements by them have increased the activity.

On the gubernatorial scene, Democratic candidate Fred Pollard has dominated the Virginia Beach picture.

Pollard and his running mates, State Sen. Carrington Thompson, running for it, gov. and Del. Guy Farley, running for atty. general, as well as Pollard's wife, Jade, helped open their Virginia Beach headquarters last Thursday on Virginia Beach Blvd. near Lynnhaven Road.

Following brief ribbon-cutting ceremonies there, they attended a reception for about 70 persons at the White Sands Country Club. All three candidates and Mrs. Pollard addressed the group.

Pollard told the group of the experience of his ticket members and added that he hopes to carry out the work begun by the Godwin administration and add new programs of his own.

Farley hit on a familiar theme he has discussed in a number of recent speeches. He said he supported a tough line on handling of campus disorders and militants.

Pollard was back in Virginia Beach for a breakfast meeting of the Virginia Beach Innkeepers Association Tuesday morning at Neptune's Restaurant. There he outlined his "See Virginia First" feeling on tourism. He pointed out the $1 million state budget for tourist promotion must grow. He called for closer cooperation between the state and the tourist industry.

Pollard is opposed for the Democratic nomination in the primary on July 15 by William Battle and Henry E. Howell, Jr.

In the Virginia House of Delegates race in Virginia Beach, activity has also picked up considerably.

Independent candidate Bruce Murphy unveiled his platform at the fourth meet of the Aldo Farms Racing Association Sunday. This was timed to emphasize the interest in automobile racing in Virginia Beach. He also advocated free state kindergartens, a Virginia Beach Parking Authority for the oceanfront area, a regional jet airport for the entire area and creation of a regional mass transit authority.

B. R. Middleton, running on a ticket with Rhoad Adams, Tuesday called for a crackdown on increasing narcotic traffic, especially where youth is concerned. He said he has asked for an opinion from the Attorney General concerning revisions in state laws concerning glue also.

Garbage 'Arrives' Monday

If everything goes according to plan, Norfolk garbage trucks will begin bringing about 700 tons of Norfolk garbage to the Virginia Beach Landfill project next Monday.

In accordance with the terms of the contract between the two cities, Norfolk will pay $3.12 per ton for disposing of its garbage at Mt. Trashmore or Dorer's Mountain, as the disposal area that will be turned into a lakeside amphitheater when filled, is fondly called.

Norfolk City Council was given a list of equipment that will be necessary to handle the new load and agreed to furnish the approximately $113,000 worth of bulldozing and other equipment against the per ton cost.

During an informal session of Virginia Beach City Council Monday City Manager Roger Scott said Virginia Beach was in the process of hiring additional personnel to handle the job. He added that he doubted all the problems could be solved immediately, but said he expected all to go well even on the first day.

The per-ton cost is exactly double what the city figures it costs to handle its own garbage. This figure was arrived at by Scott based on the exactly double rates Norfolk charges Virginia Beach for water. A new water contract and permanent garbage contract will be worked out by Jan. 1.

In the meantime Mt. Trashmore will continue to grow rapidly and the city of Virginia Beach is looking for new disposal areas in the direction of City Council.

Study to Be Unveiled

A major economic study of Virginia Beach made by Virginia Electric and Power Company will be presented this evening to the Virginia Beach Development Council at its annual dinner meeting at the White Sands Country Club at 6:30.

The study, which the city hopes to be able to use in attracting industry and in planning for the future was requested by the VBDC some time ago, and the survey by VEPCO has recently been completed.

It will be presented to VBDC president E. R. Cockrell, Jr. by J. R. Perrow manager of area development for VEPCO. The survey is expected to provide the most up-to-date economic data on the city of Virginia Beach available.

Virginia's Gov. Mills E. Godwin, Jr. will be the featured guest speaker at the meeting.

Camping Law Deferred

In one of the shortest City Council meetings in recent months, action was deferred Monday on a new proposed ordinance that would restrict parking of campers, camping trailers and other large recreational equipment on streets, in driveways and in side yards of homes in Virginia Beach.

Consent on the part of several Councilman plus opposition of a number of equipment owners forced the delay for two weeks while some sort of agreement is attempted to be worked out.

The ordinance is similar to one introduced and referred back to committee about a year ago. It was never heard from again because of problems and opposition.

At Monday's meeting no one opposed the parking restrictions on the equipment in driveways or on streets. The problem area was the side yard. The new ordinance states that no equipment over six-feet tall can be parked in sideyards. Several Councilman, however, disagreed.

Planning Director Patrick Standing said if the height restriction is not kept in, the sideyard restrictions might also be done away with. The other problem apparently arises in small lot areas where the equipment cannot be gotten to behind the houses because of small sideyards.

Campers used for regular transportation would be exempt from the restrictions. About 3,000 pieces of such equipment are expected to be affected by the ordinance, which was prompted by complaints of traffic and beauty problems in several neighborhoods. A present ordinance is not enforced.

In other action Council agreed informally to the introduction of a new trailer park license fee. The revenue from the current fees has been quite low, compared to recent years. The new ordinance, setting the annual license fee at 25 per cent plus 6 per cent of the gross park business, is expected to rectify the situation. Each space is expected to bring in about $28.80 with the new fees, or about $34,000 a year for all parks, compared to the $1,500 collected last year.

In zoning matters Council broke a long logjam in the Bayside area on applications for apartments. Council approved an application of Roger Malbon to build 48 apartments at Diamond Springs Road near Northampton Blvd. The project had been held up because existing schools in that area are at capacity.

A recent School Board report, however, says negotiations for a new school site are nearly complete and that a new school should be available by the time the apartments are ready, or by September 1970.

Council also appropriated $1,000 to the Virginia Beach Safety Council Monday, the first public money given to the organization. Another $1,200 was appropriated for an actuarial study of retirement benefits for all city employees.

Mayor Frank Dusch appointed David Norman, Curtis Payne, Murray Malbon, E. H. Church and Charles Kiley to a special committee to work with the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers on a study of beach erosion. The Army wants city approval to participate in a $17 million project for the oceanfront. The committee is expected to make its recommendations by the end of June.

Teens Stop Escapee

By Les Lehigh

Four Kellam High School students who captured a 17-year-old juvenile as he attempted to escape from custody Monday morning have been praised by City Manager Roger Scott as "a remarkable example that young people do have respect for law and order."

The students have been identified as Bill Bailey, 18, Dwyer Road; William Robinson, 17, Maverick Street; Frank Bailey, 18, Pinewood Drive; and Frank Fahrig, 19, Maverick Street had just arrived at the Courthouse complex to attend a session of City Council as a school field trip.

City Sgt. John E. Marr told this reporter the juvenile was one of a group of 14 prisoners who were being taken from the City Jail to appear in court. Although the juvenile was not due in court until next Tuesday on two charges of statutory burglary, he somehow managed to pose as another juvenile who was due in court on charges of vagrancy. Marr said that when the group approached the new Administration Building the juvenile broke and ran through the Courthouse parking lot darting between parked cars.

When the prisoner began his flight Deputy Horace Shirley, a member of the prisoner escort, called for the juvenile to halt and fired several warning shots into the air.

Moments before the attempted escape began I had entered the office of Capt. G. K. Bryan, officer in charge of the Police Traffic Division and was in the process of checking over night activities when Sheriff Marr came into the office.

Two Couples Convicted Of Obscenity Charges

Juvenile Court Judge Mary R. Speight, on Wednesday, found two couples guilty of a number of charges resulting from the recent discovery of a quantity of obscene material in a Virginia Beach home.

Police officials said movies and still photos, described as pornographic, were found April 18 in the Alanton Drive home of Aldo and Margaret Lovisi.

Aldo Lovisi was found guilty of two counts of child neglect, and sentenced to 12 months in jail and fined $1,000 on each conviction; found guilty of taking part in an obscene display for which he was given a 60 day jail sentence and fined $250 and also convicted of failing to register as a felon resulting in a 30 day jail sentence and a $100 fine. He was also bound over to a grand jury on two charges of sodomy.

Mrs. Margaret Lovisi was found guilty of two counts of child neglect and sentenced to 12 months in jail and fined $1,000; and convicted of taking part in an obscene display re-

The owner of this large piece of recreational equipment is currently violating a law by parking it in his driveway, but the law is not enforced. If the new law is passed, it will not be able to be parked in the driveway or in either side yard of this small corner lot.

Hours will be: Sunday through Friday 2-3 p.m. and Saturday 10 a.m. to 9 p.m.

There are facilities to change clothes and shower, check valuables, game rooms and juke boxes. All facilities are for male and female guests. ## Reservists Arrive for Training

The Vanguard of the 950 Army reservists to train at Fort Story this summer arrived over the weekend. The 151st Transportation Platoon of Chincoteague, Va., and the 680th Transportation Detachment of Seaford, Del., comprise the first group of reservists who will spend summer training at Fort Story. From now until mid-September, 14 units will report, some from such distant points as Wisconsin, Connecticut, Texas and California. Several of the units return each year to Fort Story to use the Army's Amphibian training facilities during active duty.

This year each reserve unit will be on active duty for 15 days, one more than the 14 required in previous years.

Ex-Principal Convicted

A Circuit Court jury has found Joseph E. Neal guilty of taking indecent liberties with a minor child. Neal, 47, was convicted of charges involving a nine-year-old girl in 1967 while the child was a student at Frere Jacques School, while he was employed as principal of the school. The jury recommended a sentence of 12 months in jail and a fine of $500. Judge George W. Vahos has deferred sentencing of Neal pending the outcome of a defense motion to set the verdict aside and grant Neal a new trial.

Policeman Files Suit

Police officer Stanley F. Bennett has filed a $25,000 damage suit against a Virginia Beach motorist. The Circuit Court suit contends that Isaac T. Gray made "libelous assertions," in a letter to City Manager Roger Scott, which resulted in damage to Bennett's reputation and employment as a police officer. The letter allegedly charged Bennett with manhandling Gray nearly a year ago. According to the suit the charges against Bennett arose from the police officer, while off duty, taking necessary action to place Gray under arrest when he observed Gray operating his car in "an erratic, reckless, and dangerous manner," last June 28. Gray was found guilty of the charge during Municipal Court proceedings, and the conviction was upheld in Circuit Court when Gary appealed the Municipal Court verdict.

Youth Faces Charges

Court appearance is pending for a 17-year-old juvenile from California facing two burglary charges in Virginia Beach. Police said the juvenile is accused of breaking into the Thalia Baptist Church, where $875 in checks and cash was reported stolen; and also charged with the burglary of a West Chicksaw Road home where antique jewelry, valued at $475 was reported taken. Authorities said the youth has also been accused of burglarizing a Norfolk home on Riverton Drive where a $1500 loss in jewelry and cash was reported.

Club to Present Shrine

Next Tuesday the Exchange Club of Virginia Beach will present a Freedom Shrine to Cox High School during ceremonies at 10 a.m.

The dedication is part of the National Exchange Club project to place these shrines in various school foyers to be seen often by students and visitors. Through this the service organization hopes to promote a more patriotic feeling among the young people.

The Shrines include exact copies of 40 historical American documents. Among them are the Mayflower Compact, the Declaration of Independence, the Bill of Rights, Washington's First Inaugural Address, the Treaty of Paris, the Gettysburg Address, the Monroe Doctrine and the Emancipation Proclamation.

Also included are Lincoln's second Inaugural Address, Theodore Roosevelt's Letter on Cuba, the 13th and 19th Amendments to the Constitution, the "Star Spangled Banner" and the

Accident

Two men survived an early Wednesday morning accident on Virginia Beach Blvd. near London Bridge after their auto, according to police, had careened off the roadway, travelled 100 feet, sideswiped a power line pole, consumed on for another 890 feet striking suiting in a 60 days jail sentence and a fine of $250.

The second couple, Jan and Patricia Galyan of Barry Street, were both found guilty of participating in an obscene display. They were each given suspended sentences of 30 days in jail and fines of $500 each.

Each of the accused have noted appeals.

Police officials told the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN Mrs. Lovisi has also been indicted by a Circuit Court grand jury on a charge of sodomy, and bound over to a grand jury on charges of arson. The arson charge resulted from her reportedly, starting several fires in her home shortly after police arrived at the home on a morals investigation.

Police Juvenile Division detectives have also said they have charged a Jamaican in connection with the case. The man identified by police as Errol Romeo Dunn, a 24 year old Washington D.C., city employee attending Howard University, has been charged with two counts of indecent exposure to minor children (involving Mrs. Lovisi's children) and one count of sodomy.

Dunn was reportedly taken into custody by D. C. police, at the request of Virginia Beach authorities, and is scheduled to appear in court on June 16. He is still in custody in Washington pending the outcome of extradition proceedings.

Authorities identified the two men in the car as Nikias or Nickias, Sotearous as the driver and Vernon Millikan or Millikan, of Norfolk.

John H. (Jack) Lewis of Norfolk was driving through London Bridge at the time of the accident. Lewis said "I saw three big blue flashes all around the car and heard several explosions." This apparently resulted from the toppling of the power pole, equipment and lines over the roadway.

Within moments police units and the Virginia Beach Borough Volunteer Rescue Squad arrived on the scene. The man was taken from the car and with his passenger was rushed to Virginia Beach General Hospital.

Officials said Sotearous, 42, of Tyson Road in Virginia Beach, received a fractured arm and lacerations of the face, body, and head. He was reported in satisfactory condition. His passenger was given emergency medical attention and released.

To Parade

The Spring Ceremonial of Khedive Temple will be held May 31 at the Civic Center.

George H. Gordon of Chesapeake, who succeeded Dr. Meyer H. Legum in January as Illustrious Potentate will preside over the business session, and host visiting Shrine dignitaries.

At 11:45 a.m. the traditional parade will leave the Civic Center, move north on Pacific Avenue to 25th Street, east to Atlantic, south to 17th Street, west to Pacific and disband at the Civic Center.

All uniformed units of the Temple will participate.

Campaign

Adams, in a speech at campaign headquarters, called for more industry in Virginia Beach, not necessarily large "smokestack" industries. He said the smaller industries, including service industries would be ideal for the city. He also called for expert assistance being sought in obtaining this type of industry.

The fourth candidate, independent Richard Guy, yesterday released the names of his campaign committee, many of whom he said have never been involved in a political campaign before. He added that the group includes those working for all three gubernatorial candidates and that he feels he could work with any one of the three elected. He again said he would remain neutral in the gubernatorial primary.

The campaign committee includes: Angie Alexander, Ray Alphin, Victor Ashe, Mrs. Stuart Baroness, Joseph Baskier, Dr. and Mrs. Bernard Bateman, Charles Beard, Jr., Rev. H. C. Benjamin, Edward Brogan, Horace Cistola, Mrs. Barry Clark, Donald Clark and Mrs. Elbert Cox.

Also James Craig, William Culverhouse, Harold Dankles, Mrs. Paul Douglas, Dr. Louis Farano, Dr. David Foster, Clay Gatewood, Jr., James Hairston, Dr. Sherrie Hamilton, Jr., Dr. Clarence Holland, Herbert Holt, Jr., Leland Hood and Dr. David Korn.

Also Evan McCorkle, Robert Long, Dr. George McGuire, Dr. Henry McCoy, Jr., Dr. Ronald Michelson, Eugene Milette, Mrs. Phillip Moonves, John Moore, Oscar Northern, Jr., Mrs. John Odel, Austin Owen, Mrs. Donald Rhodes, R. L. Riggs, Allan Sadler, Walton Saunders and Dr. Harvey Shillet.

Also Henry Shook, Gus Spanoulls, George Stenke, Nathan Supak, Mrs. Burnis Todd, Mrs. Charles Traub III, Mrs. William Vahos, Mrs. Clarence Walke, John Waller and Floyd E. Waterfield, Jr.

City Hall

Members of the Council of Garden Clubs will beautify the various departments open to the public with flower arrangements attuned in design to the Williamsburg style architecture of the building. There will be first, second and third place awards for the judges preferences.

After the ceremonies of the day there will be a performance by the Virginia Beach Civic Orchestra and Concert Singers under the direction of Frank Ferrigno. The concert will be in the main foyer of the Administrative Building from 3 p.m. until 3:30 p.m. Various municipal departments will be opened then with exhibits and personnel to explain its functions.

Predicted to be voted most popular in the "Open House" phase of the program will be the Finance departments where mammoth computers will be at work and the Police Department with multiple displays and special exhibits.

The Canine Corps will demonstrate its routine, there will be on exhibit a radar car, a display of dangerous drugs and a collection of weapons confiscated from teenagers, an underwater rescue and recovery unit, new police boat, a showing of guns used by the police and a juvenile bureau movie on drug addiction will run continuously.

Buildings housing agencies and departments observing "Open House" include the new Administration Building, School Administration Building, Police Headquarters Building, Health Department Building, Municipal Court Building, Agricultural Building, Safety and Traffic Engineering, Public Welfare and Fire Department.

In keeping with the activities planned for the day Mayor Frank A. Dusch has proclaimed June 1 as "City Hall Day." In his proclamation Mayor Dusch has called upon all citizens to view their new governmental offices and pay tribute to all those who brought this complex to its present state.

In conjunction with Virginia Beach's observance of City Hall Day, the official publication of the Virginia Municipal League, VIRGINIA TOWN AND CITY magazine, has devoted its entire May 1969 issue to "Virginia Beach on the Move."

Stories about the new buildings, the growth of the city and about city leaders were written for the magazine by regular city hall reporters from the various publications and one television station that serve Virginia Beach and the area. One of the stories included was written by VIRGINIA BEACH SUN Managing Editor, H. Joseph Lowenthal, Jr.

Take Truth in Lending, for instance. Reputable banks here in town have been truthful about lending for years. And other types of lending institutions have been boasting about it for some time.

That's great. It's nice to know that everyone is abiding by the law of the land.

But unfortunately, Truth in Lending legislation won't ensure that you'll get sound advice about borrowing money. Any more than highway signs ensure that there'll be no speeding.

All Truth in Lending really does is make sure you know how much a loan is going to cost you. Details about payments you'll have to make. Things like that. But that's not enough.

People not only need this Truth in Lending. They also need good advice in borrowing.

They need straight talk.

Straight Talk like you get at First & Merchants. You see, we have this philosophy that says if a loan isn't good for a customer, it isn't good for us, either. And the only way we can make sure a loan is going to be good for you is talk to you, straight from the shoulder. At least that's the best way we've found so far.

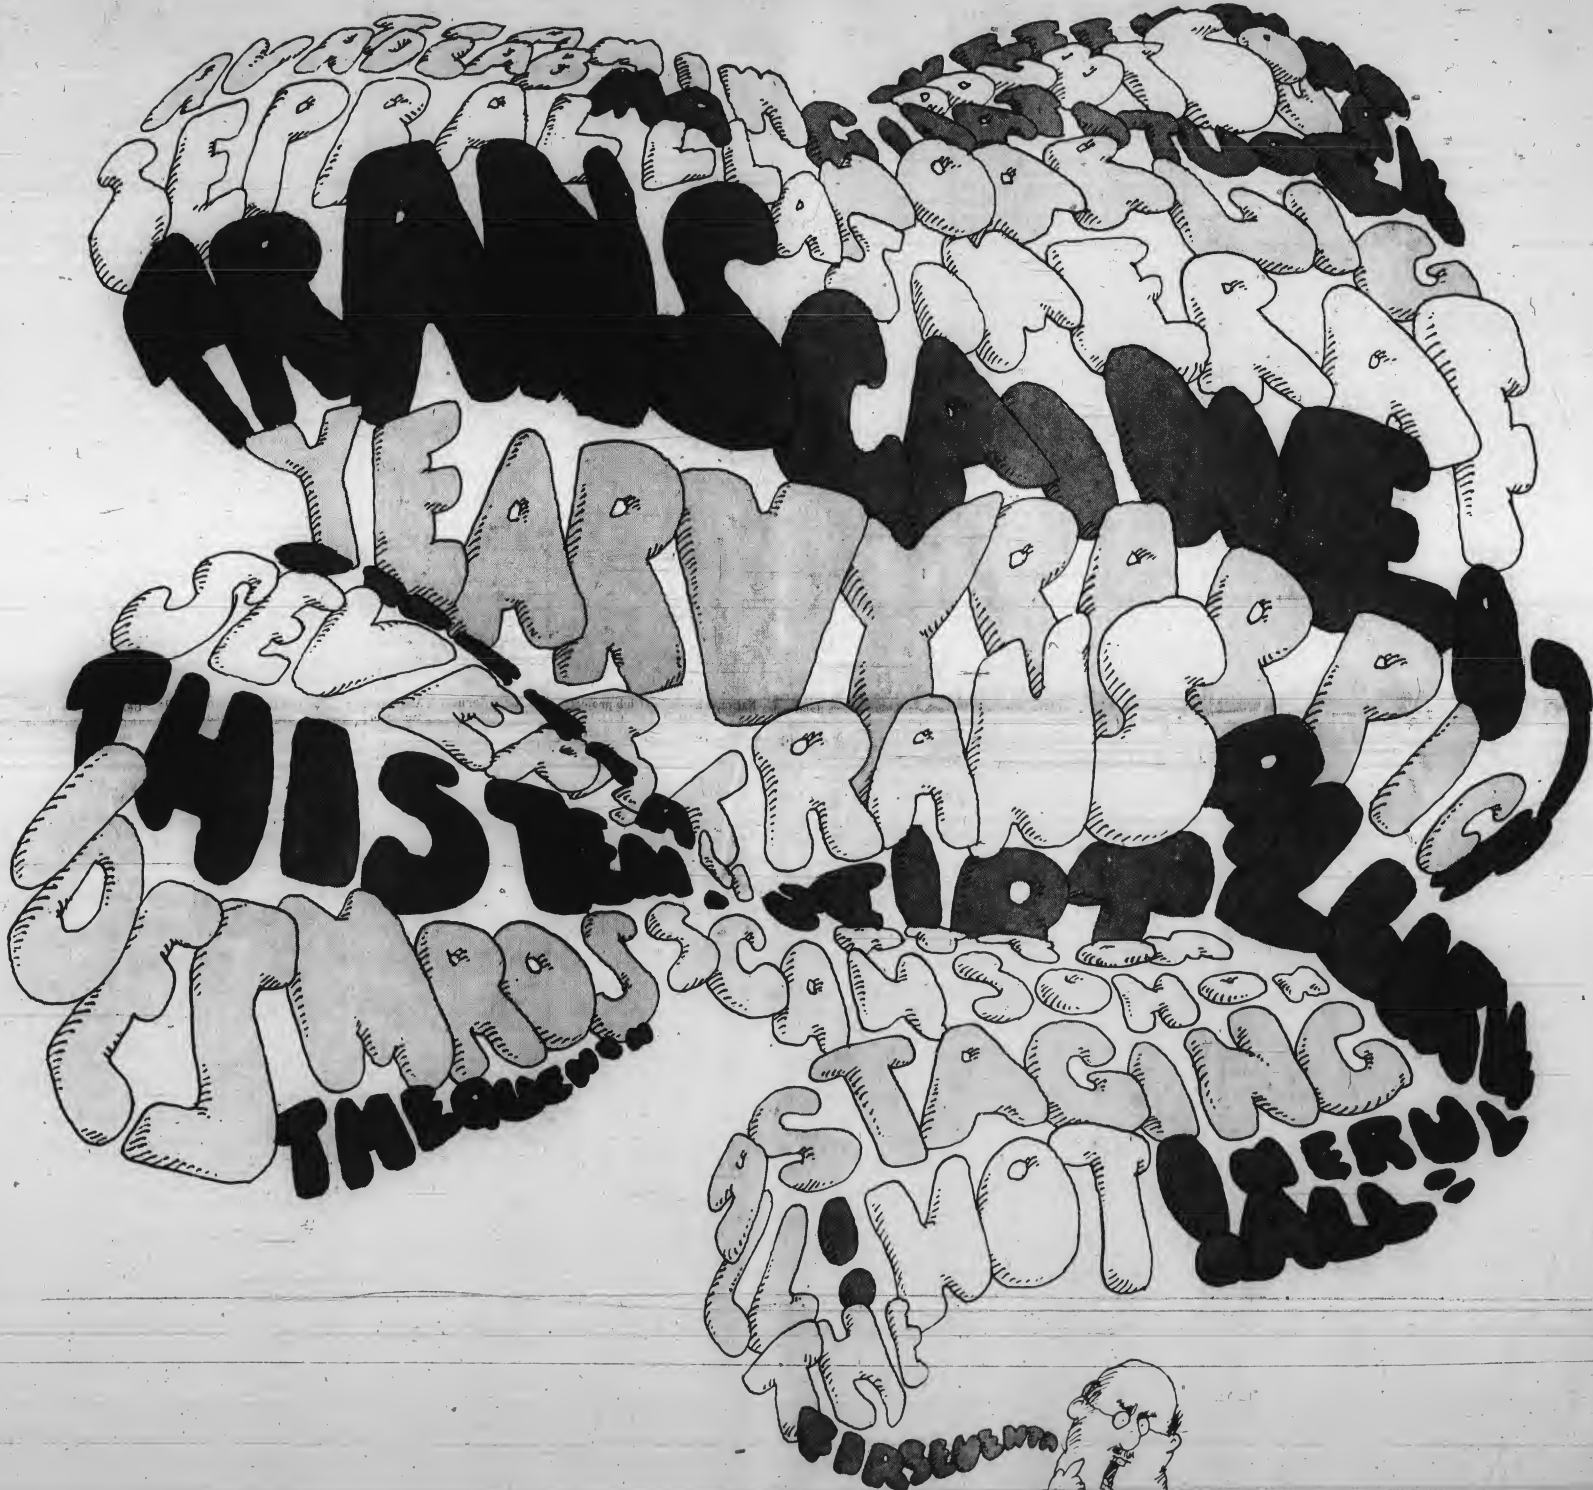

Then we'll work out loan terms that'll be best for you. And maybe start you on a security-building savings program at the same time.

First chance you get, drop by and talk to one of the Straight Talk People at F&M. Tell him about yourself. And where you want to go financially. He'll work out the best way for you to get there. He might even come up with some suggestions you'd never have thought of.

But whatever we suggest, remember the Straight Talk People might give you some food for thought. But never any baloney.

City Hall Day

Sunday is City Hall Day in Virginia Beach. It marks the official dedication of the city's new $1.3 Administration Building at Princess Anne, as well as other new buildings in the City Hall complex there.

No doubt there are residents of Virginia Beach who have never visited the center there or viewed first-hand their city government. Sunday is an excellent day to do so, and anyone interested in being informed as well as entertained can certainly find no better way to spend an afternoon.

There will be interesting displays in all public buildings. A number of demonstrations will be put on. The new buildings will be open for inspection and city officials will be on hand.

The boardwalk train will be there to transport visitors around the large complex.

Virginia Beach has come far in its short history. This is reflected in the efficient operation of the city that can be seen so readily.

And what better time could there be to see the inner workings of government than on a Memorial Day weekend, commemorating the solemn wars that helped keep our free form of government possible.

Virginia Beach's waterfront may be a tourist mecca, but Sunday hopefully the residents of the city and the tourists alike will be at Princess Anne for City Hall Day...an event that has taken years of planning to reach.

Atlantis on Shore Drive

This weekend marks the official opening of the Virginia Beach summer tourist season, although it has actually been going on since Easter. Most of the concentrated resort activity has always been centered around the oceanfront, but when the plans of David I. Levine are implemented, the Chesapeake Bay and Shore Drive will finally receive much of its share too.

Mr. Levine's plans for the $100 million Atlantis-by-the-Sea tourist-residential complex, which will include 3,000 hotel rooms and a marina, as well as 2,000 apartments, are ambitious and far-reaching.

We hope the old Seaview Beach property and surrounding area is just the beginning of a new tourist industry center in Virginia Beach along Shore Drive. With the foresight of Mr. Levine and others like him, the "World's Largest Resort City" will always live up to its name.

No More Logjam

Virginia Beach City Council Monday very quietly broke a logjam of zoning applications for apartments and townhouses in the Bayside section around Diamond Springs Road.

This highly desirable area for development has been held back because present schools are operating at capacity and there is no way to add to existing schools. Now the School Board has eased that situation by announcing that a new elementary school and possibly a junior high school will be ready there by the fall of 1970.

Thus the application Monday for a mere 48 apartments could be approved.

Of course this does not solve the entire problem. Faying for the new schools to serve these new developments still looms before us. And certainly the homeowners and apartment dwellers never pay enough in taxes to educate the number of children living there.

A bond issue or even increased taxes will doubtlessly result. But in a young city trying diligently to take its place in this age of rapid growth we cannot stop development. Even slowing it down or declaring moratoriums is poor business. Then we merely have to struggle to catch up.

City Council has wisely moved ahead again with its approvals, but our city lawmakers and all city residents must be ever aware of the price of growth. If we are constantly aware of it, the price tag doesn't come as too much of a shock. In addition new sources of revenue must constantly be sought as part of the answer.

For Law and Order

Monday morning five Kellam High School students on their way to visit a City Council meeting with their history class helped subdue a young escaping prisoner who bolted while being taken to court for his hearing.

They certainly did not have time to think about their own safety or the danger they were facing. They merely acted on the side of law and order. This is a highly commendable act on the part of anyone.

But in a world of apathy toward law and order and in an age where teenaged students do not always receive the best publicity because of their foolish acts performed without thoughts of the future, this is even more commendable.

We look with pride on these five and their quick action. And we thank them for their help in maintaining the peace.

Against Garbage

Editor's Note: The following letter was received in answer to the SUN SURVEY question of May 15, 1969, regarding Virginia Beach's acceptance of Norfolk's garbage on a permanent or temporary basis. While it was received too late to be included in the results published last week, it is now duly counted as a negative answer.

Editor, VIRGINIA BEACH SUN: Since your question would seem to serve two purposes, that of our continuance in accepting Norfolk's trash and/or the continuance of double rates, I felt compelled to write this note.

I feel that we should not continue to take Norfolk's trash under any conditions.

Virginia Beach is a growing city and while we may be able to comfortably handle the increase of our own trash it is difficult to foresee the many problems that could arise from a continuing mountain (700 tons a day) from Norfolk.

It would seem that a survey in depth is now in order. Is this one of the first steps in Norfolk's need of expansion and will we soon be more than Norfolk's bedroom?

Mrs. Vernon W. Mott

Greater Needs

Editor's Note: The following letter was received in answer to last week's SUN SURVEY question regarding local monetary participation in a sand erosion program over a period of years. (See story front page.)

Editor, VIRGINIA BEACH SUN: The $6 million for sand erosion control and ocean beach nourishment will only benefit hotel and motel owners and local residents on the beach front. Unless you can afford to belong to a beach club most of us will be unable to see or use this benefit. If the residents and hotel and motel owners want this, let them pay.

The city has needs far greater than sand for a few. For example, increased pay for school bus drivers and better pay and more policemen. Needs in my opinion are as great in other parts of the city as they are on the oceanfront.

Special Report

Personalities vs. Issues

For the first time in the gubernatorial campaign for the Democratic nomination, the three hopefuls are beginning to get into personalities. Until now most of the campaigning has been confined to issues of importance and issues not so important.

Nothing makes for a more boring campaign, although at least we can be assured of some outstanding oratory on the issues since there is nothing else to go on.

The name calling has not started even now. But a little tenuous accusation here and there has caused some tempers to flare a little and some interesting news copy at last. The Pollard forces, obviously gaining ground through use of the three-man ticket, suggested that Battle, Sargeant Reynolds and an Attorney General candidate were planning to get together on a ticket following a meeting on the Eastern Shore.

Battle immediately got mileage out of it by denying this, as did Reynolds. But one can never completely discount rumors when denials are so strong. It is doubtful, however, at this late stage with the primary just a little more than a month away, that another ticket will materialize.

Battle also says Pollard and Howell have formed an "unholy alliance" to gang up on him. He said that when the two appear together on platforms they both fire away at him. This, however, is certainly natural enough. It is far easier to lash out at the absent member. Battle also says Howell is ducking joint appearances with him. Howell says "I ain't so. Battle, who managed John Kennedy's campaign in Virginia in 1960 and was reportedly aligned with the Kennedy faction of the Democratic Party, says the Pollard forces are trying to make an issue out of his friendship with the Kennedy family. He says the Kennedys have no political connection with this campaign.

Meanwhile the Pollard ticket candidates are at least saying the same things in their various appearances around the state. That, in itself, is refreshing. Conflicting stories from conflicting candidates can often confuse the voter, instead of educate him. Of course, all anyone wants is the true story on any issue of personality allusions.

Howell, called a liberal by just about everyone, may be getting worried about that label. He told a Warrenton audience lately that "labels are not the name of the game." He added that such labels are sometimes used as a substitute to explain certain issue positions.

He said he supported some of the principles of "conservatism" and some principles of the "moderates," but asked if this made him either one.

Howell is obviously aware that the "liberal" tag is not overly popular all over Virginia, while it may well be in some urban areas. His attempts to dispel any fears about that label may be somewhat difficult, in view of many of his past positions.

The Howell television commercials that have been appearing recently would seem to be a bad example of any television commercial. The loud talking at a rapid pace is hard to understand. And one political buff said it reminds him of memories he has of Adolph Hitler's speeches in the early 30's.

"I think the Battle and Pollard folks are paying for those," he said.

One more full month to go to the July Democratic primary, and the campaign may now be shifting into high gear.

There is little doubt that these few personality clashes will be the only ones we hear before July 15. But it will still surprise everyone if the jabs turn into uppercuts, because of the danger of confusing the voters too badly. They cannot think the Democrats are too badly divided in July or even August for a runoff, if that becomes necessary. If the voters think that, Linwood Holton and a string of Republicans might be moving to Richmond in January after the November general election.

The voters don't like infighting. They like smilers. And Holton smiles a lot. All three Democrats are aware of this.

SPOTS

By H. Joseph Lowenthal, Jr.

"What do you mean?" he asked. "Can't you change his diaper by yourself? Why do you need my help?"

"I really don't," she said. "That is, if I keep my knee on his chest and tie his arms down. That way he can't get away or turn over."

"Are you really trying to tell me that a little boy like he is, only weighing a few pounds and not even 11 months old yet, can get the best of you when you're trying to change his diaper?" he wanted to know.

"Absolutely," she said. "And then getting him entirely redressed takes at least another 20 minutes and two nerve pills."

"I can't believe it," he said. "Look how sweetly he's smiling at you. And he's so docile."

Change For The Worse

"Then you change him," she said defiantly. "You haven't done it since he became so mobile."

"All right," he said. "I will. I'll change him from the skin out and be back in five minutes."

"Don't put too much ointment on him," she said. "It makes him too slippery and hard to handle."

"You just sit quietly and try not to breathe too hard while I'm gone," he yelled from upstairs. "That may take too much effort."

She waited for 23 minutes. "Hi," she said. "How'd it go?"

"Fine, of course," he said. "It just took a little longer because I couldn't find everything right away."

"What's that bandage on your finger for?" she asked.

"Just a minor accident," he said. "He jumped when I tried to get one of the diaper pins in. It merely went into my finger a half inch or more."

"Oh," she said. "And where did all that powder come from that's on your trousers?"

"Just carelessness," he said. "I happened to leave the open powder can too close to him. He poured it all over me."

"That ointment doesn't look too good in your hair either," she pointed out. "How'd that happen?"

"I didn't know he could squeeze the tube so well and so violently now," he said. "Anyway I'm glad I found out where that glob of ointment went. I searched all over the room for it to clean it up, and I couldn't find it. The last time I saw it it was flying through the air."

"Look at your son," she said. "I thought you changed him."

"I did," he said, then looked. "Now that's funny. I wonder how that diaper fell off." She fixed it by putting her knee on his chest while he held the baby's hands down.

"Are you ready to admit he's a little difficult to dress these days?" she wanted to know.

"All right," he said. "I admit it. I just couldn't believe he could possibly be that bad. When did this start?"

"He's not bad. He's just mischievous, and he's just a boy," she said.

"I'm glad to hear it," he said. "I thought my memory was playing tricks on me. I don't remember either of the girls being that hard to dress."

"They never were," she said. "Incidentally, where's your shirt?"

"What shirt?" he asked innocently.

"The one you had on when you went upstairs," she said.

"Oh, that shirt?" he said. "I left it up there in the clothes hamper."

"Why," she asked sweetly.

"It was a bit wet," he said.

"How'd it get wet?" she asked holding back a laugh.

"Well," he said, "Would you mind changing his crib sheet too? I wasn't fast enough when I changed his diaper. And I never had that problem before. I was used to changing the girls."

She collapsed in a fit of laughter.

The industry which holds the greatest promise for tax-revenue for Virginia Beach is the tourist industry.

It is the largest industry in the city, producing tourist-generated revenue in excess of $50,000,000 annually. By way of comparison, and as an indication of what it could be, Cape May County, N. J., in 1967 had $325,689,000 estimated tourist-generated dollars.

Myrtle Beach, S. C., between March 17 and April 19, 1968, had 67,000 Canadian visitors while Virginia Beach had less than 1,000 Canadian tourists.

God and Nature has given Virginia Beach our scenery, our ocean and our climate. It is up to our leaders to sustain, enhance, and improve our natural wonders. Are the tourist dollars piled loose by the same kind of motels, the same miniature golf courses, the same highway traffic, the same amusements they left behind in Akron, Ohio, Pittsburgh, Pa., and Albany, N.Y.?

The answer is that the tourist is looking for something different. First and foremost, Virginia Beach needs a Tourist Commission or a Department of Tourism. This Commission or Department should have an able full-time salaried director and be staffed with knowledgeable people in the tourist industry. The Chamber of Commerce notwithstanding its great assistance to the tourist industry is simply not equipped to fulfill this function.

This group once operative, could set forth certain desirable attractions needed in Virginia Beach and encourage their development by private industry. A city by simply saying "we want you; we need you," can create a powerful inducement to the attraction of private capital for needed industries. Tax incentives could be offered as a further means of encouraging the investment of private capital.

Some of the needed tourist attractions are as follows:

- (1) Pari-mutuel horse racing;
- (2) Stock-car racing;
- (3) Bird hunting preserves;
- (4) Further development of Rudee Inlet;
- (5) Downtown parking facilities;
- (6) Further development of our historical attractions. (For example, the Jamestown colonists landed in Virginia Beach on April 26, 1607; 18 days before they reached Jamestown. Presently this supreme historical spot is marked by a sand dune and swamp grass.)
- (7) National golf tournaments could be held in the city. More first rate golf courses are needed if we desire to increase our spring and fall tourist business.
- (8) An expanded amusement park located off the ocean-front.
- (9) A marineland.
- (10) A coastal highway.
- (11) A small airport for private planes and helicopters.
- (12) Plans should be underway now for an international airport. If this is further delayed the writer predicts Newport News will benefit from this economic bonanza.
- (13) A convention center in the Beach Borough.

By an aggressive approach to the objectives listed above, most of the above attractions could be located here with private capital. To be successful the leaders have to commit themselves now to such a program. It will not come without leadership—nothing ever does.

Atlantis By the Sea, when finished some years from now, will look like this artist's scale rendering. Present plans call for the fall construction of 200 garden apartments (shown at center). Eventually five hotels will rise on Chesapeake Bay (upper left), and high-rise luxury apartments and a marina will be built on Long Creek (lower right). The Atlantis property lies near the intersection of Great Neck Rd. and Shore Dr.

Atlantis to Reappear on Shore Drive

Immediate plans for the initial phase of Atlantis-by-the-Sea, call for the beginning of construction of 200 garden apartments in the fall of this year, but when the entire development is completed the 120 acres will contain a community valued at up to $100 million.

Plans were unveiled by developer David L. Levine for the tourist-residential complex, named by his 15-year old son. The area lies adjacent to Great Neck Road and Shore Drive. Levine owns land on the Chesapeake Bay side, which was once known as Seaview Beach, and a larger tract fronting on Long Creek on the south side of Shore Drive.

Although no timetable was given by Levine at the luncheon meeting last Thursday at Shore Drive Inn of the Bayside Business and Professional Association, Levine said it will take many years to complete Atlantis.

Eventual plans call for five high-rise hotels with 3,000 rooms and convention facilities on the bayfront, 1,000 garden apartments and 1,000 high-rise luxury apartments in three fall buildings, a medical center and clinic, a large shopping center, 3,500 feet of private beach and a 150-slip marina. Levine said the residential area would be fenced and guarded to insure safety. When completed he said about 1,000 people will be employed there and about $1 million in real estate taxes will be paid annually. A number of city officials, including City Manager Roger Scott, were on hand to hear this news.

About 100 persons, including mortgage bankers from major banking houses, heard the plans for initial occupancy of the 200 apartments in the first phase by next year at this time.

BADGES & BANTER

By Les Lehigh

Sgt. E. L. Jackson, Det. W. M. Bailey, along with officers F. R. Scarborough and W. H. Smith, Jr., have just returned to duty following completion of three weeks special training at the Central Police Training School in Richmond. Sgt. Jackson was elected president of the class of 82 students from various police departments throughout the State.

This marks the final week of the fund raising campaign by the various volunteer fire departments and rescue squads which serve the residents of Virginia Beach. Even though the official drive draws to a close you may still contribute what you would like to be of financial assistance to these men who stand ready to protect you and your property.

Men of the Virginia Beach police department were busy this week requalifying on the special weapons range. While all reports have not as yet been compiled we understand those who were among the upper scores included Lt. A. E. Smith, 3rd Police Precinct, and officer J. T. Haley.

Indications are work is progressing on a number of new "Bronco" vehicles recently purchased by the city for use by the police K-9 Corps, and that the vehicles should be going into regular service in the near future at each of the police precincts.

Members of the Virginia Beach Borough Fire Department, regulars and volunteers, gathered with their families last Saturday evening for a buffet dinner. Upwards of 300 persons were on hand for the occasion, and a good time was had by all.

Police Chief Col. W. W. Davis took his first ride on board the new police boat last Tuesday as the cruiser was being put through one of its final test runs before going into service this coming weekend. Col. Davis took the helm as the sleek Chris Craft moved back into Rudee Inlet after making a pass along the beach front in waters of the Atlantic. Davis handled the 23-footer like a long time experienced sea captain.

Man Rescued from Water

Men of the Chesapeake Beach Volunteer Fire and Rescue Department have been credited with saving the life of a truck driver after he was thrown into Chesapeake Bay during an accident late Sunday night.

The man has been identified as Oscar G. Thomas, 28, of Indian Rock Beach, Fla.

According to Chesapeake Bay Bridge Tunnel Police Chief W. C. Meyer, Thomas was driving his tractor-trailer truck loaded with produce northbound over the bay crossing, when it collided with the car of Marine Sgt. Dennis R. Mowbray as it travelled southbound.

Mowbray, 20, attached to the Cinclant Compound in Norfolk, was fatally injured when he was thrown into the concrete surfacing of tunnel.

Thomas was thrown from the cab of his truck over the railing of the bridge into the bay.

Lawrence H. Stevens, a member of the Bridge-Tunnel police force, was cruising behind Thomas' truck when the accident occurred. After reporting what had happened by car radio, Stevens grabbed a lifeline from his patrol car and threw it to Thomas in the water. Stevens then, by means of rope attached to the lifeline, pulled Thomas back to a bridge piling.

Chesapeake Beach Volunteer Fire Capt. Thomas Marois was lowered to assist Thomas who was still clinging to the lifeline and piling. Realizing it would be impossible to hoist the men to safety by rope, a message was radioed back to headquarters for a litter basket.

Marois said that after he reached the water, "Thomas was about to give up, but when I was able to calm him down a bit he was able to assure me that no one else was in the truck with him nor in the water. It seemed like an eternity before that basket ever got down there."

The accident and rescue operation resulted in closing of the bridge-tunnel to all traffic, except rescue vehicles, for some two hours.

Thomas received a collapsed lung and concussion in the accident, and was rushed to Virginia Beach General Hospital. Tuesday night he was reported in satisfactory condition recovering from his injuries.

Lighthouse Is Closed For Check

Old Cape Henry Lighthouse has been closed to tourists for an indefinite time. The building will be undergoing a safety inspection during this period.

According to Howard Prince, keeper of the lighthouse, the heavy traffic on the iron stairs creates a small hazard from time to time. Safety engineers will decide what modifications should be done to the facility. The lighthouse was built in 1791 and is part of the Norfolk and Virginia Beach Tours.

Reception Will Honor Priest

A reception has been planned by the parishioners of Star of the Sea for their pastor, Rev. Francis V. Bambrick.

The reception has been planned for June 8 from 2 p.m. until 4 p.m. It is in honor of Rev. Bambrick's 35th anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood.

Lawyer Discloses Threats

Thoroughgood Corporation lawyer John Clarkson told the Thoroughgood Civic League Wednesday night that principals of the corporation, as well as himself, had been threatened because of the corporation's proposed shopping center at the Thoroughgood entrance. Clarkson gave this as the reason why none of the principals were at the meeting. The meeting had been called between the interested parties and the city planning department to discuss the department's proposal for developing the area under question.

Patrick L. Standing, city planning director, presented the plan. It calls for opening a new entrance to Thoroughgood by extending Hermitage Road to Pleasure House Road and permitting construction of a village-type shopping center at the present entrance, which has been zoned commercially since 1955.

No real agreement was made on the proposed plan; Clarkson could not guarantee that Thoroughgood Corp. would agree to building the center as it was presented in Standing's plan and the civic league did not accept the plan at Wednesday's meeting. They will meet before the Planning Commission hearing in June to make this decision.

Board Decides

The Virginia Beach Board of Equalization has made decisions on 37 appeals, upholding the appraisals set by the City Real Estate Assessor, W. W. (Bill) Connell and his staff in 31 of the appeals.

Rent-All Has Opened New Outlet

United Rent-All opened at its new location in Virginia Beach yesterday with the help of the mayor and Miss Virginia Beach.

Mayor Frank Dusch and Linda Phillips were on hand to cut the ribbon marking the official opening of the unique service business at 296 N. Witchduck Rd. Other city officials and a number of guests were also on hand.

The business, part of the 350 franchise establishments of United Rent-All from coast to coast, will be managed by Conrad Weiser, who recently retired after 23 years in the Navy, his wife, Betty, and their son, Bill.

Among items that may be rented are party supplies, garden and yard tools, sickroom needs, do-it-yourself equipment and exercise equipment. Mrs. Weiser said the concept of the business is that there is no need to purchase little used equipment and maintain it when it can be rented at a nominal fee.

Jack Stinnerford, area coordinator for United Rent-All, also took part in the opening ceremonies at the 5,500 square feet of floor space building.

The public is invited to visit the new facility and register for prizes, which include a Stowboat sailing boat to be given away at a drawing on July 4.

The Cavalier Junior Woman's Club have the right idea about installing officers--they invite their husbands and make an evening of it.

Friday night the Cavaliers had a dinner at the White Sands Country Club followed by the installation, then dancing.

A skit with a cast of club members centered around the theme of Virginia Burbank Beach and an academy awards program. This was fitting since the Cavaliers not only won a national film decency contest sponsored by the Motion Picture Association, but this year their most successful money making projects was sponsorship of an "Oliver" premiere.

Among the awards was one to Mrs. William Jones as Club Woman of the Year. Mrs. Leon H. Ware was named Outstanding New Member and Mrs. Fred Feller was selected Outstanding Member.

Perhaps the highlight of the evening was the presentation of "Granny" awards to the club's two graduates, Mrs. R. H. DeFord and Mrs. C. P. Eldridge.

New officers were installed by Mrs. Maurice O. Casey, president of Kempsville Woman's Club and former Cavalier. They are: Mrs. James B. Hutchinson, president; Mrs. Frank I. Adkins, Jr., first vice president; Mrs. Fred H. Feller, second vice president; Mrs. C. A. Goins, recording secretary; Mrs. M. S. Mitchell, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Frank L. Mrs. Marvin D. Brooks was chairman of the evening.

Leaders Discuss Parenthood Unit

By Carolyn McAllen

Health, civic, church and welfare leaders met last week to discuss establishing a Planned Parenthood agency in Virginia Beach.

There is definite need of such an agency said Dr. Madge May, head of the Virginia Beach Public Health Department. "We've (the department) been in the family planning business for a good while now. We feel in Virginia Beach that we did pioneer work in oral contraceptive use." She added that the department was the first in Virginia to offer the "intrauterine devices."

the problem he pointed out that in China women either must submit to sterilization after their second child or have their ration card taken away. In Japan women are allowed to have abortions on demand.

He said that although there were 80,000 births in Virginia last year, 21,000 women sought abortions. He said there are 50,000 on welfare.

"Anything like Headstart is wonderful," said Howard, "but that's just patching the problem. A child can't learn in a year what he should have gotten in five or six through loving parents from the start."

"Patients are free to choose whatever method they want," said Dr. May. "It has meant a great deal to a number of Virginia Beach women to have access to them. I know there are a number of women we're not getting to because we are short staffed. We need somebody to explain and give out literature. I have seen how well it worked in Richmond, and I would like to see it here."

It was pointed out that many local women are too poorly educated to read the literature and need personal explanation which the Department of Public Health does not have time to give. Many cannot remember to take a pill every day. There is a 25 percent drop rate for the pills. Volunteers could find out why.

Charles Howard, with the state Planned Parenthood organization, cited the population explosion (8000 new babies every hour) as a danger to future generations. "Experts feel the quality of living will go down," Howard said. "There are now no longer surplus foods. The medical people are doing a better job of keeping people alive longer."

"It (population explosion) will make the atom bomb look like a cap pistol. It's the greatest problem facing the world today."

As examples of solutions to

"Every woman should have the right and knowledge and available services to decide how many children she wants. Every child should have an equal opportunity for success."

Howard went on to outline what a group of concerned citizens could do to help: provide transportation, distribute information, talk to teenagers, develop a lay speakers bureau. "College students think they know everything," Howard added. "It's amazing the misinformation they have."

He said that an educational program for school children is needed to teach them the responsibilities of being parents and to convince them not to have large families.

Planned Parenthood is supported by private contributions and by a grant from the Office of Economic Opportunity. Mrs. Hilda Snodgrass, who heads the Portsmouth office, has been instrumental in starting a chapter here. The Virginia Beach Council of Church Women, United have pledged their support.

Howard concluded, "Unless we do something as volunteers, the government will have to step in in the future."

There will be another meeting at 4 p.m. June 13 at the Princess Anne Public Health Department office.

There's a Mouse In the House

There's another mouse in the house--only this one weighs 40 pounds.

We finally found out what the five-year-old was to wear in the kindergarten extravaganza. At first it was simple. He was going to be Jack Be Nimble and wear short pants, a white shirt and long socks. Unfortunately, one of the Three Blind Mice withdrew from school. Guess who was picked to fill in? This was after we had already gone through the agony of trying to find green leotards for the six-year-old to play an upside-down flower.

A note to his teacher resulted in a return note saying that he would provide ears if I would get him a tail. Well, I wrote her back saying that if she had the ears and I had the tail, what went in the middle? That was where I made my first mistake.

Another note gave the name of the other two mice. It also included the additional information that they were to portray the Three Blind Mice in the Spirit of '76. Remember the picture of the three Revolutionary War soldiers, banded and carrying a life, a drum and a musket? Anyhow Bill was to carry the musket. I ever try to imagine a Revolutionary War mouse?

The next step was to call one of the other mothers--my second mistake, that is. I found out on Friday that the other two mothers had made full mouse costumes for their boys. I had from Friday until Tuesday--with a couple of work days at the office thrown in, for good measure--to come up with a mouse costume. I did get to borrow their pattern, however.

When I tried to get material, though, all they had left at the store that would match the others were some remnants--none of which were big enough. So I wound up with three lengths which I pieced together. It really wasn't too difficult to sew--except that there were directions and pieces for ten different costumes--all different animals (none of which were mice)--in the same package. Besides, it was an easy-to-make pattern. I hate those because they always cause me twice the trouble of a regular pattern.

In addition, the pattern was a size 6-8. That covers a lot of territory--or mouse as the case may be. After a few adjustments I got it to fit. But I forgot to shorten the tail. I warned Bill to hang on to it so nobody would step on it.

They were great mice. Bill took the other two firmly in tow and hung on for dear life during the march in which they appeared.

Only one thing bothers me. I still can't see any connection between the three blind mice and the Spirit of '76 as far as Mother Goose is concerned.

14 Clubs Keep Her Busy

By Yatta Jones

"I really don't know of anything I dislike to do...I'll try anything once," says Mrs. C. W. Van Jernigan.

She means it, too. In fact, if you talk to her for very long you might decide that she is trying everything at once. As an example, she belongs to approximately 14 different clubs and organizations. These include a home demonstration club, a woman's club, three garden clubs (one of which she helped to organize) and a couple of boating organizations among others.

Besides being a member of all of those clubs she is presently taking lessons in cooking, music and bridge. The music lessons are a joint project with her husband for they are both taking organ lessons.

The Jernigans have no children, but, as Mrs. Jernigan says, "I'm in the neighborhood mother...I take care of everybody else's children." She is often called upon by the children in the neighborhood to give advice or to show someone how to work on one project or another.

Mrs. Jernigan not only stays busy in the community, but she takes care of their beautiful home, both inside and in the yard. She has many lovely flowers in the yard right now to show for her efforts. And she has one potted plant inside that she is extremely proud of. It's a "squirrel's foot" fern. The plant is perfectly set-off by a huge rock, in which the plant container sits. When asked where she got such a rock hollowed-out for that purpose, Mrs. Jernigan promptly replied, "I chiseled it out myself."

Her secret of being able to do so much is, as she says, "staying organized." She makes up her mind ahead of time as to how long she will spend at a particular job and she sticks to it.

Mrs. Jernigan had to amend her original statement that she didn't dislike doing anything... "I do dislike yacking on the phone when it isn't necessary... I read one time that when a woman talks on the phone for more than 15 minutes she's talking about another woman!"

"My favorite occupations," she states, "are sewing, traveling and cooking."

She makes her own clothes because, she says, "I don't like to be like everybody else... I don't like to copy anybody." As proof of this statement she wore a pants suit she had made to a ball in Washington before pants suits were really popular. "There was only one other woman there with one oh," she commented, "but I enjoyed wearing mine very much."

Her originality extends to jewelry. She had an extremely attractive ring made out of an antique Japanese sword stopper. She also has a bracelet made out of polished demiprecious stones which she made herself.

In spite of her unusual tastes, however, she admits that she hasn't gotten up enough courage to wear a see-through blouse, yet!

It's a good thing Mrs. Jernigan likes unusual things because unusual situations seem to gravitate around her. For instance, she went on a trip to the west coast several years ago and took a brand new pair of shoes. She wore them out one evening and discovered when she returned that one shoe was black and grey and one shoe was brown and beige.

And then there were the temple rubbings... Her sister had sent her a gift from the Orient, and as Mrs. Jernigan unwrapped the gift she noticed that the packing paper was quite attractive. She saved the paper and she is very happy she did now. A few years after she had received the gift she was in a department store and noticed some pictures that were selling for $70 a piece. They looked familiar and sure enough, when she got home and checked the "packing paper" from her sister's gift she found that she unwittingly possessed two very fine temple rubbings!

For the past four years Mrs. Jernigan has traveled during the summer months while her club meetings are discontinued. She is busy preparing a trip right now, for she went to her final club meeting last week. This year she plans to go to Europe, Spain and India and then come back to the states whatever way she feels like. One thing is certain, it won't be a dull trip.

Tidewater Hosts State Meet

The Virginia Federation of Garden Clubs, Inc. concluded its 35th annual state convention, hosted by Tidewater District, with the installation of new officers Wednesday night at the Golden Triangle.

They are: Mrs. John Y. Wright of Norfolk, president; Mrs. A. Tracy Loyd of Roanoke, first vice president; Mrs. Bruce Farley of Norfolk, second vice president; Mrs. James D. Allen, Jr., of Lynchburg, recording secretary; Mrs. James F. Giles of Purcellville, treasurer; and as famous as Smokey the Bear. Mrs. Charles T. Benjamin, outgoing president, said that the main purposes of garden clubs in Virginia are to aid in the protection and conservation of natural resources, promote beautification, promote civic improvement, encourage gardening and promote anti-litter campaigns.

At the convention she introduced Chucky the Chipmunk as the Federation's anti-litter symbol. "I hope he'll become

Mrs. Benjamin said that there are now approximately 64,000 garden-club members in the state. One of their accomplishments is sponsorship of a Virginia Polytechnic Institute scholarship in horticulture. In the fall a new one in conservation will be added.

Mrs. Benjamin said the Federation will continue its road-side beautification work and (See "State Meet" p. 8)

HERE COMES OLGA!

Friday night at Fort Story officer's club was one of the most well attended, entertaining Luau's I have ever covered while writing this column.

This Luau was given by Cinc-Lant Officers Wives' Club. When I first entered the club, I thought the whole Navy fleet had landed. There must have been at least 300 people.

Everyone had on name tags, but even with this I knew it would be impossible to try and get all of the names and then if I did, it would take a day to write the column.

Of course, Ft. Story officer's club is known for their great Luau's, but then the crowd also has to participate to make it a success and believe me these officers and their wives did just that. Everyone was dressed in very bright colors. The men all wore Hawaiian shirts and some of the men even had on pants that were flowered or brightly colored. Of course, leis of many colors were worn around everyone's necks. The women wore the beautiful printed long hostess culottes or long hostess gowns. Both men and women as a whole wore sandals although some were barefooted. The entire room was so very colorful. On each table were either Hawaiian dolls or flowers that you would find in Hawaii.

The Atlantic Fleet band played all through the buffet and while the people were eating. This of course, kept the crowd in a very gay mood, but I don't think they needed a lot to keep them in this mood; the atmosphere alone was full of gaiety. Vice Adm. A. F. Schade was one of the guests. When it comes to personality, this man is certainly endowed with it. During the entertainment when the girls came out to the Hawaiian dances, one of the girls went to the table and got Adm. Schade to dance with them. Much to my surprise he could really do the Hawaiian dances—he was terrific. I studied this kind of dancing for awhile, so I could easily see that he knew what he was doing. No doubt while on duty in Hawaii he took advantage of learning their dances. He also knew the movements of the hands to express the dance.

In the center of the buffet table was a monkey dressed in a grass skirt, lei around the neck of many colors and a straw hat. The chef was off the side of the buffet table continually chopping up in small bits a sucking pig. The more I watched him the hungrier I got. I was not alone in this feeling of hunger. As I stood beside the bartender and a Navy amerman, they too felt as I did as we watched the chef.

Starting from one end of the buffet table, the food started with great big bowls of tossed salad with about five different kinds of dressings for it. Next was steamed shrimp, chicken curry, sweet and sour pork, rice, salmon lomi, baked bananas, watermelon scooped out with pieces of watermelon chunks inside and pineapple scooped out with chunks of pineapple inside. The relish tray had everything from black and green olives to green and red hot peppers, and, of course, a Luau is not complete without poi.

The entire table had every kind of fruit you could think of as well as avocados. After every one had finished eating just before they cleared the table, the chef said the people who wanted the fruit were welcome to it. It wasn't but a few minutes before the table was stripped of all the fruit. You would not believe that all the fruit they had on the table could have disappeared so quickly, but believe me it did. The only thing left was the monkey, and I am sure a lot of the people would love to have had him to take home to their children, but Mr. Williams the club manager, I don't believe will part with the monkey.

Dinner over the entertainment started with the judging of the best costumes of both men and women. The judges were Vice Adm. A. F. Schade, Capt. F. E. Miller and Capt. A. Smith. When the young women came to the front for judging, Adm. Schade commented by saying that his wife told him all of the women under 30 were automatically disqualified. Of course he was joking. Each winner was given a prize. The next part of the program were the hula girls and a young lady from England who sang. The bands had changed when the program started from the Atlantic Fleet band to a combo band.

Those sitting at the head table were: Rear Adm. and Mrs. L. B. McDonald, Capt. and Mrs. A. Smith (Mrs. Smith is the incoming president for the club), Vice Adm. and Mrs. Schade, Cmdr. and Mrs. F. L. Dennis, Jr. (Mrs. Dennis is the outgoing president of the club), Capt. and Mrs. F. E. Miller, Rear Adm. and Mrs. M. E. Simpson, Rear Adm. and Mrs. J. W. Dolan and Cmdr. and Mrs. W. H. Austin (Mrs. Austin was the program chairman).

See you next week and wouldn't I like to think it would be in Hawaii. There we could all enjoy a real Luau.

EASY HERB BREAD

A half teaspoon each of marjoram and crushed rosemary is an excellent addition to the dough for one loaf of white bread. Heat the herbs briefly with some of the liquid which will be used in the dough.

Look Furniture Over

An upholstered chair or sofa may look beautiful, fit your decor and you may want it. But it still must perform the daily job—comfort for the human body. It must continue to do this job over a long period.

Actually then, furniture is a long-term investment, said Miss Katherine Habel, Extension home furnishings specialist at Virginia Tech. Before you make such an investment, find a good dealer. One who can answer your questions and give sound advice on style and value. Pay strict attention to what he says, it will add up or just be a lot of words, advised the specialist.

Then do some investigating on your own. Feel the chair or sofa. Does it seem rounded to the touch, with no wood or metal noticeable? This is important because if you can feel an edge now, it won't be long before it comes through.

Run your eye over the welt line. It should go around straight and be neatly sewn. Notice the exposed seams; quality manufacturers recommend seven, nine and 11 stitches to the inch according to the type of fabric and seam usage. Look for the "contents" or "bedding tags" label which many states require to be on the bottom of an upholstered piece. These show filling materials and in what proportions.

Look at the fabric too, said Miss Habel. Is it one piece of fabric or is it pieced. If pieced, has the piecing been neatly done with the fabric pattern matched with continuity? Look under the cushions. Is the covering underneath the same fabric as the cushion? This is another sign of quality.

Check for availability of arm covers. These are separate fabric pieces exactly like the chair or sofa used to cover all arms—real protection in an area that wears rapidly.

Get an all-around view of the chair or sofa. The back should be as well-finished as the front.

Then, sit down. Does it feel comfortable to you? Upholstery is one of the most individual areas of furniture buying, so make sure you feel "right" in the chair or sofa. Arm height is an important factor in comfort. Are the arms at a level "right" for your body? Do all the upholstered areas seem resilient and firm?

One thing to keep in mind is that where an upholstered piece will get a great deal of use and wear, close-woven, heavy fabric is more suitable than light silk or cotton.

Pineapple, coconut and mandarin oranges go wonderfully well with chicken in this Hawaiian menu.

Take Your Choice of Chicken

Chicken has become the family dish as well as the company dish, and the ways to serve it seem limitless.

We became interested in the versatility of chicken... and found for example that a popular dish in Hawaii—manu Hawaii—comes with a slice of pineapple underneath the fork tender chicken and a topping of shredded coconut. In Bangkok, Thailand, barbecued chicken with fruit is called kai yang laa poniamai cheum. And of course, we know by a quick look through a French cookbook that coq is a very popular meat.

Flatware Price Does Not Show

Stainless steel flatware comes in a wide array of price, and it is not always possible to recognize quality at a glance.

Steel used for table ware usually includes 18 per cent chromium and eight per cent nickel. Variations in the mixture govern color and the rust-resistant quality that makes it stainless.

Alloys with more nickel are whiter, of a better grade and will retain a new look longer. Stainless with a bluish look contains more chromium and is less expensive.

The manufacturing process also greatly affects price. Pieces stamped from a sheet of metal of uniform thickness will be less expensive than pieces "graded" in thickness which have increased strength and better appearance.

Finishing is also important. Rough, improperly finished or polished pieces may become discolored, stained and, if of poor quality alloy, even rusted.

Stainless steel is a hard metal and it is difficult to create many of the scrolled and heavily ornamented patterns available without costly hand finishing. Stainless patterns range from copies of traditional silver designs to the most modern. Finishes are either shiny or dull. While shiny patterns resist stains better, satin or brushed finishes show surface scratches less.

Knives with hollow handles are more expensive to produce than solid flat ones, as are ones with forged blades.

DAR Picks Contest Winners

The Adam Thoroughgood Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution presented an award for Good Citizenship to Steven Bridges, seventh Grade Student at Thoroughgood Elementary School at the May Parent Teachers meeting on May 26.

Steven is the son of Col. and Mrs. David W. Bridges. The DAR Good Citizenship award is based upon five qualities: Honor, Service, Courage, Leadership and Patriotism.

Steven was chosen by his teachers and the principal as being an all round, outstanding student. He stands high academically and in athletics. He is Captain of the School Traffic Patrol.

The purpose of the American History Essay Contest sponsored by the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution is to challenge young Americans to a fuller understanding and deeper appreciation of the unequalled rights which they have inherited.

Kim Keller of Thoroughgood Elementary School's Seventh Grade wrote an interesting essay on Molly Pitcher and was presented a certificate and a silver medal by the Adam Thoroughgood Chapter of the DAR.

Notice the landscaping around the Mutual Federal Savings and Loan Association's branch office at 3529 Virginia Beach Blvd. The grounds are maintained in excellent condition. The climbing roses on the fences are now in full bloom. The rear of the property presents an attractive appearance from the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway. The Mutual Federal branch office at 3201 Pacific Ave. is also well landscaped and well cared for. "Beauty is good business."

Japanese Ideas Help Yards

With so many urban homes being built with tiny, almost postage stamp size yards, a lot of homemakers may want to borrow a good idea from the Japanese and plant oriental gardens.

The basic feature of an oriental garden is that it is designed by the grouping of three different shapes: upright, rounded or leaning, and flat or spreading. The groupings can be repeated throughout the garden.

Emphasis is on materials that do not change, such as rocks, evergreens, and soil or pebbles. A few colorful flowers may be included. The trees and shrubs are pruned carefully each year so that they keep their form and size without seeming to change.

Paths or stepping stones lead you around the garden turning here or there to make you pause when there is something special to admire. Water is an important element in a Japanese garden, both for the sight of it and the sound.

Some appropriate plant materials for the oriental garden include bamboo for the vertical or upright shapes, dwarf azaleas for the recumbent ones, and rounded moss or prostrate cotoneaster as the horizontal.

Pests Can Be Pesky

You are probably like most folks who try to have an attractive yard with beautiful flowers and shrubs.

You are careful when you plant. You fertilize. You water in dry weather.

You're concerned about insects and plant disease. And with good reason. For you can be pretty sure that you'll have aphids and black spot on the roses, wilt on the asters, thrips on the gladiol.

It's easier than you may think to keep insects and plant diseases under control. Just follow this simple rule: put the right pesticide where the trouble is. You can generally find out what the right pesticide is by talking to the clerk in the garden supply department of your favorite store. Or you can get help from your county agricultural agent. But the important thing is to apply that pesticide where the trouble is. That way you'll get effective control of insects and plant disease.

You'll find you have a choice of applying pesticides by either spraying or dusting - putting them on in either liquid form or in dry form. In either case, the size of your equipment will usually depend on the number of plants you need to take care of. Choose a size that will let you get your spraying or dusting done quickly without frequent stops for refilling.

The next important point is to insist on a sprayer or duster that will put the pesticide where the trouble is. This means one with an adjustable nozzle and an extension tube so you can aim the spray or dust exactly where you want it.

Whether you spray or dust is pretty much up to your personal preference. Some folks feel that sprayers are more accurate in placing the pesticide and therefore can give better results than dusters. Others like to dust because getting ready is so easy. You just pour the dust as it comes from the package into the container of the duster and go to work.

For spraying compressed air sprayers with tanks ranging from one to six gallons are the most popular. They usually come with extensions which let you reach in toward the center of plantings or reach up into shrubs and small trees.

They should have either an adjustable nozzle or a curved extension so that you can apply the spray down from above, in from the side, and up from below. This last is real important because many insects and plant diseases are found on the bottom of the leaves and carry on their damaging activities at this point of comparative security. Drenching a plant from the top can, and often does, leave many pests untouched and free to continue their damage.

If you have some taller shrubs or trees to spray, a slide pump sprayer is excellent. It provides pressures to 150 pounds which is enough to reach 20 or 30 feet up into the trees and to penetrate dense foliage in shrubs and other plantings.

For larger size plantings, power sprayers provide the ultimate in effortless spraying.

Dusters are available in a choice of sizes also. The most popular duster is the plunger type. When this tool is equipped with an extension and an adjustable nozzle, it too meets the basic requirement for equipment. It puts the pesticide where the trouble is.

Exams Interrupt Sports

Spring sports have now ended for all Virginia Beach High Schools. Now it's time for exams.

The final action of the year came as Princess Anne dropped a 4-2 decision to Wilson in the Eastern Region Group 1-A baseball tournament last Friday night at Portsmouth's Lawrence Stadium.

PA threatened twice, in the sixth and seventh of the state semifinals, but Wilson pitcher, Doug Whitley, managed to pitch himself out of trouble. His coach admitted that Whitley was one batter away from being yanked from the game in the seventh, when he was able to retire the side.

The Presidents' left hander never allowed the Cavaliers a hit until the sixth and walked only two. He struck out six. The Cavaliers reached the same spot last year, only to go down to defeat in the regional playoff that time to Warwick. Both years Princess Anne had been runaway winner of the Eastern District title.

The state championship game will be held Friday, May 30, in Charlottesville.

Princess Anne had earned the regional berth after winning easily in the semifinals over Cradock, 5-1. Mike Sweezy pitched a two-hitter in that contest. Wilson barely eked out a win in the semifinals with a 2-1 victory over Newport News.

and use, conduits, pipes, mains and other facilities, including necessary manholes, and to run cables and wires in, under and along the streets, alleys and public places of the City, and to use the property of other persons, corporations and organizations to use its property upon such arrangements as shall be agreed upon subject to the conditions herein set forth, for the purpose of providing all types of telephone, telegraph and other electronic service at any point within the corporate limits of the City, as the same now exist or may hereafter be extended or altered in accordance with authority granted by the State Corporation Commission of Virginia.

(b) The City may require that any lines, cables, conduits, or similar facilities of the Grantee which are to be constructed on City property after the effective date of this ordinance be installed beneath the surface of the land and in accordance with sound construction practices relating to such installation.

(c) Prior to doing any work, other than minor repair or construction which will not interfere with use of the City's property, pursuant to the terms of this ordinance on property owned by the City, the Grantee shall apply to the City Department of Public Works for authority to perform such work, stating the nature of the work and the location in which it is to be performed. The City shall promptly authorize such work unless it clearly appears that the proposed work will unreasonably interfere with the health, safety, or welfare of citizens of the City. In an emergency, work may be performed by Grantee without such permit, subject to the provisions of sections 4 and 6 of this ordinance.

(d) When Grantee's facilities are located on property owned by the City and the City reasonably requires that such facilities be relocated, Grantee will at its expense move such facilities to an alternate location reasonably suitable to Grantee's purposes and provided by the City at the City's expense. This provision shall not apply to removal or relocation of facilities required by any State or Federal agency, except where the facilities to be relocated are located on public property which has been dedicated or acquired for street or road purposes, including uses incidental thereto.

Section 2. From and after the date on which this ordinance shall become effective, the poles and other facilities in, under and along the streets, alleys and public places of the City, authorized by this ordinance to be located and constructed, shall be located at reasonable suitable and convenient points. If and when requested by the Mayor or other proper administrative officer of the City, the Grantee shall, from time to time, file with the City plans showing the location of proposed additional poles or structures, and obtain a permit therefor prior to their construction in, under and along the streets, alleys and public places of the City.

Section 3. In the location and erection of the poles, conduits and other facilities and fixtures in and stringing the wires as herein authorized, the Grantee shall have the right, after reasonable notice to the City Department of Public Works, to trim, cut and keep clear of its wires and fixtures the trees in and along the streets, alleys and public places of the City, but shall not cut or otherwise injure said trees to any greater extent than is reasonably necessary in the construction, maintenance and operation of the said poles, wires, fixtures and other structures of the Grantee as herein authorized and provided.

Section 4. In the event the Grantee shall, in the construction or repair of its works, injure any pavement, sidewalk, sewer, water or other pipe or works belonging to the City, it shall, upon notice thereof from the Mayor, promptly repair the same at its own cost and expense.

Section 5. The Grantee shall, when so requested by the Council of the City, permit its poles, towers and other structures to be used without compensation by the City for the purpose of placing thereon any traffic lighting, fire or police alarm, telegraph or telephone wires which may be necessary for the exclusive use of the police or fire department of the City, provided that such use by the City shall not interfere with the proper use of said poles, facilities and fixtures by the Grantee, and that the location and character of said wires and fixtures of the said City shall be subject to the approval of the Grantee herein, and provided further that the City shall, and it hereby agrees to, indemnify and save harmless the Grantee from any and all loss, damage, cost or expense to, or which may be incurred by Grantee, or to which it may be subjected by reason of or as a result of the use of said poles and structures by the City as in this section provided.

Section 6. The Grantee agrees and binds itself, by the acceptance of this ordinance, to indemnify, keep and hold the City free and harmless from liability on account of injury or damage to person or property growing out of the construction, improvement, maintenance, repair and operation of its lines or works, and in the event that suit shall be brought against the City, either independently or jointly with Grantee on account thereof, the Grantee, upon notice to it by the City, will defend the City in any such suit at the cost of Grantee, and, in event of a final judgment being obtained against the City, either independently or jointly with Grantee, the Grantee will pay such judgment, with all costs, and hold the City harmless therefrom; but nothing herein contained shall be construed to render Grantee liable for the negligence of the City, its agents or employees or of any other person or corporation.

Section 7. The Grantee shall operate and maintain an efficient telephone service system at reasonable rates for use of inhabitants of the City during the term of this franchise.

Section 8. All the rights and privileges hereby granted to Grantee may be exercised by any successor or successors, assignee or assignees of the Grantee, but the successor or successors, assignee or assignees shall be subject to all the provisions, obligations and stipulations and penalties herein prescribed.

Section 9. The rights and privileges hereby granted shall continue for the period of thirty years from and after the day on which this ordinance becomes effective as provided in Section 10 below, unless the same be sooner voluntarily surrendered by the Grantee, with the consent of the Council of the City, or unless the same be sooner forfeited as provided by law.

Upon the expiration of the term of this grant and upon the termination of the rights hereby granted, by surrender, forfeiture or otherwise, all of the poles, wires, conduits, lines and other property of the Grantee in the streets, alleys or public places of the City may be removed from the streets, alleys and public places of the City at the expense of the Grantee within a reasonable time after the expiration or termination of such rights and privileges, such time to be prescribed by the Council of the City.

Section 10. This ordinance and the rights and privileges hereby granted and conferred, shall become effective when the Grantee has filed with the Mayor of the City its written acceptance thereof, and has entered into a bond in the sum of One Hundred Dollars ($100), with surety satisfactory to the Mayor, conditioned to the effect that the Grantee will construct and maintain, or if constructed, will maintain, the poles, wires, conduits, lines and other facilities provided for herein and reasonably necessary for the exercise of the rights and privileges granted in and by this ordinance, in good order throughout the terms of this grant, and will comply with the terms, provisions and conditions of this ordinance in all respects.

Section 11. This ordinance shall be in force from its passage.

Section 12. That upon the approval of this ordinance by the Mayor of the City it shall be the duty of the City Clerk to cause to be advertised once a week for four successive weeks, in some newspaper of general circulation in the City, the draft of ordinance contained in the foregoing sections, and in addition he shall, by such advertisement, invite bids for the privileges and rights proposed to be granted by such ordinance, which bids shall be in writing and shall be delivered to the presiding officer of the Council of the City in open session at the day and hour of the next regular meeting of the said body to be held next after such advertisement is completed, and the bids shall then be presented to the Council by the presiding officer to be dealt with and acted upon in the manner prescribed by law for franchise grants. The advertisement shall expressly reserve the right to reject any and all bids, and the successful bidder shall be required to pay all costs of advertising the franchise in addition to the sum bid by it.
